APPENDIX D.

DEPARTMENT OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE OF CANADA.
RECORD BRANCH, January, 1901.

To the Honourable
The Secretary of State.

SIR,—I have the honour to lay before you the following statement of work performed in this branch of your department during the year ending the 31st December 1900.

Section A.—The prolonged illness of a member of the staff has retarded somewhat the calendar begun in 1899, but since he resumed his duties in September last, the work has progressed normally.

Section B.—The number of requisitions received and attended to, during the year, is one hundred and ninety four (194) involving the search of one thousand and thirty two documents (1,032). In nine hundred and sixty-six cases (966) they were found, and in sixty-six (66), they were not found in the office. Amongst the documents searched for, one hundred and eighty four (184) were printed papers, of which number one hundred and fifty six (156) were in the office. It is worthy of notice, and at the same time gratifying, that the greater part of the documents asked for are anterior to confederation. In fact, nearly one half of those belong to the first period : that is before the union of Canada (1841), and the number of men of letters, students of history and professional men requiring those searches is yearly increasing.

Section C.—The two employees in that section have been somewhat disturbed in the work of classification to attend other duties during the illness of the member of the staff above mentioned, but nevertheless the progress has been satisfactory, and during the year, eight thousand six hundred and forty six (8,646) papers were by them examined, indexed in triple form and distributed in one thousand eight hundred and fifty three files.

Early in January, Convict files of 1896 were received from the Correspondence branch of the department and an inventory thereof made.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

A. AUDET,
Keeper of the Records.

REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE ISSUE OF PASSPORTS.

The following is a synopsis of the regulations governing the issue of passports approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council on May 13, 1893 :—

1. Appplications for passports must be made in writing and inclosed in a cover addressed to 'The Honourable the Secretary of State, Ottawa.'

2. The charge for a passport, whatever number of persons may be named in it, is $4. The fee payable must accompany the application. Postage stamps will not be received in payment.

3. Passports are granted only to British-born subjects, or to persons naturalized in the Dominion of Canada ; they are not limited in point of time, but are available for any time or for any number of journeys to foreign countries. When the party is a 'naturalized British subject' he will be so designated in his passport.

4. Passports are granted to all persons either known to the Secretary of State or recommended to him by some person who is known to him ; or upon the application of any chartered bank in the Dominion of Canada : or upon the production of a certificate of identity, which may be obtained at the department, signed by any mayor, magistrate, justice of the peace, minister of religion, physician, surgeon, solicitor or notary resident in the Dominion of Canada. In certain cases, the applicant's certificate of birth must be produced in addition to the certificate of identity.

5. If the applicant for a passport be a naturalized British subject, his certificate of naturalization, with his signature subscribed to the oath printed on it, must be forwarded to the Department of the Secretary of State, with the certificate of identity granted in his behalf ; and his certificate of naturalization will be returned with the passport to the person who may have granted the certificate of identity, in order that he may cause such naturalized British subject to sign the passport in his presence.

6. A passport cannot be issued by the Department of the Secretary of State on behalf of a person already abroad ; such person should apply for one to the nearest British mission or consulate ; a passport cannot be issued abroad to a colonial naturalized British subject; except for a direct jouney to the United Kingdom or to the colony where he has been naturalized.

7. The bearer of every passport issued by the Department of the Secretary of State should sign his passport as soon as he receives it ; without such signature either the visa may be refused, or the validity of the passport questioned abroad. Travellers who may have any intention of visiting the Russian Empire, the Turkish Dominions, or the Kingdom of Roumania at any time in the course of their travels, should first have their passports visés at the nearest Russian, Turkish or Roumanian consulate as the case may be. The addresses in London of these consulates are respectively as follow :—The Russian Consulate, 17, Great Winchester Street, E. C. ; the Consulate General of the Sublime Porte, 7, Union Court, Old Broad Street ; the Roumanian Consulate-General, 37, Old Jewry, E. C. Persons proposing to enter Germany by way of France should also have their passports visés at the German Embassy in London or Paris. Travellers about to proceed to any other country need not obtain the visa of the diplomatic or consular agents of such country, except as an additional precaution, which is recommended in the case of passports of an old date.

N.B.—Although British subjects are now free to enter Belgium, France, Holland, Italy, Denmark, Sweden and Norway without passports, and the rules about passports have been virtually relaxed in other countries, nevertheless colonial British subjects about to visit foreign countries are recommended not to omit to provide themselves with passports, for even in those countries where they are no longer obligatory, they are found to be convenient as offering a ready means of identification, and more particularly when letters have to be claimed at a poste restante. For residence in certain districts of Germany or Switzerland a passport is indispensable.

JOSEPH POPE,
Under Secretary of State.

OTTAWA, October, 1896.

NOTE.—Naturalized British subjects should bear in mind that, under the terms of their passports, they are not entitled to British protection when within the limits of the Foreign State to which they originally belonged, unless they have ceased to be subjects of that State, in the manner prescribed by the laws thereof, or in pursuance of a treaty or convention to that effect.

APPENDIX No. 3.

56 VICTORIA.

CHAP. 13.

An Act respecting Government Civil Service Insurance.

[Assented to 1*st April*, 1893.]

HER Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and House of Commons of Canada, enacts as follow —

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited as The Civil Service Insurance Act.

"Minister" defined.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the expression "Minister" means the Minister of Finance and Receiver-General.

Insurance contracts authorized.

3. The Minister may contract with any person to whom The Civil Service Superannuation Act applies, or who may be hereafter appointed to a permanent position in any branch of the Public Service of Canada, for the payment of a certain sum of money to be made upon the death of such person.

Interpretation.

2. Any such contract is hereinafter called the "insurance contract"; the person so contracting with the Minister is hereinafter called the "insured"; and the amount so contracted to be paid is hereinafter called "insurance money."

Apportioning of insurance in case of married man or widower with children.

4. When the insured is a married man or a widower with children, the insurance contract shall be for the benefit of his wife, or of his wife and children, or of his wife and some one or more of his children, or of his children only, or of some one or more of them; and when the insurance contract is effected for the benefit of more than one, the insured may apportion the insurance money among them as he deems proper.

Apportionment in case of unmarried man.

5. When the insured is an unmarried man, the insurance contract shall be for the benefit of his future wife, or of his future wife and children, and the insured may apportion the insurance money among them in such manner as he sees fit; but if, at the maturity of the contract, he is still unmarried, or is a widower without children, the insurance money shall fall into and become part of his estate.

Form of apportionment.

6. Any apportionment under the next two preceding sections may be made in the insurance contract, or by a declaration endorsed thereon or annexed thereto and signed by the insured.

"Children" defined.

7. When it is stated in the insurance contract, or in a declaration endorsed thereon or attached thereto, that the insurance contract is for the benefit of the wife and children generally, or of the children generally, of the insured, without specifying their names, then the word "children" shall mean all the children of the insured living at the time of his death whether by the same wife or by different wives.

Share of person dying before the insured.

8. Where an apportionment has been made as hereinbefore provided and one or more of the persons in whose favour the apportionment has been made die in the lifetime of the insured, the insured may, by an instrument in writing endorsed on or attached to the insurance contract, declare that the shares formerly apportioned to the persons so dying shall be for the benefit of the wife and children of the insured, or of one or more of them, as he sees fit; and in default of such declaration, the shares of the persons so dying shall be for the benefit of the survivor, or of the survivors of such persons in equal shares if more than one; and if all the persons so entitled die in the lifetime of the insured, the insurance money shall fall into and become part of the estate of the insured.

If there is no apportionment.

9. When no apportionment is made of the insurance money as hereinbefore provided, all persons interested shall be held to share equally therein.

Minister may decline to contract.

10. The Minister may decline to enter into an insurance contract in any case where there are, in his opinion, sufficient grounds for his declining to do so.

Tables to be prepared.

11. The Minister shall cause tables to be constructed fixing the premiums to be paid by the insured to the Minister as the consideration for such insurance contracts, and also all other tables necessary for the carrying out of the provisions of this Act.

Basis of tables

HER Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and House of Commons of Canada, enacts as follows:—

R.S.C., c. 17, schedule A amended.

1. Schedule A to The Civil Service Act, chapter 17 of the Revised Statutes, as amended by section 12 of chapter 15 of the statutes of 1895, is amended by adding thereto the following:—

Increase for passing in certain subjects.

Limitation.

6. The Governor in Council may give to any person who is appointed a junior second-class clerk, in addition to the salary herein provided for on appointment, an amount not exceeding fifty dollars per annum for each optional subject, not exceeding two, in which he passes prior to his appointment; provided always that such additional amounts so given for optional subjects shall not increase his salary on appointment beyond seven hundred dollars per annum.

Optional subjects.

2. The optional subjects for the purpose of this section are book-keeping, short-hand and typewriting.

Appointment of graduate of university or of Royal Military College.

7. The Governor in Council may, on the recommendation of the head of the Department, concurred in by the Treasury Board, appoint a person who is a graduate of the Royal Military College or of any university in Canada, to be a junior second-class clerk at a salary not exceeding eight hundred dollars per annum.

Limitation in certain cases.

2. An appointment shall only be made under this section in either of the following cases:—

(a.) Where the junior second-class clerk to be appointed is to take the place of a clerk of the second class or of a higher class; or (b.) Where the deputy head of the Department reports that, owing to the special class of the work to be performed, an appointment under this section is desirable.

Yearly increase.

8. The Governor in Council may, after a junior second-class clerk has served one year, increase his salary, by amounts not exceeding fifty dollars in any one year, up to the maximum salary of a junior second-class clerk hereinbefore provided for, but no such increase shall be made except on the report of the deputy head of the Department, concurred in by the head of the Department, that such clerk is deserving thereof.

Application and construction of R.S.C., c. 17.

9. Except as herein otherwise provided, the provisions of The Civil Service Act shall apply to junior second-class clerks appointed under this Act, and The Civil Service Act shall be read and construed as if the provisions of this Act were incorporated therewith.

Salary of messenger, porter, etc.

10. The salary of a messenger, porter, packer or sorter, employed either permanently or temporarily in the Civil Service, may be increased to a maximum of six hundred dollars per annum, by amounts not exceeding thirty dollars in any one year, such increase to be granted only upon an Order in Council passed on the report of the deputy head of the Department, concurred in by the head of the Department, that such messenger, porter, sorter or packer is eligible for such increase and is deserving thereof.

REPORT

BOARD OF CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINERS

FOR THE YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 31, 1900.

The undersigned, constituting the Board of Civil Service Examiners for the Dominion of Canada, have the honour to report that during the year ended the 31st day of December, 1900, they held, or caused to be held, the Promotion and Entrance Examinations prescribed by "The Civil Service Act."

PROMOTION EXAMINATION.

The General Promotion Examination for employees of the Civil Service, those of the Excise Branch of the Department of Inland Revenue excepted for the reasons hereinafter set forth, was this year held on the 22nd and 23rd days of May, and was attended by employees from the seven following departments, viz :—Customs, Militia and Defence, Governor General's Secretary, Geological Survey, Agriculture, Railways and Canals, and Inland Revenue (Inside Service). The official notice of the intention to hold this examination published in the 'Canada Gazette' announced that the only 'Centre' at which a session would be held was the City of Ottawa, but subsequently an urgent request was received from the Department of Customs for an examination at St. John, N.B., Winnipeg and Vancouver, and the same having been submitted to the Honourable the Secretary of State, his approval was obtained, and arrangements were accordingly made and the examination held at the three additional 'Centres' indicated. The attendance at this examination, as will be seen from the statements in subsequent pages, continues small, the reason being, as remarked in previous reports of the Board, that a large proportion of the employees of the Service have already qualified for promotion.

In connection with the Promotion Examination the Board deems it advisable to here call attention to the provisions of the Act, 63-64 Victoria, chapter 14, which came into operation on the first day of July last. Under that Act a new class of clerkships is created, to be known as 'Junior Second-class Clerks,' and it is provided that the second or Qualifying Examination prescribed by the Civil Service Act shall qualify for appointment, unless the person to be appointed should happen to be a graduate of the Royal Military College or of a Canadian University, in which case no examination is necessary. There being no provision embodied in the Act indicating what, if any, examination would be necessary in the case of the promotion of a junior second-class clerk to the higher rank of a senior second-class clerk, application was therefore made to the Deputy Minister of Justice for his interpretation of the Act in this and other respects, and the following is his decision :—

1. Third-class clerks in the inside service, who, under and by virtue of the provisions of the Act of last session, have become junior second-class clerks, do not require to pass any examination in order to qualify them for promotion to the second-class, if they have passed the qualifying examination.

2. Junior second-class clerks appointed under the Act of last session must pass an examination under section 39 et seq. of the Civil Service Act to qualify them for such promotion ; and

3. The qualifying examination does now qualify for appointment as temporary clerk, junior second-class clerk, or second-class clerk. There does not seem to be, since the Act of 1895, chap. 15, sec. 4 (b), any such class of employee as writer or temporary copyists, as distinguished from temporary clerk, and there is no such class of clerk as senior second. The junior second-class clerk, and the second class, seem to be the proper names of the two lower classes of clerks in the inside service.

While the above is the interpretation given by the Deputy Minister of Justice of the recent legislation, in so far as it affects the promotion examination, the Board desires to respectfully venture the opinion that it would have been more in the interests of the Service had the legislation in question made it compulsory for all junior second-class clerks to pass a promotion examination before being advanced to the higher rank of senior second-class clerks, as it would undoubtedly be the means of stimulating a great many, who might otherwise be disposed to perform their duties in a careless perfunctory manner, to strive by study and persevering industry to become thoroughly familiar with all the details of the department in which they are employed, and in that way equip themselves for the further test of qualification to which they would later on be subjected.

The attendance at this examination, and the results thereof, will be found in tabulated form on later pages.

EXCISE PROMOTION EXAMINATION.

As has been explained in previous reports of the Board, the General Promotion Examination held in the month of May is invariably adjourned until the month of August in order to meet the case of the employees of the Excise Branch of the Department of Inland Revenue, who are so circumstanced that attendance at the examination in the month of May would very seriously interfere with the performance of their duties. Accordingly an Excise Promotion Examination may be held annually in the month of August, should the requirements of the department render it necessary, but this was not found to be the case during the years 1897 and 1898, and consequently no examination was held in those years.

This year the examination was held on August 21 and four following days, at Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Victoria, the Board being represented by one of its members at Montreal and at Toronto, and by sub-examiners at the other centres. The papers at this examination being of an altogether special and technical character, it is customary to have associated with the presiding examiner an officer of the Department of Inland Revenue, in order that the candidates may be afforded such assistance as is necessary to enable them to thoroughly comprehend the problems submitted to them.

The answer papers, without the names of the candidates, are submitted to experts of the Department of Inland Revenue, who report the results to the Board, by whom, in turn, they are communicated to the Secretary of State, with the names prefixed.

The question treated by the candidates at the Excise Promotion Examination are not printed in the report of the board for the reason that being necessarily very much alike each year, their publication would enable intending candidates to prepare answers in advance, or have them prepared by more competent men. This consideration has commended itself to the board, and in consequence the papers in question are not now printed in its annual reports.

The attendance at and results of the Excise Promotion Examination will be found in a subjoined table.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS.

The undersigned have the honour to report that personally on the usual days in November last, at Montreal, Ottawa, and Toronto, and by sub-examiners at Charlottetown, Halifax, St. John, Quebec, Kingston, Hamilton, London, Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria, the preliminary and qualifying examinations prescribed by the statute for entrance into the public service were held. No examination was held at the remaining 'centres' Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie and Regina, as no applications were received from persons desirous of taking the examination at these places At Calgary, out of three candidates entered for the examination one only presented himself, and although the outlay involved in the holding of a session at this 'centre' was reasonable, nevertheless the Board desires to put itself on record as opposed to the holding of an examination at any 'centre' for one candidate, and would recommend the adoption of a rule fixing a specified number as the minimum number of persons for which a session of the Board may be held at any of the 'centres' named in the Order in Council.

INCREASE IN THE NUMBER OF CANDIDATES.

Allusion was made in the report of last year to the constantly increasing number of candidates at the entrance examinations, and it will be seen from the statements hereto annexed that the year 1900 was not an exception: but, on the contrary, that large as the attendance was in the three preceding years, it was exceeded by over two hundred last year. The Board respectfully submits in this regard that it is difficult to do full justice to their work without more help in the office and increased means for other purposes. The expenditure in connection with these examinations consists largely in stationery, printing, allowance to sub-examiners, rents of halls, &c., all of which grow as the number of candidates increases. The Board's appropriation has been so curtailed in recent years that it was found impossible to meet the cost of the halls used at Montreal Ottawa and Toronto—the three principal centres—and these accounts were accordingly paid by the Department of Public Works out of its vote for rents, &c., of public buildings. The Auditor General has several times protested against this practice, but unless a more liberal allowance is granted the Board there is little prospect of it being discontinued But it must be borne in mind that if the cost of these examinations is growing, the fees received and paid to the credit of the Receiver General increase in even greater proportion. The moneys obtained from this source amounted for the year ended December 31 last to $2,498, being $223 in excess of the amount voted by Parliament to the Board. It will thus be seen that instead of being a tax upon the country, as it might very properly be, considering the character of the work in which it is engaged, the Board in the past year yielded a small revenue to the public exchequer.

SUB-EXAMINERS.

The Board have much pleasure in reporting that during the past year the staff of sub-examiners have given every satisfaction in the performance of their duties, no complaints having reached them in regard to the manner in which the examinations have been conducted.

IRREGULARITIES, ETC.

In several previous reports the Board adverted to the evil practice on the part of some of the candidates of copying or allowing their work to be copied, and they regret to have to report four cases of this character at the recent examinations, two at St. John, N.B., and two at Montreal. The evidence in the cases was so unmisatkable that the board had no hesitation in cancelling the papers of the candidates concerned, and they can only regret the fact that they are without further means of punishing the guilty parties. In this connection, attention is again directed to the reports for 1895 and 1899, in which a recommendation was made that a rule be adopted declaring the impropriety of copying, or of permitting one's work to be copied, should disqualify the offenders for all future Civil Service Examinations. Such a rule would undoubtedly have the effect of checking to a large extent this dishonest practice. Happily the cases of copying are not numerous, but the disposition to do so has been manifested at every qualifying examination, and in places where there is a large number of candidates in close proximity to each other—a condition of things that cannot always be avoided—it is scarcely possible for the officer in charge, even with one or two assistants, to detect, in every case, the various means used by the offenders in this respect, so that in such cases the wrong doing is discovered only when the candidates' papers are being inspected and valued after the examinations.

SUB-EXAMINERS.

The staff of sub-examiners in connection with the Board is as follows:—

Charlottetown, Ewen Stewart, Esquire, Inspector of Public Schools.
Halifax, Matthew N. Doyle, Barrister-at-Law.
St. John, N.B., The Reverend Dr. Bennet.

Kingston, J. B. McKay, Esquire, Principal of the Kingston Business College.

Winnipeg, The Venerable Archdeacon Fortin.
Regina, J. W. Harrison, Esquire.
Calgary, W. T. VanWart, Esquire.
Vancouver, T. L. Baxter, Esquire.
Victoria, The Reverend Dr. Campbell.

No candidates presenting themselves at Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie or Regina at the last examinations, the services of the sub-examiners at these places were not required, and they received no emolument from their office as such.

FEES, ETC.

The fees received from the candidates at the Promotion Examination in May and deposited to the credit of the Receiver General, amounted to $32.

The fees received from the candidates at the Excise Promotion Examination in August and deposited to the credit of the Receiver General, amounted to $56.

The fees received from candidates at the Entrance Examinations in November, and also deposited to the credit of the Receiver General, amounted to $2,410.

Candidates at the Promotion Examination numbered 16, at the Excise Examination, 28, and at the Entrance Examinations, 854.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

HAWARDEN CASTLE, January 7, 1887.

SIR,—As the oldest among the confidential servants of Her Majesty, I cannot allow the anniversary to pass without notice, which will to-morrow bring your Royal Highness to full age and thus mark an important period in your life.

The hopes and intentions of those whose lives lie, like mine, in the past, are of little moment; but they have seen much and what they have seen suggests much for the future.

There lies before Your Royal Highness in prospect, the occupation, I trust, at a distant date, of a throne, which to me, at least, appears the most illustrious in the world, from its history and associations, from its legal basis, from the weight of the cares it brings, from the loyal love of the people, and from the unparalleled opportunities it gives, in so many ways and in so many regions, of doing good to the almost countless numbers whom the Almighty has placed beneath the sceptre of England.

I fervently desire and pray, and there cannot be a more animating prayer, that Your Royal Highness may ever grow in the principles of conduct, and may be adorned with all the qualities which correspond with this great and noble vocation.

And, Sir, if sovereignty has been relieved by our modern institutions of some of its burdens, it still, I believe, remains true that there has been no period of the world's history at which successors to the monarchy could more efficiently contribute to the stability of a great historic system, dependent even more upon love than upon strength, by devotion to their duties and by a bright example to the country. This result we have been happily permitted to see, and other generations will, I trust, witness it anew.

Heartily desiring that in the life of Your Royal Highness every private and personal may be joined with every public blessing.

I have the honour to remain, sir,

Your Royal Highness' most dutiful and faithful servant,

W. E. GLADSTONE.

H.R.H Prince Albert Victor.

FIFTY YEARS ADRIFT.

Value.

How an Arctic Wreck Floated on an Iceberg.

60 One of the most curious finds ever made from the sea was that which came to the Azores in 1858. The island of Corvo was then in the possession of two beach combers, runaway English sailors. There came drifting into the little harbour one morning a craft which had evidently been frozen in the ice a life time and had lately been released. It had come down from Davis strait and was an ancient and battered hulk without masts, bulwarks or name. The craft had a brig and she was a Russian. Her hatches were on and her cabin doors fast, and the hulk was bouyant. She had come out of the belly of an iceberg. She had little cargo, and that consisted of skins and furs in prime condition. No papers were found in her cabin, but it was figured that she was a sealer or trader, carrying a crew of 10 or 12, and that she had been provisioned for a year. The flour found aboard tasted like chalk, but the beef was perhaps better than the day it was put on board. She had been abandoned when frozen in, and the dark colour of the woodwork and the growth of moss proved that she had drifted for years. Then she got fast in the ice and became part of a berg.

The date of a letter found in her forecastle showed that she had been abandoned nearly half a century before. The hulk drifted to a sand beach, and the combers went to work on her. They got the furs, which brought them $4,000, hoisted out a couple of barrels of beef and then set fire to the wreck and little remained of her when the story leaked out. That the hulk came down from the far north was proved only a few weeks later by the log of an English merchantman. She reported passing a great iceberg to the northwest of Azores and of seeing a curious object imbedded in it 50 feet above the surface of the water. The object was believed to be a whale, but it was probably the hulk of the brig. Getting down into the warm seas, the berg fell to pieces, and that queer old relic found herself afloat again.

There are few ofices conected with the goverment of this or of any other country which have had so grate an infleunce on the soshial life of the people as the post ofice for the convayence of leters from one toun or district to an other. As hapens with moast grate discovries and importent institeusions, the oragin of the poste for leters is obsceure ; just as the sorse of a large river may be trased to a numbre of smal rils riseing in diferant plaices, which mingel there waters without anny one of haveing mutch clame to be considdered the sorse of the grate streeme. It has ben sugested that the carage of leters was a dooty simeler to that performed by slaves amung the German and Saxon tribes, who were expected to go on erends and cary goodes or messeges for there lord when rekwired, and that the poaste took it's rise from this. The resemblence is however, to casuel to suport sutch a concloosin, or to atribute the oregin of the poastege of leters to sucth comon servises. TO KEEP BRAIN AND MUSCLE HEALTHY.

(By Dr. J. H. Kellogg.)

If you want to be healthy after old age has crept upon you take daily systematic exercise. It is as necessary as systematic eating. Walking is the best exercise, provided it's done in a proper manner. The body must be held erect, the chin drawn in, the hips back. This will bring the shoulders where they ought to be. Never try to hold the shoulders back. This throws the hips forward and produces an incorrect attitude.

Lift the chest forward and push the hips back Draw the chin in and stretch up to the fullest height, while reaching the arms down as far as possible. Let them incline a little backward while getting them in proper position. The attitude must not be stiff, but flexible, allowing the trunk to yield and sway a little as the limbs are alternately put forward.

Take care not to strike the heels too forcibly. The shoulders will look out for themselves if the chest is forward and the hips back. Do not walk stiffly, or with a swaying, tottering or mincing gait. Let the arms hang freely by the side. When walking for exercise stretch out, stepping a little further and walking faster than usual.

In walking for exercise put the mind as well as the muscles in every step. Breathe deeply, slightly prolonging the respiratory movement. Hill-climbing, if not overdone, is capital exercise.

From O. C. 2nd Battalion, Canadian Rifles,
To Chief Staff Officer, 1st Mounted Infantry Brigade,

CAMP NEAR HONING SPRUIT.
26th June, 1900.

SIR,—1. I have the honour to bring to the notice of the Major General Commanding the following incident which occurred during the recent attack on this camp, which at the time, 22nd instant, consisted of 2 companies Shropshire Regiment and a detachment of two officers and 50 N.C. Officers and men of "D" Squadron of the battalion, under Lieutenant Davidson.

The attack commenced about 6.30 a.m., when Lieutenant Inglis was taking a party of eight men to post on a wooded kopje about 3½ miles east of the camp. The party was almost surrounded by about 400 of the enemy and forced to retire. Their retirement was made in the direction of a Cossack Post on the railway track on the ridge about one mile south of the camp.

2. During the retirement Lieutenant Inglis and two men were wounded ; one is known to have been made a prisoner ; one made his way to Kroonstadt and three are missing and supposed to be prisoners, as no trace of their bodies could be found on the field. The retirement of the party was practically covered by the Cossack Post referred to.

3. This group consisted of Corporal Morden, Acting Corporal Miles, Privates Kerr and Miles. Their only course was the railroad bed, which at that point was only about 18 inches above the level of the ground. Private Miles was slightly wounded in the hand and was sent back with the led horses. Corporal Morden sent word back to the camp that his group 'could stand off the enemy without help.'

The Cossack Post was being attacked by about 50 of the emeny, who occupied the ridge east of and up to the track on the south of the camp. Acting Corporal Miles was shot through the right shoulder, but supporting his shoulder on a tuft of grass to stop the bleeding, he directed his comrades where their fire would be most effective.

Private Kerr was then wounded in the side and continued firing until shot through the heart and killed.

Corporal Morden kept up the fire until he was killed, being shot through the brain.

4. These men were excellent shots and their fire was so effective that the enemy made no further attempts to approach their post and when they retired left 2 or 3 dead in the vicinity.

They are known to have carried of one more dead and numerous wounded, the result of the fire from the group.

5. The group was composed of Pincher Creek men, and in Corporal Morden and Private Kerr the battalion has lost two of its best and bravest men.

Corporal Morden, the group leader, was known as the best rancher in the Pincher Creek District.

6. I promoted Acting Corporal Miles to be Sergeant for his conduct in the action.

7. The list of prisoners and missing in Licutenant Inglis' group is solely due to the fact that men are mounted on worn out horses. I am glad to report the wounded are doing well.

I have, &c.,

(Sgd.) T. B. EVANS, Lt.-Colonel,
Comdg. 2nd Battalion, Canadian Mounted Rifles.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC PRINTING AND STATIONERY, KING'S PRINTER'S OFFICE,
OTTAWA, February 28, 1901.

The Honourable R. W. SCOTT, K.C., LL.D.,
Secretary of State.

SIR,—I have the honour to present the customary annual report of the Department of Public Printing and Stationery, showing in detail the transactions of the department during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900. This being the last of the annual departmental reports to be presented at this session, it becomes possible in the introduction to advert to some matters of a later date.

The year past has been one of constant pressure at the Government Printing Bureau. Keeping pace with the rapid growth of the country and the expansion of its interests the operations of the government are extending over wider areas and in new directions. Of necessity it follows, therefore, that there must be larger requirements upon the Bureau and a continually increasing strain upon its resources. Paper and writing and printing are prime necessities of civilized society. They are the instruments of intercommunication between men and their increasing consumption is the readiest and surest measure of social activity and advancement. When in the world of business the consumption of paper and ink has of late years increased so enormously, it cannot be a cause of surprise if the demands of a government administering a country developing so rapidly should have doubled within the last decade.

The Government Printing Bureau has been for years occupied to its utmost capacity. There is not room for additional hands. More hands would, in fact, produce less work because the men would be in each other's way. There has been no serious suspension of work-people in any branch since the year 1896, and the work is now beginning to overflow into outside offices. To attain its utmost usefulness the Bureau should be able to accommodate a staff considerably larger than its average strength. Then extra hands could be taken on for special occasions when work is thrown upon it in large masses. It would then be possible to systematize the operations of the Bureau so as to avoid an accumulation of work on the one hand and prevent those suspensions of operations on the other which are productive of so much inconvenience and, in the case of old employees, may be the cause of suffering.

The need of increased accommodation has been continually pointed out from the very first year the Bureau was opened. In 1889, the late Queen's Printer reported 'that every part of the building was occupied.' An extension of both wings was then advocated, for it was proposed to concentrate in the Bureau the lithographic work done in other departments at Ottawa, and also to undertake the manufacture of envelopes. The manufacture of stamped postal envelopes did at last reach the Bureau, but all idea of making other kinds, or of undertaking the lithographing of maps has been long abandoned in the endeavour to find room for the simple objects of printing and binding.

The following year (1890) the late Queen's Printer reported that 'one department —the bindery—is already overcrowded with the necessary hands and work and increased accommodation will be required.' The idea of an extension of both wings to the rear was still entertained. In 1892, the present King's Printer found the building congested with work and described it as follows:—

> 'The Printing Bureau is now occupied from attic to cellar, and the work has been overflowing the limits of the building. Upon my arrival I found that the long and arduous session of parliament, which has just closed, had filled it to repletion with work. Unfolded sheets were piled up on every floor, delaying the work passing through by clogging up the space for moving round. The bindery was loaded down beyond all possibility of recovering itself unaided, and there was no space in which to put extra hands. As the meeting of parliament approached, it became clear that some extraordinary means had to be adopted to clear off the accumulation of arrears. Arrangements were made with a firm in the city by which they undertook to fold and complete 267,500 pamphlet reports, and for six weeks there was an outside staff of sixty hands working on these. More recently, a lot of 50,000 pamphlets had, in like manner, to be put out for want of space. The portion of the building occupied as a pamphlet bindery is far too small for the quantity of work to be done. The departmental composing room is too crowded already, and the work done in it is increasing. Space is also required for the linotype machines which were ordered for delivery during the summer, and room for map mounting is much needed. The need of more accommodation was pointed out last year by my predecessor, and it was suggested at that time that both wings of the building should be extended. The statute under which the Bureau was organized, provides that the lithographic work of the government should be done here, and, if that be decided upon, an addition to the building would be absolutely necessary. This extension of one wing only would provide sufficient space for a long time to come for all possible needs. The departmental composing room and the sheet and pamphlet bindery could then be extended. There would be room for a fast perfecting press, feeding from the web and able to overtake any requirements of long orders, such as the Experimental Farm Report. The folding and clamping up of sheets could be done on the ground floor in immediate connection with the presses, thus saving the loss of time and labour in handling the sheets.'

In 1895, the Queen's Printer again brought the matter before parliament in his report. The idea of a lithographic plant had been given up, and an extension of only one wing was asked for, as follows:—

> 'In reports made in previous years I have ventured to point out that the business of the department has outgrown the capacity of the building. This has been forced again upon the officers of the department by the pressure of the past year. For many months the building has been so full that place could not be found for one single employee more. The enlargement desirable may be most conveniently made by an extension of the northern wing.'

The following year (1896) the matter was again urged:—

> 'In previous reports submitted some years ago, I respectfully urged an enlargement of the building. It is now full, and more operatives cannot be put into it. In order to meet every requirement, there should be a power of temporary expansion, so that in cases of emergency extra space might be available for extra hands.'

The voters' list room had been taken for departmental work, and a space which had been partitioned off from the stationery branch for a supplementary voters' list staff in the hurried revision of 1895 was taken for stamping and making postal envelopes. This was the last resource, for the map-mounting had been moved from the bindery to the shipping room on the second flat below, and the storage room in the cellar had been encroached upon by the standing type of the lists. The next year (1897), the pressure was still increasing as reported.

> 'The demands upon the printing bureau continue to increase while, as has been pointed out in previous reports, the building was designed for the execution of work much less in volume and has never been enlarged. The pressure for room is, however, felt most in the bindery, and every expansion in other departments strains more and more this branch where the final processes are carried on. The space for the pamphlet bindery is inadequate for present requirements and for the handling of long numbers. The difficulty cannot be met by increasing the number of hands in this branch, for there is no room and more work people would be in each other's way and would swell the pay-sheet without increasing the output. In order to overtake the work it has been necessary during the past year to work a good deal of overtime—an expensive mode of carrying on manufacturing.

In the following year (1898) the Queen's Printer made an exhaustive detailed report upon the institution in the form of a 'decennial summary' and referred again to the subject as follows:—

> 'The present building was designed to accommodate the business of the government as it existed in 1886. No reserve of space was provided to meet the increasing demands of a growing country. The officials of that day can hardly be blamed for this, because there is always pressure to prevent any expenditure beyond present needs, and because the building was so designed that an extension can be readily made at any time by lengthening one or both wings towards the rear. The building was filled immediately after its erection. In the meantime the country has grown. The business of the departments has greatly increased (to what extent will be shown later on), but the facilities provided at the Printing Bureau remain unchanged in some essential particulars. The space occupied is the same; the power of output of the press room is the same, and the facilities of handling large masses of sheet work, and the binding generally are the same.'

Again, in his last report (1899) finding the pressure upon the Bureau growing continually more importunate he said:—

> 'The enlargement of the building by the extension of the north-western wing to the rear has been urged for the past ten years in previous reports and its necessity is increasingly more urgent. The bindery is very much in need of additional room. At the present time any visitor may see great piles of sheets stacked up waiting to be folded, while there is not room for one more folding machine. There is only one gathering wheel and not enough room for another, and the operatives are packed so closely that the number cannot be added to without interfering with the output. It is extremely difficult to handle the mass of sheet work even now; but when a fast web press pours out double the quantity, the urgency will become very serious. All this sheet work is wanted and is sometimes impatiently asked for. Long experience and a perfect familiarity with the work, acquired not only in the Printing Bureau but with the previous contractors, enable the officials to minimize the inconveniences to a great extent by giving precedence to work which they know to be essentially necessary to government or parliament; but it would be much to the public interest if everything were turned out in order of date and a reserve capacity for an emergency were provided.'

It is worthy of especial attention, because it has an important bearing upon the subject, that while the work was thus calling for increased facilities and an enlargement of the building, the only movement made was to shorten the hours of labour from nine to eight hours daily. As the building was already full and no more hands could be put into it the result was the same as if it had been diminished one-ninth. It may therefore be said that the building, so far from having been enlarged, has practically been to that extent contracted. The ingenuity of the management has attempted to countervail these difficulties in various ways, but all expedients have been exhausted and the work is now beginning to overflow.

The introduction of linotype machines was of immense importance in coping with the increase of work. At first they were in active use only during sessions of parliament. They were held as a reserve of force for any emergency out of session, but long sessions and new undertakings have absorbed them; so that, during ten months of last year, they were worked incessantly night and day by separate working staffs. In such ways as these the management endeavoured to keep pace with the demands upon the Bureau.

The web press ordered last year is fast approaching completion, and when placed, will dispose of the question of press work for years to come. But it will sadly encumber the present excellent pressroom. Space will still be required to handle the increased mass of sheets it will turn out. To secure economy the sheets should be folded and compressed upon the same floor as printed and sent clamped direct to the warehouse in the attic. They will have to be hoisted to the bindery and be clamped there and again hoisted to the attic store room, thus making an unnecessary handling of all the sheet stock. The Government Printing Bureau should continue to be, as it was, in advance of every institution of the kind in the country, and improvements in machinery and in methods elsewhere should be promptly adopted.

The building can be most conveniently enlarged by extending the north-western wing one hundred feet to the rear. In that way those branches which stand most in need will be relieved with the least disturbance. The departmental composing room specially calls for enlargement. The operations of all departments of government have necessarily increased as the area of administration has widened. This is the case in some departments more than others, but the remark applies in a varying degree to all. Then a room is necessary for the voters' lists, the space taken from the stationery department for an emergency should be restored and operations now isolated in distant parts of the building should be placed in the manufacturing portion of it. The new press would find its proper place in the extension, and there would be rooms for making the stereotype and electrotype plates and for cleaning the formes. This last operation is now carried on under the stairs in the passage-way.

THE ELECTORAL LISTS.

During the year 1900, the voters' lists had to be revised preparatory to a general election. Few of them had been touched since the revision of 1895, and the headings and rules of the standing lists were rendered useless by the changes consequent upon the adoption of the provincial franchises. It was a heavy task to go over and re-arrange the electoral roll of the Dominion. Very little of the old matter stood good, for the qualifications were different in the different provinces. To set one and one-third million of names with the information required by the separate laws of the separate provinces was a great undertaking for a crowded office. Very little could be done during the session of parliament, and that extended from February 1 to July 18. It became necessary, therefore, that the aid of outside printing offices should be invoked if a general election was to be held in the fall of the year 1900. This course was decided upon and lists were printed outside, viz. :

In six offices in Toronto, 29 lists. In three offices in Montreal, 10 lists.

It was impossible to go beyond these two cities, because officers conversant with the work had to supervise it, and the staff of the King's Printer's office could not spare more officers than for those two places. All the remaining lists, 158 in number, were done at the Bureau. There was nothing novel in this, for the revision of 1895 was equally hurried and a similar course was then adopted.

As this is the first session of a new parliament, the question of revising the lists is not pressing. The manuscript lists are coming in as before and many of the Ontario lists are complete. Nothing is in from the other provinces. A small vote has been asked for in order that any list required for a by-election may be got ready. If parliament, however, suffers the present law to remain unaltered, a room should be provided for printing the lists independently of any other work. Under present conditions, a heavy task like the reprinting of the electoral rolls cannot be carried on concurrently with sessional work, and even out of session, the extra sessional and departmental work is seriously impeded by a revision. The necessity for additional room compelled the removal of the standing lists to the cellar of the building, whence they are brought up when required, at much inconvenience and with much waste of time. It is important to consider this subject now while there is time, for circumstances might conceivably arise after a few years when it would be of the greatest importance to have an election quickly and it might not be found possible to prepare the lists in time.

A great improvement over former years will be noticed in the time of issue of the departmental reports. The copy has been prepared earlier and the proofs have been read more promptly. An effort was made to get the reports out before the meeting of parliament, and it has, in the main, been successful. By sending in early copy the machines could be utilized for setting the plain matter, which would have been impossible if copy had been held back as formerly until a short time before the meeting of parliament. The machines provided are just sufficient for the daily work of parliament, and no more, and that work must be done day by day, no matter what else has to wait. When, however, report copy comes in early enough to utilize the machines for setting it the work is greatly accelerated. What has been done this year may be done every year, and may easily be improved upon with a little additional effort in the compilation of the reports.

It is also proper to call attention in this annual report to the fact that some of the fonts of type in the Bureau stand in need of renewal. The type used for the statutes and the law reports is much worn, and one of the fonts used for departmental reports is also past service. The usual life of a font of type is estimated variously between the extremes of five and ten years, according to the composition of the metal, and it says a great deal for the presses and the workmen that this type has lasted so well through eleven years.

PAPER.

During the last year there has been much disturbance in the paper market, and prices of printing papers have advanced considerably owing to the rapidly growing demand for pulp and the increasing drain for export. Changes in business and disastrous fires also have diminished the number of competing mills and thrown obstacles in the prompt supply of paper. These anomalous circumstances will, however, not continue much longer, as new mills are being built. In the meantime, after a steady fall during ten years, it is not surprising if an advance in price had to be submitted to. There has also been an important advance in the wages of the skilled working people throughout the Bureau, and owing to these two causes the estimates for printing are this year increased proportionately.

REPORTS OF BRANCHES.

The reports of the heads of branches set forth in the following pages will be found to contain the usual detailed information. By the Accountant's report the expenditure and receipts are shown, and the cost of the laws and the cost and receipts of the Gazette. The Gazette has more than covered its expenses. The expenditure on the statutes is shown separately. A portion of this is recouped by sales. The amount of the bills certified for advertising is also given.

The report of the Superintendent of Printing shows the details of the sessional and departmental printing, the number of copies of blue books and other public documents printed and how they are disposed of.

The report of the Superintendent of Stationery shows the purchases of paper and stationery and the mode of distribution of the statutes. The statutes are distributed in accordance with fixed rules laid down by Orders in Council, and beyond that list all copies must be charged for. This is not generally understood even in the Civil Service, and many applications are made under an erroneous impression that they are given away generally. The classes of officials entitled to statutes gratis will be seen by turning to page 42 of the present report. In like manner the 'blue books' are distributed according to a list fixed by the Joint Committee of Parliament on Printing. Beyond that list copies are to be charged for at the prices marked upon them. Again, the Hansards are sent out on lists authorized by the Debates Committees of both Houses. It is not, therefore, possible for the King's Printer to give away these publications unless instructed by the respective authorities concerned therewith. The prices fixed on these publications barely cover the cost of paper and press work. The cost of composition is paid by parliament.

The growth of business in the Stationery Branch is very clearly evident in a short table on page 41. The steady increase year by year is shown, and a comparison made between the volume of business in the year the Bureau was opened and that of the year just closed. The value of the goods sent out is greater by $119,765, or 91 per cent, and that in spite of the great fall in the price of paper. The number of demands is more than double—the number of parcels sent out by post is three times greater—the number of packages sent by express and freight lines is ten times more. This short table deserves attention, for while the business is increasing the pressure of the Printing Branch has compelled large encroachments on the space allotted to stationery. It must be remembered that the Stationery Branch was in active existence for many years before it was removed to the Bureau. The number of employees carrying out the largely increased despatch is the same as it was twelve years ago.

I have the honour to be

Your most obedient servant,

S. E. DAWSON,

King's Printer and Controller of Stationery.

Leaving a net increase of	$ 15,111 61

Permit me to point out the large increase in the business of this branch of the department over that of the preceding year, amounting to $15,111.61, as shown in statement 'C,' and also to the extra work which said increase has entailed. Some idea may be had of the labour involved in carrying on the business from the fact that 41 per cent of the goods supplied on demands from the different departments are despatched by mail in five pound parcels. During the year the number of parcels sent out in this way reached 14,129, the largest in the history of the department. This work is performed with the same number of clerks and packers as thirteen years ago; the expenditure then being $128,463.16, as against $237,017.96 for the present year. The increase is $108,554.80, showing that the business has almost doubled during that period of time.

Another important matter which it is necessary to bring to your notice is the want of room required for the proper carrying on of the work. You will remember that when the Stamp Branch was organized a portion of our small-stores room was taken for this purpose, compelling me to fill the passage-way between the cupboards with stock, and preventing the handling of goods on the trucks. This throws more work on the already limited staff. I might also point out that owing to the storing of the voters' list plant in the basement, part of the room which is necessary for the storage of parliamentary print, as well as other paper, has been taken from what was at no time a large enough space to accommodate these lines. You will remember that during the past year the demand for paper was so great that orders could not be filled within any given time. This demand still continues. The necessity of abundant room being available so as to enable a stock to be kept ahead is evident.

Details of all the accounts will be found in the statements annexed, viz.:—

'A.' A statement of expenditure and issue by months for the year ending June 30, 1900.

'B.' A general statement of expenditure and issue of goods.

'C.' A comparative statement of the issue of goods for the financial years 1898–99 and 1899–1900.

'D.' A general statement of accounts for the year ending June 30, 1900.

'E.' Comparative statement of business transacted in the Stationery Office from 1886–87 up to 1899–1900.

During the year demands on the office have reached 21,928; 2,580 letters were received and 13,277 were mailed: packages despatched by mail, 14,129, and packages and cases sent by rail, 1,060.

The whole respectfully submitted.

F. GOULDTHRITE,
Superintendent of Stationery.

For convenience of reference a full list with prices is subjoined of all the volumes of Reports of Parliamentary Debates which have been printed. It should be noted that the first three years are condensed reports only, and that down to 1880 the work was done by various hands. The present system commenced with the session of 1881.

REPORT OF THE JOINT LIBRARIANS OF PARLIAMENT

To the Honourable the Speaker of the Senate:

To the Honourable the Speaker of the House of Commons:

The Joint Librarians of Parliament have the honour to report as follows for the year 1900.

The literature of the war in South Africa and of the expedition to China has been duly provided.

The various economical questions that are before the public have not been neglected.

The revised statutes of the various American states have been procured, to the date of latest revision.

Correspondence has been opened in order to provide the necessary exchange of documents with the Australasian Confederation.

Several important additions have been made to the section of the early history of America. Among others are the following:

Harisse, H. Découverte et Evolution cartographique de Terreneuve, 1497-1769. 4to Paris, 1900.

DeRoo, P. History of America before Columbus.

Fiske, John. Old Virginia and Her Neighbours. Illustrated.

Hariot's Brief and True Report of Virginia. Ed. by H. Stevens.

Chauveton, Urb Voyage de quelques Français en Floride, édition originale de 1579.

The reprint of the Jesuit Relations, by R. G. Thwaites, has reached the 71st vol.

Attention may be drawn to the importance of the last mentioned Americana. Its translation into English will enable the students in American history, not conversant either with the Latin or French language, to consult these valuable records which have become, as a critic expresses it, the source from which we must draw almost all the historic material of New York and Canada during the first century and a half of their exploration by Europeans.

The Librarians have deemed it their duty at the opening of several previous sessions to call the attention of Parliament to the want of space in the Library. During the last few years all manners of devices had to be resorted to in order to find shelf accommodation for the new books; but the climax seems to have been reached in this matter. It will not be out of place to recall to members of Parliament that the Library accommodation was found deficient when it was taken possession of in 1877. In connection with this, it will be appropriate to quote what the late Librarian, Dr. Todd, presented to Parliament in his report for 1877:—

'So far back as May 14, 1859, when the erection of Parliament Buildings in Ottawa was first determined upon, the undersigned submitted to the Board of Works a memorandum specifying the nature and extent of the accommodation required for the Library. This memorandum pointed out that the Library premises should include one large apartment, with three tiers in light iron galleries, capable of containing 200,000 volumes. Likewise, rooms to be grouped around the centre chamber for the exhibition of maps and pictures, for offices, for private study, and for necessary uses in the administration of a large and growing department.

'Full particulars as to the size and disposition of these rooms were embodied in this memorandum; including the exact number of feet of shelving required for the number of volumes which it was estimated that the Library would hereafter contain. By this calculation it was shown that at least 25,000 feet of shelving would be needed to hold 200,000 volumes of the average size.

'This memorandum was approved by the Board of Works; and printed copies of it were sent to all competing architects, with instructions to prepare their plans in strict conformity thereto. The plans finally chosen corresponded, in general design, with your Librarian's suggestions, and he was notified by Mr. Samuel Keefer, the then Secretary of the Board, that his recommendations on behalf of the Library would be unreservedly carried out.

'As the new building approached completon, and it became necessary to prepare for the transfer of the books, your Librarian caused measurements to be made, to ascertain the shelving at his disposal for the various classes and divisions of the Library; when to his surprise and disappointment it was discovered that only about 7,000 feet of shelving had been placed in the Central Room; which accordingly could not contain more than about 56,000 volumes.'

Members of Parliament will see from the above report, written over twenty years ago, that the question of finding more space for the Library forces itself on their attention.

Among the list of donations to the Library during the past year, special mention should be made of the following:

From the Royal Humane Society, London: A collection of their annual publications, covering the period from 1820 to 1899, in 60 vols.

From the British Museum—Illustrated Guides to the various sections embracing Egyptian, Greek and Roman antiquities, as well as other exhibits.

From Her Majesty's Stationery Office: A useful assortment of legal and parliamentary publications, including a set of the new revision of the Imperial Statutes in 14 vols.

From the Right Hon. The Secretary for the Colonies: A most valuable collection of documents relating to the question of the Boundary between British Guiana and Venezuela, and of the Boundary arbitration regarding Venezuela, together with a rich collection of fifty-two maps relating to the subject matter.

The list of donations to the Library and the List of Books deposited under the Copyright Act have been prepared and are hereto annexed.

The Catalogue of accessions for the year is in print and will be presented to Members at an early day.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. D. DeCELLES.
MARTIN J. GRIFFIN.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable Sir Gilbert John Elliot, Earl of Minto, G.C.M.G., &c., &c., Governor General of Canada.

May it Please Your Excellency:

I have the honour to submit herewith, for the information of Your Excellency, the Annual Report of the Inspector of Penitentiaries for the year ended June 30, 1900.

In doing so I beg leave to submit also a few observations upon the operation of the Act for the conditional liberation of penitentiary convicts, 62-63 Victoria, cap. 49, and the Act extending the same privilege to convicts in jails and other prisons, 63-64 Victoria, cap. 48, which are commonly known as the Ticket-of-leave Acts.

The first mentioned Act was assented to on August 11, 1899, but as the measure was an entirely new one so far as Canada was concerned, it was not deemed expedient to issue any tickets-of-leave or licenses under its provisions until regulations should have been framed, laying down the principles which should govern the disposal of applications for tickets-of-leave. None were issued until November, 1899, when after careful consideration of the regulations in force in the United Kingdom upon the subject, the conclusion was come to that, for the present at any rate, it would be wiser not to frame any regulations fettering the Minister of Justice in respect to the duty imposed upon him of advising the Governor General upon all matters connected with or affecting the administration of the Acts. Certain principles have, however, been observed in issuing these tickets-of-leave. Unless under very exceptional circumstances they are in all cases issued to first offenders only; that is to say, they are not as a rule granted to prisoners who are serving their second term. In advising the issue of a ticket-of-leave, regard has also been had to the age of the convict, the nature of the crime and such circumstances connected therewith as would enable the Minister to judge whether or not the case was one in which there existed a probability of relapse on the part of the convict. Information has also been obtained from the Warden of the penitentiary or prison, and from other available sources as to the applicant's character and conduct. In short, the utmost care has been exercised to prevent the granting of these tickets-of-leave to those not found to be entitled to them on account of their antecedents or their conduct in prison, or both.

It is, of course, too soon to speak with anything approaching absolute certainty as to the eventual results, beneficial or other, of these Acts, but I think the information in my possession warrants me in saying that so far their operation has been attended with very satisfactory results. The figures given in the statistical tables of the report of the Inspector of penitentiaries, come down to June 30, last only, a period of about seven months from the date of the issue of the first ticket-of-leave. But taking the results for one year, I find that in the year following November 24, 1899, the date of of the first ticket-of-leave issued, 145 tickets-of-leave were granted, of which 115 were issued to penitentiary convicts, the other thirty being issued to persons confined in jails and other public prisons. Of the total number, 145, four have been forfeited, as provided by the Act, on account of the holder being convicted of an indictable offence, and one has been cancelled for breach of its conditions, making a total of five licenses revoked, a proportion of 3·45 per cent of the total number issued. This very small proportion of licenses forfeited and cancelled shows at least that the very great majority of the recipients of this favour were not unworthy of it. It leads one to hope that by administering the Act with proper caution the results in the future will be such as to fully justify its enactment.

I have the honour to be,

Your Excellency's most obedient servant,

DAVID MILLS,

Minister of Justice.

REMARKS.

Kingston.—Improvement in the management of this institution has been quite marked, especially in the business and industrial departments.

St. Vincent de Paul.—There is nothing new to report regarding the administration of this penitentiary.

Dorchester.—During the period in which the penitentiary was in charge of the deputy warden a number of absolutely necessary improvements were undertaken which, if carried out, will enhance the safety and convenience of the prison.

Manitoba.—The management of this prison is seriously handicapped by the lack of an instructor capable of carrying on building operations.

British Columbia.—I have not visited this penitentiary since 1895, and consequently am not in a position to judge of its condition. It is evident, however, that an enlargement of the cell accommodation is a pressing necessity.

Regina.—During the past year the jailer has had the assistance of a capable and reliable deputy jailer and bursar. If the subordinate employees were selected with the same care and discretion the value of the prison labour and the security of the institution would be greatly enhanced.

Prince Albert.—The death of Jailer Montgomery occurred in January last. His official record is short but extremely creditable. Since the death of the jailer the institution has been in charge of Deputy Jailer Kerr. A considerable percentage of the outlay during the year has been in connection with works of reconstruction. This was necessitated by the fact that the building was originally constructed without any reasonable regard for sanitation, security or convenience. The expenditure includes also the cost of heating and keeping in order the court-house and attached offices, an expenditure chargeable to the Department of Public Works.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

DOUGLAS STEWART,
Inspector of Penitentiaries.

APPENDIX A

WARDENS' REPORTS

KINGSTON PENITENTIARY.

KINGSTON, 1st July, 1900.

DOUGLAS STEWART, Esq.,
Inspector of Penitentiaries,
Ottawa.

SIR,—I have the honour to present my second annual report (with appendices) as Warden of the Kingston Penitentiary, and to transmit the usual statistical tables and returns from the several departments for the fiscal year 1899-1900.

Our estimate of requirements for the year was $206,374. Original appropriation, $167,000; supplementary, $30,000; total, $197,000. Expenditure (approximate), $183,000; balance unexpended, $14,000.

The supplementary grant was made necessary by the payment of $14,000 for hemp purchased during the previous year and the unexpectedly large cost of binder twine material during the year just closed. Of the supplementary appropriation only about $16,000 was expended. The large supplementary grant was asked because we expected to require during the last month of the year a shipment of hemp and several thousand dollars worth of barrier steel for new cells now in course of construction. The unsettled state of the market, in both hemp and steel, with a tendency to lower prices, induced me to delay the purchase of these commodities in a falling market; hence the failure to use a large part of the appropriation. The fall in market value in both hemp and steel has fully justified my course in delaying purchase till the appropriations for the year were no longer available.

The per capita cost for the year, as will be seen in the Accountant's financial statement, is slightly in excess of the average for this penitentiary, but, considering the decrease in our population, the payment of some $14,000 of the previous year's expenditure from the appropriations for the year just closed and the general advance in cost of all kinds of prison supplies, the increase is less than might reasonably be expected.

The revenue returned to the treasury amounts to:—

From sale of twine	$59,481 78
" product of shops	2,391 13
Casual (sale of old rails, etc.)	3,982 55
Refund of expenditure	765 44
Total	$66,620 90

The casual revenue was largely due to the sale of old and unused steel rails and several tons of scrap at a time when the price was nearly double what it had been for years.

Supplies.—Contracts for supplies were, with few exceptions, faithfully carried out, notwithstanding some of the contractors suffered loss in consequence of advance in market price shortly after contracts were signed. Butter, meat, beans, coal and many articles of hardware were supplied, during part of the year at least, without profit to the contractors. For all these articles the contract price for the current year is considerably higher.

Industries.—By reference to the report of the Chief Trade Instructor, it will be seen that a large part of our supply of labour is consumed on the farm or in making repairs and improvements and constructing new parts to buildings—notably the recelling of the west wing, which, though an extensive work, is rapidly approaching completion, an announcement which, I am sure, you will read with pleasure. Outside of this and the manufacture of twine, we have been favoured with little or no work except the small contract given us by the Department of Indian Affairs for the supply of suits for chiefs and headmen under treaties No. 3 and No. 6.

The foregoing remarks naturally introduce the important but (politically speaking) dangerous subject of prison labour and how to utilize it. How shall we employ convict labour so as to best promote the welfare of the convict and do the most to recoup the state for the expense of his imprisonment? The only rational answer is: "Engage in any work that is healthful and useful and profitable." I am aware that before this answer reaches the ear of the government it is qualified by the addition of the words: "and does not come into competition with free labour and does not interfere with the plans of contractors who may desire to supply the wants and requirements of the state." I am also aware that so long as this latter consideration is paramount there is little hope of finding profitable employment for any large number of men beyond the requirements of our own walled city. I will not discuss the subject further at present, but you will pardon my saying that, aside altogether from the question of profit and loss, I feel that the state is in duty bound to establish industries or otherwise provide employment for our labour such as will inure to the healthful discipline and consequent reformation of the unfortunates in my charge. In this behalf may I indulge the hope that you will repeat your oft-repeated recommendation that we be afforded the opportunity to manufacture, for state use exclusively, such articles as mail bags, mail carriers' uniforms, soldiers' boots, trousers and great-coats, saddles, blankets, bridles and scores of other commodities now furnished by contractors and paid for by the people, who also pay for maintaining in comparative idleness the inmates of our penitentiaries.

The penitentiary farm already gives employment to a fair number of convicts, but the number may easily be doubled either by extension of premises or the conversion of our grain fields into vegetable gardens for the production of kitchen supplies to be used in the prison. I know of nothing more beneficial to the average convict than a thorough course of garden farming under the control and direction of a competent and skilled instructor, and I may, in the near future, ask your assistance in putting this opinion into practical effect. Granting that it is not in keeping with sound public policy to engage convicts in profitable employment and that it is better to support them in idleness, there is no good reason why we should not establish an experimental farm and conduct it for the moral benefit of the prison population. Seriously, however, there is much to be said in favour of making the farm a training school for the better classes of penitentiary convicts.

The quarry and stonecutting departments have been usefully employed in preparing material for the new cells, while the carpenters, blacksmiths, tinsmiths and painters are dependent upon the wants of the prison or its officers for employment.

The binder twine industry is deserving of special mention because it is essentially a government enterprise, manufacturing for the market and competing with other factors of the same article. The factory affords employment to forty convicts, and, notwithstanding the unprecedented high price of material and the misrepresentations of our competitors and the lamentable crop failure in Manitoba and the North-west, we have been able to return to the public treasury a gross revenue of about $60,000, and after paying for cost of material of all kinds, running expenses, including officers' salaries and interest on investment, we have a balance on the right side of the ledger of over $8,000. Not having sold any part of our output by contract, being confronted by competitors who had secured an early advantage in the market, and having especially suffered by cancellation of orders in consequence of the shortage of crops, we are unable to report an empty warehouse at the close of the year, but the season is not yet far advanced, and we hope to carry over no more than our legitimate share of the year's over-production.

I am glad to be able to say, in answer to the malicious misrepresentations of interested parties, that our twine has stood the test amongst farmers, and that from the hundreds of our customers there have come to us not more than three or four complaints as to the quality of our product, while scores have, unsolicited, favoured us with certificates of its excellence. Having secured a firm footing in the markets of Canada, and having the advantage of enlarged experience to aid our management, I do not fear the result of the ensuing year if permitted to conduct the twine factory on lines similar to those of the year just closed.

Regarding the manufacture of twine as compared with other industries in relation to value as prison employment, I am obliged to say that it does not afford the convict so valuable nor so useful a training nor an experience so elevating and instructive as is furnished by most other mechanical employments. The twine factory is not an easy place to discipline. On quitting prison the convict who has learned the management of a jenny or a baller will be likely to find himself vanquished by the army of boys and girls employed in outside factories. Notwithstanding all this, the binder twine industry is a blessing compared to idleness, and I hope that no move will be made to abolish it in this prison until it is decided to substitute something better.

Population—Admissions—Removals.—At midnight, June 30, we had in charge 536 males and 11 females; total, 547. Of these over 17 per cent are repeaters, having previously served one or more terms of imprisonment in this penitentiary. Several are serving a third or fourth term, and one was admitted for the tenth time. Number of life convicts, 34. Of our total population 62 have come to us by transfer from other penitentiaries. Admissions during the year, 179; removals, by discharge, pardon, license and death, 202; reduction of population, 23.

Conduct and Punishment.—Two convicts were reported for assaulting officers during the year. Both were sent out for trial and convicted. One was let go on suspended sentence; the other received two years additional to his previous 20 years sentence. Corporal punishment (flogging) was administered but once, and that was in pursuance of the original court sentence. Of minor punishments for trivial offences there were 195. Eight were sent to prison of isolation until they served six months without report. Of the others, some were confined in 'punishment cell' for periods varying from a few hours to a few days, some were put on half rations, some were deprived of light and books, and others were deprived of a few days' remission. On the whole, the conduct and industry of convicts has been fairly good.

Hospitals.—By reference to Surgeon's report, it will be seen that death visited us 13 times during the year. Though this number is above the average, the records afford no explanation other than mere coincidence. Nearly all were chronic sufferers whose demise was not unexpected. Influenza and pneumonia visited us as epidemics at the usual seasons, but, taken all together, the mortuary and health statistics of the prison compare favourably with those of the outside world.

We close the year with 38 inmates of the hospital for the insane. The number is large and taxes our asylum accommodation to its utmost. Some of the cases are neither aggravated nor incurable; some are. The proper disposition of insane criminals is a serious question, and one which, in the near future, will force itself upon the public for early solution. In my humble opinion an irresponsible human being has no proper place inside the walls of the penal prison.

Some become insane after incarceration; others (too many I fear) are insane before admission. One such was recently removed by order of the Minister of Justice, and there are others who should be removed. If the law in this behalf has, from any cause, become inoperative, it may become necessary, in the interests of humanity, to admit to penitentiary only upon certificate of mental soundness.

Pardons.—His Excellency was pleased to exercise the prerogative of pardon in 26 instances. All the recipients of this favour had served a greater part of their respective sentences and had made a good prison record or had produced certificate of rapidly failing health. In one instance, though pardon was granted, death reached the suffering convicts' cell before the missive of mercy arrived.

Conditional Liberation.—Under the Act providing for the conditional liberation of convicts, His Excellency the Governor General has been pleased to grant license to be at large upon certain conditions to 20 inmates of this penitentiary. Thus far all of these seem to have observed the conditions of their parole and are earning their livelihood outside the prison walls. As conditional liberation is granted only to those whose prison record warrants the belief that they are fit to be at large, the effect upon the general conduct and industry of the more hopeful class of convicts is plainly noticeable. The salutary effect of hope is augmented in proportion to the firmness with which the rule is adhered to—That none are to be liberated through outside pull or influence, nor unless their conduct, for several months at least, has been exemplary to a degree warranting the conviction that longer imprisonment is not necessary to complete reformation.

Some penologists hold that no convict should be discharged directly and suddenly from prison, as the step is too large and too long for him to take at once. Absolute discharge after a period, more or less protracted, on parole, will, no doubt, make easier and safer his reintroduction to society and citizenship. The paroled convict is still, in the eyes of the law, a prisoner, and his release is simply a test as to his ability to maintain himself as an honest man. He is, therefore, more likely to behave himself than if he were pardoned and set free without restraint. And having maintained himself and his character during the time of his parole, he is not very likely to return to vicious habits when the day of freedom arrives. Cautiously administered, the Conditional Liberation Act will prove a benefit and a comfort to prison management and a blessing to the better class of convicts.

Age.—Of our 547 convicts, 27 are under 20 years of age and 6 are over 70. One life prisoner was but 14 when admitted and another is sent to us for two years at 16. The average term of imprisonment for life convicts is 15 years. If the youth referred to above be pardoned at 30 years of age, what can be expected of him? What can be expected of any man who spends 15 years of susceptible life in association with old and hardened criminals? If it be necessary to send boys and girls, mere children, to the penitentiary, it were better to give them the benefit of a five or ten years' course at some reformatory in order to establish some degree of character before admission to the penal prison.

Classification.—The proper classification of convicts in this penitentiary is still contingent upon the completion of the new wing with its modern cells and the adoption of definite and rational rules as to the management of the prison of isolation. When the occupants of the isolate ward are made to constitute one class—incorrigibles, if you like—and the new wings to furnish homes for another and better class or classes, I hope to be able, with your assistance, to arrange for three distinct grades or classes to be distinguished by uniform as well as by location and abode. When this is accomplished, our school population may well be doubled and more time be given for instruction.

Diet and clothing.—But few complaints were made during the year as to the dietary or character of food furnished, but I am aware that frequent loathing is produced by the continuous and monotonous round of soups and boiled meats and the unbroken absence of roast and relish. This I hope to be able to remedy in the near future, by the installation of a large range in connection with our cooking furnaces.

Complaints as to the shirting have been frequent, both from those who have to wear as well as those who have to wash and repair. The substitution of cotton for wool for summer wear will, I feel confident, remove the dissatisfaction and result in a considerable saving financially.

For detail statements as to the work accomplished in the various departments—repairs and improvements—quantity of goods purchased and consumed—the industrial disposition of convicts—the cost of particular services and commodities and other information, I beg to refer you to the several appendices herewith inclosed.

I am thankful for the kindly consideration I have always received at the hands of the Minister of Justice and from every member of the penitentiary branch of his department. To your untiring assistance and direction in every emergency, and the uniform kindness and efficiency of the penitentiary staff I attribute whatever degree of success has attended my administration.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

J. M. PLATT,
Warden.

Kingston Penitentiary, October 15, 1899.

The Inspector of Penitentiaries,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir :—Upon your recommendation and by direction of the Minister of Justice, I attended the annual congress of the National Prison Association of the United States, held at Hartford, Ct., during the last week of September, ult.

Besides the officials of the association (selected from the most advanced penologists), I enjoyed the pleasure and profit of meeting delegates from all the important prisons and reformatories in the Union. The people of Hartford did their utmost to make the occasion one of pleasure as well as profit, and the public welcome accorded the association, forcibly impressed me with the opinion that the cause of prison reform has not only enlisted as its friends and advocates many of the ablest and most influential men in the land, but has secured a firm hold upon the sympathies of the people, especially of the better classes.

On Sunday the pulpits were given over to the members of the Chaplain's association and the church-goers of the entire city listened, both morning and evening, to eloquent and powerful appeals in behalf of prison reform.

On the following morning the work proper of the association began, and the reading and discussion of papers upon every conceivable subject connected with prisons and prison life and prison management occupied the congress by day, while the more important questions were made the subject of speech and essay by prominent penologists and philanthropists every evening of the week.

Having so recently commenced the study of prison management and the application of the principles of penology, I could not fail to appreciate the privilege of improving what, to me, was a golden opportunity. To be associated, but for a single week, with men such as Ed. S. Wright, Z. R. Brockway, Frederick Howard Wines, Charles Dudley Warner, Frank B. Sanborn, Charlton Lewis and others of that notable class, all zealously and energetically engaged in the work of prison reform and prison management was, for me, like a sudden plunge into the very depth of the sea whose shores I had, as yet, scarcely ventured to approach. I heard everything that was to be heard and have returned surfeited with the best thoughts of the age which, by the aid of time and experience, I am determined to digest and utilize for the benefit of the institution for the management and welfare of which I am largely responsible.

A remarkable feature of the congress was the large number of eminent persons in attendance as members of the association who are in no way connected with prison work. Charles Dudley Warner, Howard C. Wines, F. B. Sanborn and many others equally notable, were present throughout and gave valuable aid in all discussions. It is plainly discernible that the prison association is gradually reaching the masses of the American people with its gospel of reform, but there, as here and everywhere, there is a vast amount of old-time prejudice and old-time ignorance and old-time barbarity to overcome before the doctrines promulgated at the recent congress will be made practicable by the consensus of public opinion.

Notably amongst the addresses delivered, I may mention that of the Hon. C. T. Lewis, of New York, on the 'Indeterminate sentence,' which was as remarkable for its elegance and eloquence as for its powerful arraignment of old-time opinions and practices.

Carrol D. Wright, in an exhaustive paper on prison industries, showed that great advancement had been made in the last twenty years, but that they encounter the same abominable and senseless opposition in the United States as we meet with in Canada in extending the blessing of industry to the inmates of our prisons

Warden Wolfer, of Minnesota, ably pointed out the connection between prison industries and discipline, and the discussion upon this and other papers constituted one of the most interesting and valuable parts of the programme. Altogether, the occasion of the congress was, to me, decidedly interesting, pleasurable and profitable. I needed just such a lesson, and I am thankful to the Minister and yourself for enabling me to improve the opportunity when it presented itself.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

J. M. PLATT,
Warden.

(APPENDIX B.)

REPORT OF THE KEEPER OF THE PRISON OF ISOLATION.

Memo. for the Inspector.

I have the honour to submit my annual report for the year ended June 30, 1900.

This department was opened in 1894 with misgivings on the part of many for its success, but I may say as to myself I never entertained any doubt of it being made a success, and to-day, the good results attained are manifest. This is very gratifying indeed.

I believe that the more completely isolated the place is still better results will be achieved, and for this reason I have asked that sheet iron doors be placed on entrance to corridors, ranges one and two, block A, where the penal class is confined; as to this portion too much precaution cannot be taken. Rule 149 of the penitentiary regulations should be strictly adhered to.

The works now in progress are weaving, making mats, brushes, mattresses, knitting and repairing. Much might be said as to the nature of the work suitable for this department.

It is the practice of changing the guards from time to time. This is detrimental to the discipline and good working of the department. Permanent officers should be appointed, and those of experience and firmness.

My relations with the staff, from the Warden down, have been most cordial.

I have to thank you for the courteous treatment and many good ideas given me from time to time, which I have not been slow to take advantage of and put into practice, also with your forbearance of my shortcomings.

Æ. D. O. MACDONELL,
Keeper of the Prison of Isolation.

REPORT OF THE CHIEF TRADE INSTRUCTOR.

June 30, 1900.

Memo. for the Warden.

I have the honour to submit the following report of the various works which have been performed during the year ended June 30, 1900 :—

Water Tower.—This building is now complete and ready for occupation.

North Lodge.—The metal covering of roof having become much worn and leaking badly was removed and a new covering of galvanized iron on rolls was laid.

Roofs Generally.—Several roofs received necessary repairs and painting ; also chimneys repointing.

Hospital.—The outer face of walls of cells, cell doors and windows have been painted, floors oiled, cells whitewashed and cupboards for stores set up in central corridor of ground floor.

Asylum.—Walls of corridors, lavatories, cell door barriers and windows have been painted, four additional cells have been added by utilizing the corridors north end of the first and second stories.

Tin and Paint Department.—This department has been removed from the carpenter shop to the room on second floor, south end of asylum building. By this change more accommodation has been secured for the handling of work. The printing office is also in this room, and all under the supervision of the instructor.

Tramway.—The tramway running through the prison yard and to the quarry had been much dilapidated and had not been in use for several years. The rails have been removed and the rotten ties taken up. Prison yard and the roads have been improved by levelling and grading that portion where the tramway had been.

Deputy Warden's Quarters.—The bath room in the deputy warden's quarters has had some alterations, new floor laid, walls wainscotted four feet high and all neatly painted.

Farm Roads.—The road allowance running north from No. 2 stone barn through farm to the Bath Road was improved by removing the soil to the rock and refilling with stone to grade.

Boiler House.—The three new boilers installed by the engineer have been bricked in, smoke stack made and set up, polished steel doors placed in vestibule, the large steam pump in plumbing shop supplying water in prison was removed to boiler house, a trench for the suction was excavated, mostly in the solid rock and refilled with clay after the pipes were laid.

Warden's Residence.—A cut-stone chimney was built over kitchen ; a passage was made in wall north of Warden's house connecting garden with field.

Tailor and Shoe Department.—These departments have been busily employed in making clothing for Indian Department, uniforms for officers, and convicts' clothing.

Prison of Isolation.—The four hand looms in the prison of isolation have been constantly employed in making towelling. Two thousand five hundred yards of towelling was made during the year. Coir mats were also made with fair success.

West Wing Reconstruction.—This important work has been pushed forward and much work has been done—nearly 500 M. brick and 4,800 cubic feet of cut stone laid, 304 vents (made in blacksmith's department) and the sanitary fittings were built into walls as work progressed. Masons are now busy turning the arches of the fourth or last tier of cells.

General Work.—Constant repairs to buildings are going on, repointing of walls, painting of iron barriers and wood work and whitewashing of interior of buildings.

E. J. ADAMS,
Chief Trade Instructor.

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL PENITENTIARY.

St. Vincent de Paul, August 18, 1900.

Douglas Stewart, Esq.,
Inspector of Penitentiaries,
Ottawa.

Sir,—I have the honour to submit to you herewith my annual report for the fiscal year, 1899, 1900, with all statistical returns required.

CRIMINAL STATISTICS.

The number of prisoners in the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary has gradually increased since I took charge of the institution.

In 1898	the number was	.....	418
1899	" "	.....	447
1900	" "	.....	463

Notwithstanding the increase of the population of the penitentiary, the discipline has been maintained with a very satisfactory success.

Inflicted punishments have been less severe, and the regime followed made as to conciliate the mildness to firmness in the application of discipline.

I have endeavoured by appropriate means to operate the moral reform of the convicts. It is important to study carefully the statistical returns in order to be exactly and correctly posted in the good achieved by the new regime.

Financial Condition.—The summary of the expenditure for the fiscal year ended June 30, shows a total of $94,153.43, and the cost per capita compared with the previous year indicates a reduction from $226.54 to $215.59. This is a result for which we are entitled to take credit, and which will, later on, attain a still more satisfactory point. We have, properly speaking, no revenue at the St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary, because we have no workshops to produce such.

I have the pleasure to state that next year a satisfactory revenue might be derived from the acqueduct of the penitentiary and the electric light, which, according to the orders of the Department of Justice, will be in operation during the present fall, should the population of this village be allowed to enjoy that privilege.

Our revenue, if compared with that of Kingston, which is $37,243.02, especially produced by the binder twine industry, only amounts to $1,673.04, but putting aside the sum raised by that industry, the difference between the revenue of the two institutions is but $1,777.53.

Hygiene.—The report of the physician and surgeon of the penitentiary is an interesting and important chapter in our annual report.

The statistical returns show a state of things which should be remedied without further delay.

The facts as stated are correct as to the instruments used for the preparation of the culinary aliments. These instruments are capable of producing the disorders mentioned by the doctor, as he has recorded in his books, though great attention has been given to the sound and wholesome quality of the food.

I call again the attention of the authorities to the fact. Immediate orders should be given to change the present system and eliminate the cause of the casualties arising from the use of the boilers in the kitchen.

The reasoning of the physician is based upon scientific principles.

The old hospital, as improved, affords to-day the accommodation so much needed in the past by the patients, and if they have not the convenience accessible in the Kingston penitentiary, they have at least improvements which afford them the hygienic means necessary to the recovery of their health.

The isolating hospital for contagious diseases has already rendered important services in preventing contagion. A convict has passed through the phases of typhoid fever of an adynamic type. The state of this patient has caused the physician great uneasiness, but, thanks to isolation, the contagion has not, so far, claimed any other victims.

From an hygienic point of view, the physician's remarks as to the stone shed are in accordance with the facts. The wretched shed affords no protection to the health of its inmates.

I called the attention of the Department of Justice to that fact in my last year's report, and now I can but repeat the advice already given.

I concur also, in the opinion of the physician as to a balcony for the hospital.

Cases of tuberculosis are numerous, very numerous, and the patients must have air and light to lead them to recovery; science and humanity require this improvement.

I share the opinion of the physician as regards the night duty which has, so far, been put in operation in no other penitentiary of the Dominion excepting that of the St. Vincent de Paul.

To protect the health of officers which has been injured by this ultra-exacting duty, in my last, I assumed the responsibility of a change, and the result, to my mind, is very satisfactory.

Insane.—I call the attention of the Honourable Minister of Justice to the fact that avowed and confirmed idiots, recognized as such by the physician's reports, should not be sent, by courts of justice, to the penitentiary, but to special asylums for the insane.

I warmly endorse the contention of Dr. L. A. Fortier as to his right to a ten days holiday as well as the other officers of the penitentiary without loss of salary during his leave of absence. His work is considerable and arduous and deserves to be recognized by the authorities.

Works.—The enumeration of the various works done, up to the end of the fiscal year 1899-1900, will, I hope, be found satisfactory.

Old Hospital.—The old hospital and the surgeon's offices have been enlarged and renovated, and the contagious hospital completed.

New Protestant Chapel.—The new Protestant chapel has been finished and is now open for the celebration of divine service of the Protestant community. It is a finer and much larger place of worship than the former one.

New Stable.—The new stable is a large and well built structure, provided with all improvements for the keeping of the horses of the penitentiary.

I do not refer to other little matters which should be attended to, in the course of the present year, the administration will have to keep an eye opened on the details in proportion as their execution will become necessary.

Repaired Lodge.—The new lodge at the northern entrance to the yard of the penitentiary is being carried on since May 1, and will be an imposing structure, worthy to match with the front building of the penitentiary. Besides the gate entrance, spacious rooms will serve in the interior, for the stores, elevator and armoury. A great inconvenience will be removed in having the firearms—revolvers and rifles—taken away from the inside of the prison proper.

The improvements on the front roadway have been continued by the excavation of the road and the completion of revetment walls and macadamizing.

The west gate has been made more solid and offers, now, more security than in the past.

Sewers.—The temporary works which have been the cause, so far, of many disappointments are pretty far advanced. Preparations have been made for sewer beds, during summer time, in a way to offer no more danger to the public health of the neighbourhood.

Brick-making.—A large quantity of clay has been drawn last winter to carry on brick-making this year, in order to supply, in future, the bricks required for the building of the penitentiary.

As reported in the return of the Chief Trade Instructor, difficult but necessary excavations are being carried on in the yard, to have a pipe duct from the boiler-room, under the building of the industrial department to the new stable, in order to supply the water required. This duct is being built in cut stone.

Piggery.—The piggery which is an important factor in the supply of meat to the steward's department, has been repaired and improved in order to give more space. The farmer has now under his care nearly 300 pigs of a good and selected breed, and expects, in the course of this fiscal year, to produce about 30,000 pounds of pork which will reduce to a minimum the supply of this kind of food (intended for our convicts) by contractors, and be a great saving to the penitentiary. An important addition of pens will have to be made in the next fiscal year to insure that purpose or result.

Many minor works have also been carried on, such as repairs to the breakwater, to the pump-house, to the warden's house, to the dome and dormitories.

The old stone-house, formerly used by the Protestant Chaplain, has been pulled down; its actual state of decay and dilapidation making its further habitation impossible.

The buildings and derricks at the quarry have also been repaired and improved, in order to have a gang of men employed at the exploitation of the stone required for the penitentiary.

A very important improvement has also been introduced by the connection of an internal telephone, with the deputy warden's office, west gate, farm barn and quarry.

Industries.—Industrial departments in the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary have not so far taken very considerable importance.

As a general rule, convict labour had not to compete with outside industrial products, and this I am much pleased to say. Our various departments only manufacture for the following purposes or wants: 1st. To provide the officers on the staff with winter and summer uniforms. 2nd. To supply the convicts with uniforms and discharge clothes, &c. 3rd. For prison labour generally; all that concerns the construction of buildings necessary to the working of the institution and their keeping in repairs. Since I am at the head of this institution all the stone required for the construction of buildings is being extracted from the quarry, cut and laid, under the supervision of competent instructors, by convicts employed in our various departments. Among others, two important buildings were built since my taking charge as warden of this institution by convict labour, and have been completed in the course of the last year viz., a cut stone stable 160 feet long by 38 wide: a fine and solid structure, having, in the interior, the required dispositions to easily distribute the fodder to horses and at the same time secure them necessary hygienic conditions.

The other important building alluded to, is the one known as the North Gate Entrance, intended to give entrance from the exterior to the yard proper; this building is provided with rooms for the storage of goods and provisions of the penitentiary and to ensure the security of fire arms which so far, at the great prejudice of the institution, have been kept in the interior.

This building will, at the same time, be the completing of the inclosure wall and remove the danger occasioned by the old temporary walls.

I understand that we cannot for the present, in the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, have works, shops and industries capable, as the binder twine at Kingston, to assure such a big revenue as to decrease the expenditure.

Conclusion.—Before concluding this report, I feel it my duty to point out matters which will affect the future administration of this penitentiary, in a very sensible way.

The population of the penitentiary is increasing in a fast and astounding degree. Montreal, the metropolis of Canada, in reason of course of its own population (not of its morality) supplies the largest number of criminals sent to the penitentiary. For last fiscal year criminals sentenced from the district of Montreal to the penitentiary, overrated the number sent from all the other districts, including Quebec, Three Rivers, and some other cities. There is no doubt that this movement will continue, and, in my opinion, the Department of Justice has to be ready for any emergencies. We are short of accommodation. We have to day 472 convicts and only 472 cells for the accommodation of that number; the immediate building of a new wing is the foremost object to be kept in view. The fact is that so far it has been neglected in a deplorable manner. Places should be prepared at once and orders given to ensure this result under the shortest time possible.

The next work to be carried out is the erection of a proper and convenient building, to afford the stonecutters' department a sufficient shelter against the inclemencies of the weather and in the same time carrying on their work in any season of the year, without prejudice to the sanitary conditions required for the protection of their health.

Some other minor works are also indispensable. The quarry should be drained without delay, in order to have no stops in the carrying on of its exploitation. Many times in the year the works have to be suspended on account of the flooding of the quarry. This drain will in the same time be of an immense advantage to the farm, in according an excellent occasion to improve it by a complete system of drainage.

In order to give the head of the farming department the opportunity of raising a large number of pigs, and to supply thereby the steward's department with a larger quantity of meat, the temporary addition of pens should be made to the piggery.

National Prison Congress.—Through the kind permission of the Honourable Minister of Justice, I have attended, on September last (23-27) at the Congress of Penitentiaries of the United States, at Hartford, Conn. The convention, considering its work and conclusion, has been extraordinary important. Eminent men, who I may say devote their lives in the study of penal questions in the United States, were nearly all present, and the greatest unanimity has not ceased to reign in all the proceedings. I had the pleasure to make the acquaintance of Frank B. Sanborn, Fred. Wines, A. L. Hart, N. F. Boucher, of North Dakota, Warren Spaulding, of Boston, Bates, of Elmira, N.Y., &c.

The subjects treated by the convention were: 1st. The moral reform of convicts; 2nd. Punishments to prisoners; 3rd. Employments of convicts; 4th. Prison labour; 5th. Indeterminate sentences; 6th. Discharge prisoners; 7th. Treatment of criminals; 8th. Prison discipline. Every subject was treated with a science and devotion to the study of penal matters worthy of general admiration.

The study of penology has wonderful and constant disciples in the United States, and I have to lay before the National Prison Congress my tribute of thankfulness for my happy participation in their proceedings. The wardens of the penitentiaries of Canada should have, in the course of time, an opportunity to meet the American Association on their own soil, and I respectfully call the attention of the Honourable Minister of Justice to my proposal.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your humble servant,

J. A. DUCHESNEAU,
Warden.

APPENDIX TO WARDEN'S REPORT.

Memo. for the Warden:

SIR,—I have the honour to submit my annual report of the various works for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1900.

Contagious Hospital.—Since the date of my last annual report this work has been completed and the hospital occupied by the ordinary patients during alterations and repairs to the general hospital.

Protestant Chapel.—At the date of my last report this work was also in progress, it was immediately afterwards finished and occupied, thus allowing the improvements to the general hospital to proceed.

New Stable.—Exterior work all completed in October last; during the winter months the interior work was carried on. The stable is now occupied though not entirely finished. The carriage washing room, first floor, doors and stairs from ground to first floor have yet to be completed.

New Lodge.—Work was resumed on this building on the 1st of May, and will be continued during the season, as long as the weather permits.

Front Road Grading.—I referred to this work in my last report from which date the work was continued until the season for outside work of this nature closed. The road proper has all been excavated, a small revetment wall of cut stone built on the north side, and a new sidewalk laid, replacing the old one torn up to excavate, the road received a light coat of macadam in the spring. This is considered sufficient until such times as the grading of the ground in front of the new lodge and the main building can be done, when it will be necessary to level the road in a few places and properly macadamise.

West Gate.—Strengthened by putting on steel plates on the outside of each set of gates. Sashes placed in the transoms over gateways, preventing drifting of snow and rain into the passage, and making the interior cleaner and more comfortable for the officers.

Temporary Sewerage Works.—Commenced in the end of April and continued since. The excavation for the main pipe, building of duct under the tramway and formation of man holes has been completed as far as the line of railway, and the pipe is now being laid. As soon as the pipes are connected through culvert under the railway line, the formation of the sewage beds will be proceeded with. The sewage will be diverted from the old system during the summer.

Brick Making.—A quantity of clay was taken out during the months of February and March, but the severity of the season prevented a sufficient quantity being taken out to make bricks this summer. This, coupled with the state of the machinery which was damaged in removing the old yard, prevented the work going on during the fall of the present season. It is hoped that everything can be got ready for making a large quantity of bricks next season, every effort will be made to do so.

Excavation in Yard.—During the latter part of the season of 1899, excavation was made for a pipe duct from the boiler room under shop building to new stable. Work will be resumed as soon as the water is low enough to permit of it, and duct built of cut stone. Steam and water pipes laid from boiler house to stable.

Piggery.—Floors in passages repaired: pens inside and outside divided, giving more space, and additional temporary pens erected for summer use.

Stores.—A vacant room on the ground floor of the shop building has been fitted for the use of the storekeeper, enabling him to keep his supplies in stock, and delivering to the various departments in smaller quantities.

Store for Chief Keeper.—A room in the basement of the main building has been fitted up for the use of the chief keeper for keeping convicts' effects.

Hospital.—The extension and improvements to the general hospital have been carried on during the winter. The removal of the Protestant chapel allowed the addition of a day room to the hospital. Hardwood floors have been laid in both compartments, walls and ceilings cleaned, plastered and painted. Ceiling ventilators connecting with cupola put in, glass doors and polished steel barriers set up in all openings, new bedsteads and mattrasses added. The hospital is now re-occupied and found to meet all requirements of the department. The work of providing a separate office for the surgeon and repairs to the surgery is going on, and will be completed within a short time.

Breakwater.—The pier at the waterworks was found in a bad state of repair after the ice disappeared in the spring of 1899, it received a thorough repairing in August of the same year.

Pump House.—The old stone chimney removed. Stone arch over boiler taken down. Walls repaired and roof painted.

Warden's House.—Roof painted, fences repaired, and the walks gravelled.

Dome and Wings.—All the passages of dome and wings have been painted, galleries oiled, iron railings and pipes given a coat of japan, and radiators painted.

Painting.—Keepers' hall, kitchen, change room, shoe and tailor shop and shop vestibule have all been cleaned and whitewashed where required, and wainscotting and woodwork painted.

Protestant Chaplain's Old House.—This old building in an advanced state of decay was condemned and pulled down in March last.

Quarry.—The two derricks at quarry have been examined, repaired and painted, and a new derrick added, making three in all, with the addition of steel wire cables instead of chains.

Stone Shed.—The derricks at the stonecutters' shop have been repaired, new booms and masts replacing old ones.

Internal Telephone.—The deputy warden's office, west gate, farm barn and quarry have been connected by telephone with the messengers' hall, main building. The switchboard being in charge of the messenger ensures the presence of an officer at all times to give immediate attention to calls. In addition to what has been enumerated, a large amount of general repairs and smaller works has been done during the year. All branches of industry, including tailoring, shoemaking, tinsmithing and blacksmiths, &c., have been fully supplied with work during the year.

GEO. A. PRATT,
Chief Trade Instructor.

DORCHESTER PENITENTIARY.

DORCHESTER, N.B., July 31, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit my first report, accompanied by the usual financial, statistical and other statements from the several departments of the Dorchester Penitentiary, for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1900.

The appropriation for expenditure during the year was $53,900, and the total expenditure amounted to $53,860.05.

The per capita cost was $236.51, as compared with $205.24 for the previous year. This increase is mainly in consequence of gratuities, amounting to $4,795.28 having been paid to four officers who were retired from the service. Another element tending to increase the per capita cost over the previous year, was the fact that the daily average of the prison population dropped from 234 in 1898-99 to a fraction over 219 for the year just ended.

The following tabular statement shows the movements of convicts during the year :—

	Males.	Females.	Total.
Remaining on June 30, 1899.....	222	4	226
Received since :—
From common jails.....	78	2	80
From military prison.....	1	0	1
	301	6	307

Discharged since :—

	Males.
By expiration of sentence.....	59
Pardon.....	15
Ticket of leave.....	20
Death.....	5
Sent to Kingston.....	4 —— 103		103
Remaining on June 30, 1900.....	198	6	204

showing a total of 204 prisoners, a decrease of 22 since June 30, 1899.

There seems to be a marked improvement in the conduct of prisoners as compared with former years, as there were fewer convicts punished and there was but one attempt to escape. With few exceptions, the conduct of prisoners has been exceptionally good and their health excellent.

The farming operations of the year were very successful : hay, grain and vegetables were far above the average. About three acres of unbroken land were brought under cultivation. The cultivated lands are being well tilled and are becoming more productive from year to year. This necessitates the immediate erection of a large barn for housing stock and storing hay and grain. The present barns are entirely inadequate, one of which, the sheep barn, is low in the posts and has a limited capacity for holding hay and grain. Last year there were some sixty tons of hay and grain in stacks. This is not as it should be, as it occasions much waste and loss. The sheep barn could be utilized for sheltering carts, wagons, sleds and other farm implements which are now exposed to the weather at all seasons for want of a building, a condition of things that would not be tolerated for a single season by any thrifty farmer in the country. I hope, therefore, to have your authority to build a suitable barn during the ensuing season.

Bakery.—A building for an additional oven was erected, and the oven is well on to completion. As there was no immediate necessity for this oven, work upon it was suspended to attend to more urgent needs. The old one is giving good satisfaction and is ample for present necessities.

New Stonecutters' Shop.—The foundation of this building, which is of stone, one story high, 137x45 feet, running nearly parallel with the east side of the prison yard wooden stockade, was excavated and the walls commenced last fall. Operations closed on approach of winter. The work was resumed on opening of spring and is being vigorously prosecuted. It will be ready for occupation by the end of the year. This building is intended for convicts preparing stone in winter and stormy weather, for proposed stone workshops and boundary wall of prison yard, which must be commenced at once, as the wooden stockade enclosing the yard cannot much longer be depended upon for safety.

Reservoir.—A new stone reservoir was constructed adjoining the wooden reservoir north of the prison, but, owing to some defect, would not at first retain water. In order to remove the defect if possible, an additional coat of cement, thought to be sufficent, was applied to the bottom. It leaked still, however, when it was again dried off and another coat of cement applied, this time it is not known with what result, as the water has not yet been let in, but there is every hope that the result will be satisfactory.

Tailors' and Shoemakers' Shops.—The upper story of the mill building was fitted up for a tailors' and shoemakers' shop, and these trades are now carried on there, having been removed from their former cramped rooms on the north side of the yard. Here there is more room and better facilities for effective supervision. A new tailors' furnace was put in this room.

Kitchen.—No improvement has been made in the kitchen. The same antiquated system continues, and the same cooking apparatus, except that a new range has been installed for the officers' mess. It is hoped that during the winter a new and proved system will be provided.

Laundry and Bathing.—The bathing and washing facilities are antiquated and almost useless. Steps are being taken to have installed this autumn modern and up to date apparatus.

Railway Siding.—Considerable work has been done on this siding, which is well advanced towards completion. Work was discontinued on account of wet weather and the nature of the soil. The culvert will be built and the siding finished during dry weather in summer.

Employment of Convicts.—The building of the new stone workshops and the preparation of stone for the contemplated stone prison yard wall gave employment to a large number of convicts, and in connection with this, the regrading of the prison yard, east of the dormitory, to the depth of some three feet, to bring it in conformity to the ground floor level of the new stone shops, employment is assured to all the prisoners able to work, who can be spared from the farm and workshops, for many years to come, as well as to a large number of teams. I presume your approval was obtained before the work was begun.

My thanks are due to the officers of the staff for their unvarying kindness and courtesy towards me since assuming the duties of my office, and for their willing assistance in maintaining the discipline of the prison.

I have the honor to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

J. A. KIRK,
Warden.

MANITOBA PENITENTIARY.

STONY MOUNTAIN, MAN., July 31, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit herewith reports and statistics in connection with the Manitoba Penitentiary.

The movements of convicts during the year were as follows :—

The daily average during the year was 111·6, as against 102·7 in the previous year.

The conduct and industry of the convicts during the year, with few exceptions, has been good.

Besides the usual reports, I attach a short report as to the progress of works, from Chief Instructor E. J. Adams, of Kingston Penitentiary.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

A. G. IRVINE,
Warden.

Appendix.

Memo. for the Warden.

I have the honour to submit a short report as to the progress of works at Manitoba Penitentiary for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1900.

Main Prison Building.—The recovering of the roof of this building with galvanized iron is about completed, very little remains to be done. All visible portions of the wood work have been covered with iron, making the roof fire proof from the outside.

Laundry Building Reconstruction.—Considerable work has been performed—brick in places renewed, more substantial barriers placed to all window openings, wood work of roof is well advanced, galvanized iron roofing is being prepared. Fair progress has been made on this building for the last two months, and if continued the building should be ready for occupancy about the first of January, next.

Slaughter House.—This building has been constructed adjoining the piggery, size 20 by 25 feet, one and one-half stories high, brick walls, roof covered with galvanized iron shingles, ground floor of cement, with deep gutters in same leading to six-inch trap, necessary apparatus has been set up for the dressing of hogs and cattle, a deep well has been sunk and provided with a pump.

Basement of Prison.—The wooden floors in basement have been removed and cement floors substituted, the wood floors were rotten, unsafe, and unsanitary. The wood stairs from basement to main hall have also been removed and replaced with cement steps laid on brick foundation.

Boundary Wall.—Fair progress has been made on this work, a large gang of masons and stonecutters being constantly engaged.

Condition of the Buildings, Officers' Quarters.—I find that most of these buildings are in need of repairs. I am informed that they have had very few repairs or paint since 1886, when they were built. The roofs in nearly all the houses will require reshingling and matched sheeting; the exterior wood work of houses and sheds needs at least two coats of paint; the foundation walls are built on the natural rock, no excavation, this allows the cold air to come up through the seams; by plastering the inside of walls and filling in area inclosed by the walls with débris, this fault would be remedied.

Hospital.—The roof of this building which is covered with wood shingles, leaks badly, and has been patched frequently; should be covered with metallic shingles as soon as possible.

Warden's Protestant Chaplain's and Deputy Warden's Quarters.—These quarters are in fair condition, except in a few places in warden's quarters; the kitchen requires a new floor; and new steps to front entrance are needed.

Prison.—The galleries of the ranges, which are of wood, should be renewed, as they are much worn.

E. J. ADAMS,
Chief Trade Instructor of Kingston Penitentiary.

BRITISH COLUMBIA PENITENTIARY.

New Westminster, B.C., August 24, 1900.

Sir,—I have the honour to submit my annual report, accompanied by usual statistical and financial statements for the year 1899-1900.

The appropriation for this institution for the year was $47,700, of which we expended $40,583.18, returning to the Government the sum of $7,116.82.

In comparing an institution of this size with larger institutions, as to per capita cost, it should not be forgotten that living here costs much higher than at any other penitentiary in Canada, also that we have a staff here equal to the handling of three hundred convicts in a modern constructed prison with a stone wall inclosing the premises.

If permitted to enter into the manufacturing of some Government necessity, say military clothing or mail bags, it would greatly reduce our cost.

The repairs to the penitentiary have been well kept up during the past year, which further increases the per capita cost; we also suffered the misfortune of having about half of a mile of our twelve-foot fence blown down, also the greater part of our prison roof taken off in a severe wind storm last fall.

The water supply has proven satisfactory, but it will be necessary to purchase a much larger pump for the work.

I was favoured with a visit from the Minister of Justice last October, although the time at his disposal was limited, he visited every department and granted interviews to all officers and convicts who desired to speak with him.

I hope by next year to report on the progress of our new addition for cell accommodation, as Architect Adams has been promised to visit us and report on the matter.

By an agreement made by the civic authorities and the Minister when he was here, we have carried out our instructions to macadam all Columbia street in front of our premises, with broken stone taken from our ravine, the city supplying rock-crusher, engineer, and feeder, we supplying the balance of labour necessary. I am pleased to say that an excellent road has been constructed which makes it possible to open the windows of residences in the vicinity without clouds of dust covering everything within. We have also widened the road in front of the gate by building some cribbing.

The following tabular statement shows the movement of convicts during the year just closed :—

By your permission I purchased sixty volumes of 'Histories of all the Nations of the World,' for the general library. I trust you will grant authority to purchase more books of a lighter nature to make the library more attractive and readable.

I also intend to take down the walls between the two chapels and bring them into one, as both chapels were too small and not sufficiently ventilated for hot weather; by this means more room and better ventilation will be given and in the event of constructing a new chapel, this can be turned into a school-room, which both for size and convenience, will be much better than the present one.

All the officers have been faithful in the discharge of their duties; discipline of the prison has been well maintained during the year; we have had one death, a Chinaman, by suicide, and no escapes.

Again regretting that I have not been favoured with a visit from you this year,

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

J. C. WHYTE,
Warden.

APPENDIX B.

SURGEONS' REPORTS.

KINGSTON PENITENTIARY.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 27, 1900.

SIR,—In accordance with the requirements of the Justice Department, I herewith submit my annual report for the year ended June 30, 1900.

It has been said that the lessening of a crime of a country is an object worthy of the best thoughts and the best efforts of our best men. Notwithstanding all the attention the subject has received by those who have made it a study, it still remains one of the most perplexing of social problems in this and in every other country. Goethe once remarked, that if you want to improve men you must begin by assuming that they are a little better than what they appear to be. Any scheme so far advanced for the abolition of crime, or the improvement of recalcitrant man, is yet, I fear, in the region of dreamland. Investigations for the solution of this vexed question would require to be carried on along entirely different lines of research from that which have hitherto been pursued. Crime, to a large extent, is a psychological manifestation, in which heredity plays an important part. The virus of pregenital criminalism, degeneracy and disease being in the blood, one has to look backward to its cause. In the majority of prisoners, therefore, it would be as difficult to effect a reformation in their criminal inclinations, as it would be to remove the impurities of a stream by filtration of the water, below the source of its contamination.

In making these few prefatory remarks, I have done so in order to give an idea of the peculiar mental and physical organization of a large number of the prison population.

The prison during the year has been absolutely free from any epidemics, which in a great measure was due to the perfect sanitary condition, the absolute cleanliness of the cells, wings and other parts, which, in order more securely to guard against disease, have all been thoroughly renovated. Due regard has been given the subject of ventilation in the various departments and there have been no complaints on this subject. I am, however, convinced of the necessity of the introduction of some better system in the wings and cells. Now that the new electric plant is assured, the subject might be considered.

The sewage system has been operated in a most satisfactory manner. These quarters have been kept clean and free from offensive odours, and the filtering beds receive that care and attention which are necessary for keeping them in working order. The engine room has been whitewashed and thoroughly renovated, the adjoining rooms are kept clean, and the other parts give evidence of having received ample attention. A full supply of disinfectants is constantly at the disposal of the overseer, who uses them with good judgment. The disposal of sewage here is far ahead of anything of the kind in any public institution in Canada.

It is scarcely necessary for me to refer to the entire satisfaction given in the heating arrangements of the prison. In my visitations to the various departments during the cold season there has always been the same uniform temperature prevailing. To many prisoners who, when free, scarcely know what heat and comfort mean in the winter season, such a place is a boon. The engine rooms are clean and in a sanitary condition and everything looks bright and clean.

Next to air, water is the most important of all substances necessary for human life. The water used for drinking purposes has been entirely free from all deleterious substances during the past year. Chemical examinations made by me several times during the year failed to reveal any organic or disease-producing substances. It is perfectly clear, cool, free from odour or taste, well aerated, of a mild degree of hardness and is a good potable water. A polluted water may carry the organism of infectious diseases and produce epidemics of fever, cholera, dysentry and malaria. The large tanks used as receptacles for water used for other then drinking purposes have been wisely abolished, and there is a direct connection made by pipes from the tower to the various portions of the prison.

In consideration of the large number who come to prison broken down in health and afflicted with disease, some of which might be classed as incurable, the standard of health maintained has been as good as in former years. There are at present in prison a large number, both young and old, whose constitutions are in a dire condition of bankruptcy. This is not from prison life; on the contrary, it is a matter of daily observation that the large majority entering prison in a depressed state of health improve under the influence of a more regular life and become physically rehabilitated. It is a noticeable fact that habitual offenders or recidivists, those without any trade or calling, form the largest contingent of those whose health require attention. Few artisans find their way to prison.

A change of employment occasionally is to be recommended for prisoners, with great advantage to their mental and physical condition, as a monotonous labour of any description, especially when there is no return for it, has a very depressing effect. The difficulties, however, surrounding any move in this direction are quite obvious to those acquainted with the routine of prison work.

The food supply has been of the best quality, abundant in quantity and served according to regulations. Any complaints regarding the quality and quantity of the food were, on investigation, found to be groundless. A good supply of vegetables was furnished during the year. The kitchen, kitchen utensils and dishes in this department are kept clean and bright and give evidence of careful management. The usual odour found in kitchens does not appear to prevail here to a large extent, as the regard paid to ventilation and sanitary matters prevents them from being much in evidence.

The west wing, with new and commodious cells, is being pushed rapidly towards completion, and when finished will be a great improvement, particularly as regards the cells, which have many things to commend them. The ventilation is perfect and all the appointments are in accord with modern sanitation. Valetudinarians and prisoners convalescent from acute or other diseases could with great advantage be recommended for cells in this portion of the prison.

The conditional liberation of prisoners now in operation has been so far successfully applied, but it yet remains to be seen whether its adoption will be productive of salutary results. Certainly for those whose health cannot be said to be good, a curtailment of the original sentence, under the amendment, would be of great value.

As usual a large number of young men who have been brought to this country as waifs, find their way to prison. With no one to restrain them in the indulgence of their passions, or to develop their nobler and to curb their criminal instincts; with a bad heredity and a deserted condition without any emendatory influence, they soon develop vicious propensities and swell the ranks of the criminal class. To these I would say imprisonment is often unjust and liberty dangerous. A special educational or industrial school, or reformatory for first offenders of this class, would be in accord with modern philanthropy.

Your insructions regarding the examination of the police officers were carried out. In Italy applicants for the position must be young, erect, intelligent, quick, educated, and are obliged to go through a preparatory training school before they are considered qualified to take the position, as it is only in connection with the actual service that the desired qualifications can be obtained.

During the year a number of guards were invalided by disease contracted at their own homes, as in most instances the sanitary surroundings of their premises were not the best, and disease could be traced directly to this. Fortunately no deaths occurred amongst the officers.

In view of an epidemic of smallpox, I have, during the year, vaccinated every prisoner who did not show a mark of previous vaccination. The people have the confidence of the scientific principles embodied in the application of the vaccine virus today as when they were first transmitted to the world by the immortal Jenner over a century ago. Some of those vaccinated became very ill and were taken into hospital for care and treatment on the first intimation of their indisposition.

The practice of judges ordering flagellation as an addition to the regular sentence of penal servitude, should be abolished, unless it be specified that the ordeal be carried out in the county jail. In the prison the contemplation of that portion of the sentence frequently impairs the prisoner's health and undermines his constitution. After the infliction of the penalty prisoners frequently improve physically on account of being relieved of the mental strain.

As usual a contingent of men, many of whom are habitual offenders far advanced in years, are being sent to us. Having reached a stage when all the vital phenomena have almost fulfilled their evolution, they are unable to perform any work, and when not occupants of the hospital are constantly under medical care.

It is here worthy of remark that the health of prisoners who are bright, intelligent, and who possess some degree of education, is generally good, whilst a lack of education, which generally obtains amongst the criminal class, points not unfrequently to a depraved condition of health. It is believed by many that education does not diminish crime; in fact, there are those who believe that education given the prisoner makes him more dangerous. As a result of extensive observation and study, I am convinced that education does not increase crime, nor does culture engender it. Education serves to strengthen the character, promotes mental and physical health, and tends to conduct from devious paths and assists in remoulding men who have been imperfectly cast for citizenship. According to Plato the profoundest of Greek philosophers, 'Education is to place youth in happy circumstances in which no sights or sounds of evil, or allurements of passion, can hurt the character or vitiate the taste. They are to live in an atmosphere of truth, the breeze always wafting to them impressions of truth and goodness.'

The unreasonable delay in carrying into effect the sentences of our criminal courts necessitating the prisoners languishing in the county jails, which are, as a rule, damp, cold and poorly ventilated, for weeks and in some cases months, merits more than a passing notice. Many prisoners are brought to us, who attribute their impaired condition of health to the bad sanitary condition of these county institutions. Combined with this might be mentioned a lack of personal hygiene, which in some cases has been remarkable. Rheumatism, affections of the lungs, ears and eyes, are the most frequent diseases from this source.

The attempt to classify prisoners which has been made in certain American prisons, has not been so far successful. Whilst admitting the desirability of such a scheme I am convinced that no classification could be successful except one based on the mental, moral and physical characteristics of the prisoners. A plan approaching this basis would have a general healthful influence.

The hospital has been kept clean, well ventilated, lighted and heated. Every portion of it has undergone a thorough renovation and the painter's brush has given such touches as are in harmony with the surroundings. The floors have been waxed and polished, giving to the wards a very neat appearance. The cells in the hospital are bright, and the sick receive every care and attention. The orderlies are punctilious in carrying out instructions, and the attention bestowed upon the sick by them is fully recognized. The best quality of standard drugs with the most recent additions of reputable therapeutic effect, complete our medical armamentarium.

In consideration of the large number in prison, many of whom perform outside work in dangerous positions, no serious accident occurred during the year.

Criminal Asylum.

This hospital for insane criminals is a necessary adjunct to the prison, where prisoners from the prison proper, manifesting symptoms of mental obtusity, or harbouring homicidal or other delusions, are committed for care and treatment. So soon as their mental health has been restored, they are discharged back again to the ordinary prison to resume their wonted employment.

The addition of the new cells to the general ward has greatly increased our facilities and will relieve us of any congestion which might occur.

The large day-room where the patients can amuse themselves when the weather does not permit of their going out in the yard, has been completely renovated and the wood-work painted.

The closets which are of the latest construction for asylum use, operate with ease, flush well, give every satisfaction, and are always found in a sanitary condition. The corridors and cells in the sleeping apartments have all been painted and are kept scrupulously clean. The patients maintain a uniform standard of good health, and there has been little sickness. The care of the sick here is carried out on the same lines as in our regular hospital. When required, faithful, intelligent, and competent orderlies who are taught to understand the principles of good nursing are always at our disposal, and are ever ready and willing to carry out instructions. In the ordinary lunatic asylums, female nurses are employed in a separate building only, to look after the quiet and harmless patients who become afflicted with some bodily ailments. Suitable employment is given those who are able and willing to work, a majority of them making themselves generally useful. Games of various kinds are indulged in, in the spacious day-room, and the large yard which is always in good order, offers ample opportunity for enjoyment and out door exercise. In the treatment, firmness is always combined with kindness, and one has always in view the removal of an affliction than which there is none which affects so keenly the finer sensibilities of our nature. As will be seen below eighteen patients have been completely restored to mental health, and thirteen have so far improved as to resume their ordinary employment in the prison proper.

The operation of the new law governing the admission of prisoners into the prison who are adjudged insane by the surgeon, is now in force. The law clearly states that if at any time within three months after the receipt at the penitentiary of any convict sentenced to imprisonment therein, it be reported by the surgeon to the Minister of Justice, that the said convict is insane, and was insane, at the time he was received at the penitentiary, instructions will be issued for the removal of the prisoner to the jail or other place of confinement from which such insane convict came to the penitentiary. This amendment to the Act is a wise provision, and I trust will be acted upon with commendable promptitude. One insane criminal has already been transferred to the Brockville asylum, and two others who were pronounced insane by me when they entered prison, await removal.

It must never be lost sight of that our insane criminals belong to a sanguinary class and require that care and disciplinary guardianship which could not elsewhere be accorded them, and being in a penal institution an escape of one of them would be a serious affair. Statutory enactment requires that every insane felon, that is, becoming insane during imprisonment, shall undergo his sentence of penal servitude and under the circumstances his mental condition shall not afford him a valid exculpatory plea.

The capricious views, in which there does not appear to exist a widespread community of opinion, as to the origin of crime being at evidence of some mental affliction, hinging on the theory that crime is so hideous, so revolting and so unnatural, that one must be devoid of all reason to commit it; are about as illogical as to aver that every lunatic is a criminal. Those who reason from this hypothesis have much to learn of criminosity and insanity. Extensive observation however, has convinced me that many criminals and lunatics are closely allied and have many things in common, such as instability of certain passions, morbid excessive vanity, emotionality and exaggerated sense of the ego, making the borderland which divides them often illy and and unsatisfactorily defined. There being no recognized standard of mental soundness it is difficult to designate the qualities which make up a sane mental organzation, but so long as one can make his speech and actions conform to the general conception of sanity, his right to individual responsibility is not questioned. As amongst criminals so amongst the insane, there appears to be at certain times a profound psychical change which so completely overwhelms their mentality as to render them liable to commit violent acts, the accomplishment of which gives them relief, and dissipates the morbid impulse of a neurotic temperament. A few epileptics find their way to prison, and are soon admitted to our care. The well known tendency of this disease to weaken the mental faculties often lays the foundation for moral delinquency. It has been estimated that crime prevails in 11 per cent of epileptics.

It must not be forgotten that our insane are undergoing an expiatory sentence and no matter how absurd or wild their delusions, they are always able to appreciate this fact and often meditate on schemes for escape. Fortunately when the termination of their sentence arrives, with the exception of an occasional chronic case, they are restored to their usual mental health and are set at liberty. A chronic case, having no friends, is sent to one of the provincial asylums at the end of his sentence, according to the stipulated terms of agreement. If he is a dangerous and disturbed patient he is sent to Hamilton asylum where by an order in council a small criminal asylum known as 'East House,' has been erected for the reception and retention of insane criminals.

Dr. Xalabarder, Spain, in the course of his letter to the Minister of Justice, referred to my report on the criminal insane in Canada, in the following complimentary terms :— 'Will you also thank Dr. Daniel Phelan for me for the valuable information he has forwarded, and which will be of great service to me for the object I have in view. In a few lines he has given many important details, original thoughts, and useful observations, which prove how thoroughly he is acquainted with the subject on which he writes.'

The number of insane in our hospital at end of year was 38 ; admitted during the year, 31 ; admitted from the prison alone, 23 ; transferred to provincial asylum on expiration of sentence, 2 ; discharged cured, 18 ; improved to resume work, 13 ; received from St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, 2 ; from Dorchester, 3 ; from Manitoba, 3 ; transferred to county jail from which he came, according to amendment to Penitentiary Act, 1.

Prison of Isolation.—This portion of the prison has been kept in good order and is always neat and clean. The health of the prisoners has been good, sanitary arrangements perfect, heating and ventilation satisfactory. The food has been delivered with promptitude and there have been no complaints regarding either quantity or quality. Prisoners are released from here into the general prison in good physical condition. If there are any so disposed to lead a better life and become peace-abiding citizens they will have opportunities here for reflection and reformation. They are free from corrupting associations and vicious personal environment, and as a consequence improve in health. Old offenders, for whom the straight and narrow path has no attractions, are returned here with regularity.

Popular ignorance has confounded the 'solitary system' with the 'separate' or 'isolation' system as carried on here. The 'solitary' system consisted in shutting up unfortunate offenders in subterranean cells without light, books, exercise or employment, and as a consequence mental and physical disease was the result. The fictitious stories regarding the production of insanity by the separate or isolation system are not founded on facts and originated from the experiences of the solitary system. The prison of isolation is the best place as a safeguard to mental equipoise, and no case of insanity so far could be attributed to it.

Female Prison.—Owing to the expiration of the sentence of so many female offenders, and consequently their release from prison, only twelve remained in the wards at the end of the year. The health of the inmates was very good, no sickness of any consequence having occurred during the year. As usual the place is kept scrupulously clean, and in the cold season, warm and comfortable.

Prescriptions.—The number of prescriptions dispensed during the year, independent of hospital patients, amounted to:—For officers, 655 ; isolation ward, 741 ; hospital for insane, 237 ; females, 254 ; prescribed for males, 5,118 ; teeth extracted, 239 ; number of days in hospital, 4,702.

I desire to express my appreciation of the earnest coöperation I have received from the warden and the zeal and efficiency displayed in the discharge of his duties by Mr. Gunn, hospital overseer.

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL PENITENTIARY.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT, August 1, 1900

SIR,—I have the honour to hand you my annual report for the year ended June 30 last.

On July 1, 1899, the penitentiary population was 447 ; on the first of July last it was 463, an increase of 16.

By an analysis of my journal I find that the number of cases treated by me has been 2,374, which is so enormous that I am again forced to declare that the health of the institution is far from satisfactory.

And like the last, this year shows that it is the alimentary canal which is chiefly the source of the trouble as the following figures will exhibit :—42 cases of anorexia, 34 cases of colic, 60 cases of dyspepsia, 101 cases of dysentry, 392 cases of diarrhœa, making a total of 629 cases of troubles of the digestive tube.

Diarrhœa is chronic in the institution and is quite independent of climatic conditions, since each month has furnished its proportion of the alarming total 392, viz. :—1899—July, 55 cases ; August, 49 ; September, 11 ; October, 21 ; November, 38 ; December, 29. 1900—January, 34 cases : February, 36 ; March, 28 ; April 22 ; May, 34 ; June, 35 ; total, 392.

The adverse influence exercised by the troubles of the digestive canal over the economy of the convicts, will serve to explain the large number of cases of debility mentioned in the list of maladies treated, viz., 161, to which must be added the depressing effects of the penitentiary routine and the hard labour exacted from the convicts in certain departments, when the number of cases of palpitation of the heart (139) will cause less surprise.

Placed under such unfavourable conditions, I ought to have more liberal recourse than ever to milk, and it was to this end that, in my last report, I pointed out its utility ; also, with the same object the warden recommended its production by the institution, but you are deaf to our representations and, moreover, have made no sign.

One would think that the authorities of the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary have displeased you exceedingly.

In December, 1899, you were acting as warden here, and I presented to you the following report respecting the copper kitchen utensils employed in the preparation of the convicts' food :

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL PENITENTIARY, December 18, 1899.

To D. Stewart, Acting Warden :—

SIR,—The first time I saw the large boilers employed for the culinary operations of the penitentiary, I was struck with the idea of danger offered by the employment of such vessels to the health of the inmates.

The said boilers being of pure copper with their long pipes for the escape of steam, I was compelled to examine them and inquire if there had been some verdigris observed inside of the said boilers and pipes. I received the assurance that no verdigris had been observed and that these pipes were kept perfectly clean by the steam running through the said copper pipes. My fears for a good while remained silent, but in presence of the large number of diseases in the alimentary canal of the convicts, I lately pushed an investigation so far as to discover numerous warts of verdigris growing inside of the said copper pipes.

Copper does not change in dry air, but in moist air becomes covered with a green coat of carbonate, known as verdigris.

In the present case the large and long surface exposed to the moisture is under the most favourable circumstances for the production of the said carbonate of copper, a poisonous salt of powerful action on animals. The soluble salts of copper are no more corrosive when largely diluted, but their action is but irritating or inflaming. The carbonate of copper is one of the soluble salts of the metallic copper.

Experience teaches that copper becomes poisonous with time in small doses. In the present case, we are in presence of fractionally copper daily consumers.

The elimination of copper is slow, being operated by the mucous membrane of the alimentary canal, the salivary glands, the liver and the kidneys.

No wonder now that an immense surface of metallic copper being exposed to an easy production of verdigris, a soluble salt, becomes an active factor in the generation of a multitude of diseases in the alimentary canal of the convicts.

But every convict is not equally apt to become sick by copper ingestion ; it is of daily observation as for many other noxious substances.

The five large boilers actually in use are in bad order, being not coated with tin.

The present cooking system is a dangerous, manifestly a dangerous one.

And I terminate my report with a remark taken from p. 575 of Dispensatory of the United States :—

'Vessels of copper which are not coated with tin should not be used in pharmaceu-'tical or culinary operations ; for, although the metal uncombined is inert, yet the risk 'is great that the vessels may be acted on and a poisonous salt formed.'

In faith of which I subscribe,

DR. L. A. FORTIER.

And what has been done? The parts of the boilers most accessible to soap and brush have been tinned, but the most dangerous part, the inside of the tube, continues to produce verdigris every day in the year and poison the food intended for the prisoners, and the interior of the immense funnel running horizontally under the platform of the kitchen offers 150 superficial feet of metallic copper, exposed to conditions the most favourable for the production of a poison which is soluble and transmissible into the boilers by the condensed steam.

I ask in the name of humanity that this copper funnel may be removed without further delay.

KNIVES AND FORKS.

In speaking of maladies of the alimentary canal, I must say a word, in passing respecting the utensils employed in the civilized world for table purposes. Knives forks and spoons have been in use for ages in the new and old world.

The inhabitants of Turkey and China substitute chop sticks for forks, but at the penitentiary of St. Vincent de Paul, in a civilized country, the use of a knife and a fork has been forbidden for some years.

The convicts have nothing but a spoon to assist them at their meals, and, in dealing with their rations of beef and pork served out to them, they must, perforce, make use of their fingers. This is a great hardship, especially to those who have bad teeth or none at all.

The mastication of food, always of great assistance in the work of digestion, receives no aid from the knife, which is undoubtedly of great value in properly dividing the said rations of beef and pork, and which, when taken into the system in an insufficiently divided state, cause trouble to the organism.

The irritating suppression of the knives and forks, for which you are responsible, is a mischievous innovation and a wound to the self-respect of the convicts who find themselves placed on a footing with the brute. The unfortunate prisoner eats and grinds his teeth while nourishing sentiments of revenge against society.

You have been very cruel in refusing me the use of the knives and forks to a convict totally without teeth and in meeting my request with an impracticable suggestion.

HOSPITAL.

At last our old hospital has been repaired and improved and has been at the service of the sick since the middle of May. Thanks.

HOSPITAL OF ISOLATION.

This hospital for the treatment of contagious diseases has been open since last year ; it is provided with a water closet and bath, modern style.

STONE CUTTERS' SHED.

In December last I presented the following report :—

SIR, —The first visit I made in the yard of this penitentiary, I remarked and considered the stone shed as a wreck, and a report was made accordingly.

The warden, J. A Duchesneau, in his last report says :—'In the yard there is a 'large wooden building called the stone shed, being used to shelter the stone cutters. 'This shed is in such a ruinous condition that its immediate reconstruction should be 'ordered on the same plan as that of the workshop of the Kingston penitentiary.' And yet there is nothing done, nothing ordered even. Not only the shed is improper to the purpose for which it is occupied, but the closets were and are a source of great annoyance to the workers. The horses and pigs belonging to the Government are receiving from you a better treatment than the working convicts gathered under the said shed. It is a sinful neglect, a wilful cruelty inflicted to unfortunate men suffering many moral tortures besides the ferocious bites of our climate.

In faith of which I subscribe,

DR. L. A. FORTIER.

You made a small attempt at the time to improve the retrees. You have not succeeded ; it is more repulsive than ever.

The Penitentiary Act, art. 12, says, however :—'The Inspector, under direction 'from the Minister of Justice, shall visit, examine and report to him upon the state and 'management of all the penitentiaries. And all suggestions which the wardens thereof 'make for the improvement of such penitentiaries.'

What consideration is given to the reports of the warden and physician of the St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary ? None. You remain deaf and do not report upon matters complained of. The 17th art. goes further :—'If the inspector finds, at any time, that the penitentiary is out of repair, or does not possess the proper and requisite sanitary arrangements, has become unsafe or unfit for the confinement of prisoners, or that the same does not afford sufficient space or room for the number of prisoners confined therein, or the requisite amount of shop and yard space for the proper industrial employment of the prisoners, he shall, forthwith, report the same to the Minister of Justice, and, at the same time, shall furnish a copy of such report for the Minister of Public Works.'

You have, often times, seen the shed alluded to, for stone dressing ; you have received my report calling your attention to the necessity of its reconstruction, to the unsanitary state of its easements and you turn a deaf ear and do not make any reports.

Your example is calculated to bring about a great contempt for the laws of our country : one would think that you tremble to do anything for Quebec.

BALCONY.

In my last year's report, it was asked :—'Why a balcony ?' To permit the patients, in hospital, to breathe the fresh air of the exterior and to profit by the rays of the sun

Air and light are the agents of the medicative strength of nature; those agents of strength acting quietly, promptly and in a perfect manner. Summer is the propitious season for the treatment of chronic diseases and also to lay up a reserve of vitality for winter. The humours of the human body running freely through their proper channels, nutrition is improved and the injurious products are more easily expelled. Speaking of the light of the sun as a therapeutic agent, I do not mean you to understand that patients should be exposed to the burning and enervating rays of the sun. No.

I add to-day that modern science, supported by experience, teaches that tuberculosis is curable by the air cure and rest, and for this purpose sanitoria are erected in Europe and America to fight that terrible tuberculosis by the aerotherapic treatment. We have consumptives who linger the whole year round in the cells of the penitentiary; let us come to their rescue by such means as would secure them a truce while waiting for their discharge.

At all events a balcony would be an important help in case of fire. You are aware that the hospital is not fire proof, as the cells are, and should a fire occur when the prisoners are locked up they would inevitably be burned to death. Are you going to turn a deaf ear to this humane suggestion?

Insane.—On the 3rd January last convicts Pierre Godin and Napoléon Dufresne left this penitentiary for the asylum at Kingston.

For your information I may say that the idiot dwarf Oscar Gagné, sent here by the magistrate from Three Rivers, is now confined in the asylum at Beauport. Your negative attitude in this matter is and always will be inexplicable to me.

Night Service.—In December last you introduced into the service a pernicious innovation in condemning seven officers of the penitentiary to permanent night duty, during which they were unable to obtain a wink of sleep and could not be relieved for any purpose. A crust at midnight was all the refreshment they could procure, and at half-past six in the morning they left to go to their beds, necessarily without proper sustenance in most cases, and to sleep, as best they might, during the noises of the day, the traffic, and disturbances incidental to a household where there are children. These officers were unable to procure more than one good meal per day before returning to their duties.

In January last you requested me to furnish a report as to the health of the employees of the penitentiary, and I gladly complied with your request because it afforded me an opportunity to express openly my opinion of the obnoxious innovation referred to. After four months' experience the warden, influenced by the reports of his deputy and the medical officer, has deemed it his duty to abolish the new regulation.

Subsequently, on June 15, you wrote to the warden complaining of the change made and taking exception to my attitude in the matter.

Speaking of the officers affected by the regulation, you say: 'When the change was made it appears that four of the 'invalids' were relegated to the towers, where they were exposed to the inclement weather of that season more than they would in any other position. I cannot find a protest from the surgeon on this point, although it is quite as much within his duty as was his persistent interference with the night staff system.'

I have maintained my attitude to the Department of Justice as follows: 'I did not protest against the relegation of the aforesaid four invalids to the towers because I was happy to see them engaged in a duty securing to each of them a relative rest of body and the faculty of drinking plenty pure and fresh air, and I am to-day amply rewarded by the manifest improvement of their general health, previously broken down by a long night duty, exposed, during whole nights, to the inclemency of fall and winter weather, without having the latitude of warming their trembling limbs at the stove, banished from the yard by his cruel order. The inspector is not welcome to criticise my conduct in the performance of my official duties, for his incompetency and his heinous sentiments against me are clouding his sight when he meets me on duty. Let him be assured that as long as the sanitary interest of the officials and inmates of this institution are being committed to my solicitude I will never fail to my task, and will never allow him the occasion of spoiling the health of any of them by his arbitrary edicts. I will not even permit him to frame an interpretation of the least hygienic fact, because his intellect is being distorted by malignancy, bad faith and pretension. He is completely incompetent from any point of view, and I find him ridiculous while putting ' invalids ' between turned commas.'

I am an 'invalid' protector, and the inspector is an 'invalid' generator.

Further on you tell the warden that the officers on night duty have been prompted by me to plead ill health with the object of interfering with your system, and with threats, great threats, you say that I am meddling with a matter that does not concern me. Pardon me, sir—being officially obliged to treat gratuitously all the employees of the penitentiary, it is certainly a part of my duty to protect them from all causes of sickness, and this is my reason for combatting your tyrannical regulation. I have advised the officers employed on permanent night duty to memorialize the Minister of Justice to ameliorate their position. They are afraid of you, and have not taken my advice. The right to petition is the most sacred right of every British subject.

Drugs Furnished to Employees.—This is a bagatelle, and I must say that I have kept no account of these, having furnished them myself, for the most part, to save myself the trouble of going to the penitentiary pharmacy, but I would accept with pleasure the use of a horse to enable me to visit the employees when they are sick, and you know yourself that they are far from being in the immediate neighbourhood of the institution.

DIED.

1899 September 29.—William Bath, alias Browning, accidently killed by falling. —quest exonerated the institution from all blame.

1900, February 16.—Regis Blanchette, died of pulmonary tuberculosis; 155 days in hospital.

1900, April 27.—Theophile Boutin, intestinal tuberculosis following typhoid fever; 163 days in hospital.

During the year just closed 78 patients have received hospital treatment, these 78 patients were visited 1,695 times. 7,976 consultations were held outside of the hospital, making a total of 9,671 consultations for the year.

Lastly, during the twelve months I have made 55 reports in triplicate.

I am requested to furnish a report on the drugs dispensed during the year.

The request appears to me to be a very strange one.

I have nothing whatever to do with the purchasing of the drugs. I have no official relation with the firm that holds the contract for the supply of drugs to this institution. I am not furnished with a list of such drugs, and, in the absence of such list, I cannot, by deducting the stock in my pharmacy, furnish the information you require.

Before closing I wish to remark, as Dr. W. H. DeWolf Smith of the Penitentiary of British Columbia did last year, that a free vacation being granted to the staff of all the penitentiaries, why should not the medical officers be permitted to enjoy a like privilege, without being called upon to pay for a locum tenens ?

And now I have the pleasure to unreservedly thank all the officers of the institution for their kindness towards me. It is very true that two former employees of the penitentiary have sought to embarrass me in the exercise of my duties. In their intemperate zeal they have accused me of abuse in the use of morphine, but the accusation is not worthy of my notice, since I suspect it would not have been made but to give you pleasure. Please do not put yourself to any trouble on the question of opium and its derivative. Morphine, the active principle of opium, possesses the confidence of the scientific world. Do not stir up the mud of popular prejudice. Morphine will see the envious crowd of pharmaceutical preparations that would vain supplant it, pass away and will remain, (like the Pyramids of Egypt,) through the ages a guardian angel of suffering humanity in the penitentiary as elsewhere. I sincerely hope that you may never be under the necessity of testing its magical power.

DORCHESTER PENITENTIARY.

DORCHESTER, N.B., July 24, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit my annual report for the year ended June 30, 1900.

The sanitary condition of the prison is all that could be expected from its healthy site and proper construction. The general health is largely promoted by the scrupulous cleanliness that prevails. The whole inside of the prison is whitewashed twice a year; the cells once in three months and more frequently, if necessary. They are scrubbed once a week, each wing being swept, dusted, the windows opened and the different corridors thoroughly ventilated every morning. The sewerage system continues to work very well. A portion of the wooden pipe, required to be repaired last season, which had become rotted and threatened to fall in. At present it is giving every satisfaction. The water supply is abundant for all the prison purposes, as well as the officers' cottages and the large stock on the farm. It is of the very best quality.

The food furnished is of good quality, well cooked and supplied to the convicts in ample quantity. I consider the dietary of this prison exceeds that of the average farmer in this country, and is much better than our honest labouring man is able to furnish to his family.

Since last report the tailor and shoemaker shops have been abandoned and a very good shop fitted up in the upper flat of the mill, formerly used as a carpenter shop. This is a decided improvement and much more healthy than the old ones.

The new stonecutters' shop now under construction, and which we hope to have completed this season, will be a great addition to the institution in a sanitary and financial point of view. It will afford accommodation for seventy five stonecutters and stone-breakers, during the winter season at profitable employment, that would otherwise be in their cells, or, if working, it would be at some employment that is generally entirely unproductive.

The old bath-room, used by the men for many years, is now in a delapidated condition; tubs worn out and leaking and the wooden building much out of repair. A new bath-room and wash-house is an urgent necessity, for which, I am happy to say, all preparations are now made by the architect and will be completed as soon as possible, when we will have twelve shower baths of modern construction, instead of the antiquated and now obsolete tubs we have used for twenty years.

The number of prisoners admitted was seventy-nine males and two females. The lads of sixteen and under were five; twenty and over sixteen, twenty-three; thirty and under, twenty-six; forty and under, fifteen; fifty and under, seven; sixty and under, four; above sixty, one. In those were one blind man and one deaf and dumb. The percentage of lads is less than last year, although we still continue to receive a number of boys that should be sent to a reformatory instead of to a penitentiary. The physical condition of the men admitted has been generally better than last year,—fewer of the semi-idotic class. A considerable number of men were received suffering from venereal diseases, some of them of a very aggravated form, requiring prompt and long-continued treatment.

Of the eighty-one admitted, there were found to be thirty-six that required to be vaccinated. These either had no mark of vaccination or marks of doubtful protective character. In every one of these cases they were successfully vaccinated. In the majority of these cases the men came from cities or large towns, where you would naturally think the facilities for having the operation done were greater than in the country districts.

The general health of the prisoners was better than last year. There have been during the winter a number of somewhat severe cases of bronchial affections; not so many attacked with diarrhœa or dysentrey, and, fortunately, none of them were bad cases.

We have had no serious accidents, and I am thankful to say, have not been visited by any contagious or epidemic disease.

Three insane men have been transferred to Kingston, where proper facilities exist for the more successful treatment of this class.

During the month of January last I examined the police officers of the staff and forwarded to you a report on their physical condition.

Five deaths occurred in the prison during the year—one from dropsy, two from nephritis, one from paralysis, and one from tuberculosis.

The number of men admitted to hospital was forty; the number of days in hospital was 2,136; the number of prescriptions to men not in hospital was 6,721; to females, 195; to officers, 134.

June 30, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to present my annual report for 1900.

The usual duties have been duly performed. The visits to hospital patients have been largely in excess of last year, amounting to 1,912. There were ten deaths among those under my charge.

It sometimes, though rarely, happens that a discharged convict is arrested and tried on a charge which occurred prior to his first conviction and was known at his trial, though not placed in the count. The effect of such punishment is to foster a feeling among the convicts that the law is vindictive. It might be better to allow a man to protect himself from the revival of such charges by pleading guilty to them at his first trial. Punishment should cover the whole past as far as known, and a man's freedom should depend alone on his conduct after release.

I have reason to believe that quite a number of men who have served one or more terms in prison are now doing well, leading honest and reputable lives and acting as worthy citizens.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your most obedient servant,

C. E. CARTWRIGHT,
Protestant Chaplain.

J. M. PLATT, Esq.,
Warden.

PORTSMOUTH, July 3, 1900.

SIR,—In making my annual report as Catholic chaplain for the fiscal year 1899-1900, I have nothing of an unusual nature to relate in connection with the duties incident thereto.

The general conduct of the convicts is all that can be desired, and their behaviour, while assisting at the holy sacrifice of the mass and vespers each Sunday and holy day, is beyond reproach. This is, however, I consider in a very large measure, due to the assiduity of the guards in the discharge of their duties during the divine offices. Mr. Geo. Sullivan, guard, is organist for our choir and by his careful training and faithful weekly practices of its members has added greatly to the solemnity of the divine services.

Judging from regular observation, I am pleased to say that order prevails everywhere throughout the institution, and in consequence only the best results must ensue therefrom.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Yours most respectfully,

M. McDONALD.
R. C. Chaplain.

J. M. PLATT, Esq.,
Warden.

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL PENITENTIARY.

St. Vincent de Paul, June 30, 1900.

Sir,—I beg to present my annual report regarding the Roman Catholic chapel.

During the just elapsed year the improvement mentioned for the previous year has continued and increased, so that the number of communions has been proportionately larger, the reverence and piety in the chapel more general, and even the care of cleanliness more perfect.

Our Archbishop favoured us with a pastoral visit and an exceptional mass. His Lordship, in his apostolic charity for all but most burning love for the sufferers, addressed the convicts with heartfelt words of most tender feelings and sincere congratulations for all he so happily witnessed in the institution.

The school is in very good condition.

The library, well provided with good books, affords leisure and learning to an increasing number of serious readers.

We count at present 386 Catholics. During the year 178 have come from court, 2 have come from the Protestant chapel, 133 have been released, 12 have been pardoned, 17 have been licensed (ticket of leave), 15 have been sent to Kingston, 2 have been sent to the Protestant chapel, 2 have died.

Liquor and sloth are the predominant causes of faults leading to the penitentiary. The former incites to the most criminal satisfactions, and the latter, checking noble courage and constant endeavour, prompts to guilty means, hasty aimers at wealth and enjoyments. Only solid religious convictions and strong habits of piety will help society out of such plagues.

Our warden affords me a kind heart and a strong hand, and is therein followed by his whole staff. Let them all accept my sincere thanks.

Allow me, sir inspector, to express here my sentiments of deep gratitude for your constant sympathy and generous help to our chapel and to

Your humble servant,

L. O. HAREL, Priest,
R. C. Chaplain.

On Sunday, the 17th of September, we held our first service in the new chapel which, however, is still unfinished. When completed according to the plans and specifications as approved by the department, it will be a great improvement on the old one. A serious disadvantage, however, is its proximity to the kitchen, as the noise caused by the preparation of meals during the time of divine service is very disturbing to the worshippers. On several occasions the minister officiating had to pause until the noise subsided. It is sincerely to be hoped that some solution of the difficulty may be found which will enable the worshippers to pursue their devotions undisturbed.

It is gratifying to be able to report that the general conduct of the men in chapel continues to be exemplary, while the heartiness with which they join in the singing and the responses is encouraging.

Eighteen of the convicts in my charge have attended the school for longer or shorter periods during the year, some of them showing by their application a real desire for knowledge.

The library has been well patronized by the men generally, while an increasing demand for books of an instructive nature is apparent in the selections made by them.

It is with saddened feelings that I report the sudden and almost instantaneous death of one of my flock on the 29th September, by an accident.

In conclusion I wish to acknowledge the uniform kindness of the warden and officers of the penitentiary generally.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Yours most obediently,

J. ROLLIT,
Protestant Chaplain.

DORCHESTER PENITENTIARY.

June 30, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honor to submit my annual report as Protestant Chaplain of this penitentiary for the year ended June 30, 1900.

On that day I had 115 convicts under my spiritual care, of whom 112 were men, and three women,—as against a total of 131 on the corresponding day of the preceding year; showing a diminution of 16, and therefore, so far, an improvement. How far the new system of granting tickets of leave has affected this showing, I will not say; but I will not hesitate to express the opinion, based upon close observation, that judiciously applied, that system is a very decided advance in the right direction; and already there is clearly visible a spirit of emulation to merit this consideration.

Since making my last annual report the work with which I am entrusted has gone on quietly, steadily, constantly. Nothing startling or out of the ordinary course has occurred, but that ordinary course has been very full of interest.

I am able to report not merely faultless behaviour at all public services, classes, or choir practices, but I am bound to bear witness to something more than that: a sense of reverence that may be felt, distinct and apart from the external decorum of enforced discipline. I have, indeed, no fault to find: so that, after making a large and liberal discount, such as the circumstances require and demand, I think I would be very wrong indeed, if in some cases I did not hope the best.

My bible class, now in its sixteenth year, has, during the past season, been in the two points of attendance and interest perhaps the most satisfactory I have yet had. Although this is a voluntary class, I have had the great satisfaction of an attendance averaging rather more than fifty.

After a period of preparation extending over several months, on Sunday, June 17, I baptized twelve men. There was an entire absence of commotion or unhealthy excitement; but an air of seriousness pervaded the service and all who took part in it. I may add that, by way of precaution, I submitted the names of these twelve men to the warden and deputy warden, as being more conversant with the men's manner of daily life than I could possibly be. They gave them all a good name.

Three of the convicts committed to my care died during the year. Two of the three lay dying in the hospital about the same time. Both were unbaptized at the time, and, after giving them such instruction as they were able to bear, I baptized them, and shortly before their death administered the holy communion. Both expressed themselves as being greatly comforted, and died humbly penitent.

Mr. Papineau continues, in my judgment, to do good work in the day school; and as to the Convict Women's Department, under Miss McMahon and her assistant, Miss Cumming, I wish to add that they are always helpful when I desire to see any, pastorally.

I am debtor to every member of the staff for courteous assistance whenever required.

The following table shows the denominational preferences of the convicts now in my care:—

Church of England	40
Methodists	22
Presbyterians	8

DORCHESTER PENITENTIARY, N.B., July 30, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit to you my annual report as Roman Catholic chaplain of this penitentiary, for the year ended June 30, 1900.

At the close of the fiscal year there appeared inscribed on my register the names of 86 male and 3 female convicts, a total of 89, as against 95 figuring thereon twelve months previously.

Two convicts, under my spiritual charge, died during the year.

The behaviour of the Catholic prisoners during the celebration of divine service on Sunday has been, throughout the year, a source of genuine satisfaction to myself and of undoubted edification to the guards charged with their supervision. The attendance at catechism class has been fair and interest taken therein by its different members commendable.

I cannot refrain from reiterating the fact that, it is a very sad necessity, which compels the civil power to send a relatively large number of young boys to be incarcerated here. They can hardly be expected to be benefited morally. The criminal atmosphere of a penitentiary will naturally foster the yet tender germs of crime in those youthful natures and soon fan them to their full devlopment. In most cases it is an apprenticeship to a life of crime, as inoculated in them by the unavoidable contact with old and hardened criminals. Assuredly they are the ones, on account of their age, who under favourable circumstances, can be expected to be reformed under the benign influence of religion, and a large percentage therefore could be rescued from the destruction of rising passions, and diverted from the incipient instinct of crime. Confronted with such bare facts we are brought to acknowledge that it would be a most commendable action on the part of the Department of Justice to endeavour to bring a remedy to the above existing state of affairs.

The excellence of the sacred music furnished by a good and strong choir, under the efficient management of our zealous organist, Mrs. LeBlanc, is well calculated to help in uplifting those poor souls, and to lead them to their God. I am only sorry to state that the noble efforts of our organists, both Protestant and Catholic, to sustain this good standard of religious music at the prison services, are not seconded, and especially not rendered pleasant by having a better musical instrument than what we have now in the chapel I would beg, Mr. Inspector, to call your immediate attention to this very important matter.

Libraries are well patronized and books regularly distributed. The school continues to do excellent work and is well managed.

I cannot conclude this report without paying a tribute of high encomium to the good and amiable relations existing amongst the different members of the staff. I must also express my very great appreciation of the courtesy shown to me on all occasions by the warden and staff.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

STONY MOUNTAIN, Man., July 25, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit my annual report as Protestant chaplain of the Manitoba Penitentiary for the year ended June 30, 1900.

The duties performed were about the same as last year. Our public service continues to be characterized by deep solemnity and holy awe as though all felt the Divine Presence. Guard Ward still aids us in the service of sacred song and we are thankful for the additional help received from our organist, Mr. Grant. I am happy to be able to state that some of the convicts who have been discharged from here are giving evidence to the fact of a changed life and commanding the respect and confidence of all they come in touch with.

Mr. Beaupré and his excellent staff of monitors are doing good work in the school. My warmest thanks are due, and here tendered, to the warden and his staff of officers for their uniform kindness and valuable assistance rendered me in the discharge of my duties.

DEAR SIR,—I have the honour to send my annual report for the year ended yesterday.

At the end of the year I had thirty-one convicts under my charge. By their conduct they have given me satisfaction generally. Some of them have been doing very well, and I would take the liberty to suggest that they may be granted the privilege of the conditional release.

I have the honour to be, sir,

During the year one female convict was transferred to the Roman Catholic chapel. Those under my care have enjoyed good health. None have been confined to the hospital and only a few have been treated in the cells.

The conduct of the prisoners during divine service has been all that could be desired. They are most attentive to the instruction given, and my hope is that the seeds of truth thus sown may be productive of fruit though it should be after many days.

I continue the class for the instruction of some of the young men at the close of the regular service on Sabbath. Then I spend some time in the chapel conversing with the convicts separately. I believe these earnest conversations are calculated to do much good. In this way I can get near to the men and many of them speak of their mental and spiritual difficulties, and by the blessing of God some have evidently been helped.

We have had a few services conducted by a Japanese missionary. We have likewise had services for the Chinese who are still with us. These pagans are thankful to have one of their own countrymen speak to them in their own language. My hope and prayer is that the blessing of Almighty God may attend the efforts put forth for their reformation and regeneration.

I desire to thank all the officers for their continued courtesy to me in the discharge of my official duties.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

THOMAS SCOULER,

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., August, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit my annual report as Roman Catholic chaplain of the British Columbia penitentiary for the year ended June 30, 1900.

The services during the year have been regularly held. The conduct of the men during divine service has been all that could be desired.

During the last six months I have devoted an hour each Friday to direct the choir practices. This attention has been duly appreciated by the convicts, and has contributed to enhance the solemnity of divine service.

Our library, as my brother chaplain already remarked in his last year's report, needs replenishing. Many of the convicts assure me that they have read all books in it. I sincerely hope that more will be added soon; it is several years since we had our last addition.

Larger chapels are very much needed, owing to the permanent increase of convicts.

I am pleased to state that the school, under the care of Mr. Carroll, continues to do good work.

In concluding, I have only words of praise to address to the warden, deputy warden, and the other officers of the prison for their uniform kindness and courtesy in assisting me in the discharge of my duties.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

CH. L. DEVRIENDT,
R. C. Chaplain.

SCHOOLMASTERS' REPORTS

KINGSTON PENITENTIARY.

KINGSTON, ONT., July 26, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit my fifth annual report of the school in this penitentiary for the year ended June 30, 1900.

The total number enrolled during the year was 83. Of this number 19 passed out capable of reading and writing intelligently and with a fair knowledge of the elementary rules of arithmetic; 14 retired, some owing to expiration of sentence and a few from lack of application.

The present attendance is 50, and the studies of these are divided as follows:—

Reading in Part I	6
" II	12
Reading in 2nd book and writing	10
" 3rd book, writing and arithmetic	22

I may state that the conduct and application of the pupils have been excellent.

Instruction is given during the noon hour in the school-room, and in their respective cells in the evening, and it is surprising the progress made by many who could neither read nor write when admitted.

Mr. Thompson, assistant school instructor, has been very attentive in the discharge of his duties.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

FARM INSTRUCTOR'S REPORT.

KINGSTON PENITENTIARY, August 15, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to present my annual report as farm instructor at Kingston Penitentiary for the year ended June 30, 1900.

All our arable land is at present in good state of cultivation and is yielding, in favourable seasons, all that can reasonably be expected. The appended statement will show that, after furnishing healthful employment, under careful instruction and discipline, for 3,132 days prison labour, a net profit of over $500 was realized for the year just closed.

I am of opinion that an additional fifty acres could be profitably and advantageously worked, especially if such additional land were adapted to garden farming; that is, the growing of roots and vegetables for prison consumption. A much larger grain product might also be profitably used in production of pork.

The compost pits recently constructed are proving decidedly advantageous. Most of the stable manure purchased is in a dry condition, and is made much more valuable by the addition from the prison sewage. I would recommend, however, that a small sum be expended each year in the purchase of some standard artificial fertilizer for such lands as are put under roots and vegetables.

The farm buildings are in good repair, but I beg leave to recommend that the walls of No. 1 barn be raised to eighteen feet and that horse forks and tackle be provided for unloading hay and grain. This would give plenty of room for larger crop and remove the necessity of threshing during the harvest.

The old picket fence extending the entire length of the farm on the east side should be removed and a wire fence put in its place, thus avoiding drifts of snow which blockade the highway and keep the ground cold and wet till late in the spring. Several pieces of waste land can be made arable by removing the stones and filling with soil excavated from new roadbed now being made over the farm. The fifteen acres of rough, untillable quarry grounds can be similarly improved so as to be valuable for pasturage; and cattle sufficient to supply the prison with milk might be maintained thereon for several months of the year. To do all this would, of course, require more labour than is furnished by the usual farm gang but would, I think, amply repay the outlay by improvement in appearance as well as by the increase of production.

I feel indebted to the warden for the very deep interest he takes in my department and his readiness, at all times, to aid me in the discharge of my duties.

Yours respectfully,

JNO. A. McCAUGHERTY.
Farm Instructor.

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL.

St. Vincent de Paul, June 30, 1900.

Sir,—I have the honour to submit herewith statements for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1900.

I am pleased to be able to report that the general turn over has been satisfactory, every portion of the farm under cultivation having yielded a fair return for the labour expended. Considerable improvement was made during the year by levelling and grading the numerous abrupt slopes bordering on the ravines, and by placing in cultivation the old brick-yard grounds, the whole of which produced a good crop of grain and promises to prove more remunerative during the coming season. Similar improvements, including under-drainage, will be put in hand this fall and I have every hope that the result may prove satisfactory. The necessity for enlarging the farm is admitted, and an addition to it of sufficient acreage to admit of a proper rotation of cropping would furnish the penitentiary with the farm produce required and at a much less cost than is possible by the present cramped system which cannot be avoided on a farm of small area. The purchaseable real estate in the immediate vicinity of the penitentiary will not be found sufficiently fertile to produce the desired results for a few years, as it will require under-drainage and careful cultivation.

The year shows an increase in the production of pork, 109 pigs were dressed and delivered to the steward, leaving 300 on hand to date. I increased the stock with a view to furnishing the institution with all the pork required, upon the understanding that the piggery buildings would be enlarged.

I desire to tender my thanks to the warden for his courteous consideration and invariable attention during the past year.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

EDW. KENNY,
Farm Instructor.

DORCHESTER.

DORCHESTER, July 30, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit my annual report for the year ended June 30, 1900.

The season opened finely, and seeding began on the 1st of May, 1899, and continued till the 15th. The weather from that date until the middle of June was broken, so that part of the seeding was not finished until the end of June.

I am pleased to report a good crop; hay and oats, extra; barley, fair; turnips, good; potatoes, medium; carrots, beets and cabbage, all good.

The stock is the best, both in quantity and quality ever grown on the farm.

Considering the amount of work required in building operations and the broken weather during the seeding time, I can claim for the farming operations a fairly good year's work.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

A. B. PIPES,
Farm Instructor.

STONY MOUNTAIN, July 20, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit my report as farmer of the Manitoba Penitentiary. I am sorry to say our prospects for an abundant harvest are most unfavourable, owing to the severe drought, which has prevailed all spring and summer, no rain having fallen until the first of July. We have had to plow under twelve acres of wheat and fifteen acres of oats. The oats were on new land—the first crop. The only land that withstood the drouth was summer-fallow and potato ground. About the 10th of June the crops were looking so bad that I ploughed and sowed tweny-five acres with barley that I had intended to fallow and with the recent rains it promises to be a fair crop. Our and barley that were sown on fall ploughing will not be half a crop, and our roots and garden seeds that were sown, some as early as the 5th of April, were not above ground until the 5th of July. At one time it looked serious on account of fodder for the stock during the coming winter, but all fears of that are past now. We have about 225 acres under cultivation, which is about as much as can be worked with the labour available on account of other works that are going on. Our cattle are increasing; we now have forty head, and our stable will only hold twenty-four; we will have to convert part of the hay barn into a cattle shed for the present. The cattle are one of the best investments we have they have increased over $100 since last year after selling about $200 in beef at very little outlay. In 1892 the warden purchased one milch cow, there only being two yearling heifers on the farm. Our present herd is the increase since that time, also the steers that were killed for beef and two cows poisoned three years ago. We are at a great disadvantage with our present buildings not being able to make permanent improvements such as fencing yard and hog pasture, &c. Once the new barn is built everything can be done with a view to future requirements. The slaughter house built last fall is a great convenience to the piggery. The warden still takes a great interest in the farm.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,

W. R. GRAHAME,
Farm Instructor.

NEW WESTMINSTER, August 18, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit my annual report for the year ended June 30 1900.

We have but 70 acres of land within the penitentiary boundary fence, of which 30 acres are under cultivation, the balance of which is taken up by a very deep ravine, of little use, even for pasturing purposes.

The warden is now having 32 acres cleared, outside of the boundary fence, which when finished will give us a larger area for cultivation, but I do not think that we will then have sufficient land under cultivation to furnish this institution with the farm produce required.

We have this year purchased 6 pedigreed sheep which in time will give us quite a supply of mutton for this institution.

I am, sir,
Yours very respectfully,

JNO. McNIVEN,
Farm Instructor.

REGINA JAIL

REGINA JAIL.

Jailor's Report.

Regina, July 28, 1900.

Sir,—I have the honour to submit my annual report for the fiscal year ended 30th June last.

The movements of prisoners during the year were as follows:—

	Lunatics.			Other Prisoners.
	Male.	Female.	Total.	Male.	Female.	Total.	Total.
Remaining at midnight June 30th, 1899	...	...	...	21	....	21	21
Received since	8	4	12	34	5	39	51	72
Removed to Brandon Asylum	8	4	12	....	....	....	12
Expiration of sentence	..	.....	..	31	3	34	34
Pardons	....	....	...	2	...	2	2
Parole	.....	..	...	1	.....	1	1
Escape	...	.....	.....	1	.....	1	1	50
Remaining at midnight June 30th, 1900	...	...	.....	20	2	22	22	22

The daily average during the year was $22\frac{306}{365}$ as against $15\frac{317}{365}$ in the previous year. There was one escape, the particulars of which were duly reported to you. There were no deaths.

I again beg to call your attention to the fact that twelve insane persons from different points in the Territories were committed during the year to this prison. There seems no reason why most of these unfortunates should not have been taken direct from their several homes to an insane asylum, especially from such points as Calgary and Medicine Hat, where one would presume the necessary medical testimony could have been secured to admit of that being done, the Ordinance regarding insane persons having been amended in that direction some time ago. I hope that before long this prison will be used only for the custody of convicted persons.

The result of our farming operations was again satisfactory, the prison having been supplied with all necessary vegetables and the stables with forage excepting hay. The cultivation and cleaning of new land was again continued during the year, and I hope in the near future to be able to grow all the hay that may be required with possibly a surplus.

As you are aware the sewerage empties into a cesspool and from there has to be pumped out and carried away. The cesspool is constructed of wood, has been in use for ten years, and in order to avert any possible accident I beg to recommend for your consideration the construction of a brick and Portland cement cesspool, if possible further away from the prison building. According to the situation of the prison and its surroundings the cesspool system of drainage seems the only available one.

The roof of the prison building has also become somewhat leaky, especially at the junction of the main building and cell wing, caused, I presume, through the settlement of the latter owing to its great weight. I have also observed water coming in around some of the chimneys.

I also beg to call your attention to the inefficient and expensive heating system. In winter it is impossible to heat some portions of the building, which may be caused either by an inefficient heating system or inefficient construction of the building, or possibly by both.

With regard to the cesspool, the roof, the heating system and, I may add, the building in general, I beg to suggest that you cause an inspection to be made by some competent person with the view of having any serious defects remedied at an early date.

The Honourable the Minister of Justice favoured this institution with a visit during September last, which I have pleasure in recording.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

A. L. LUNAN,
Jailer.

DOUGLAS STEWART, Esq.,
Inspector of Penitentiaries,

SURGEON'S REPORT.

REGINA, July 2, 1900.

SIR,—By instructions of the jail surgeon I have the honour to report, that since my incumbency, I have found the sanitary condition of the jail good as well as the general health of the prisoners.

The months preceding for the year show by the register that no prevailing disease or epidemics had existed.

The custom of allowing prisoners to have possession of medicines, when prescribed was disapproved, for various reasons, which when explained to the jailer acted at once on my suggestions, since which the officer on duty sees to it being properly administered. The results are none is wasted and fewer malingerers.

The necessity of pumping out the cesspool so frequently and to overcome the offensive odour that arises in such proximity to the cells, which should a contagion of any kind exist, would aggravate the situation by disseminating the germs amongst others, who reside in the vicinity; is a contention difficult to overcome, and I would respectfully call your attention to this at your next visit.

Some provision should be made for isolating a prisoner having a contagious disease, or even being exposed to it. This was brought to my notice by a prisoner, who had been confined in the barracks prison, when the place was quarantined for an alleged outbreak of diphtheria. Objections were made to his being brought into court until all danger of communicating the disease had passed, in consequence of the exposure, greatly endangering other inmates of the prison as well as the court officials.

Owing to small-pox of a malignant type occurring to a person who had passed through on the railroad and the majority of prisoners coming by the same road, precautionary means were resorted to, by vaccinating all of the inmates who had not a distinct mark of having been vaccinated.

The continued practice of committing the insane to this prison from other places, when the local legislature had passed an ordinance to have them transferred directly from their homes to an asylum, is very reprehensible. It not only adds to the expense, but a greater objection is the odium that becomes attached to the poor unfortunates by being confined in such a place, both of which would be averted if the law were carried out.

I would direct your attention to the amount of drugs on hand, many being of no use, while the supply of others is greatly in excess of the requirements of the place.

In conclusion, I have through you to proffer my thanks to the officers of the prison, for the attention given to my suggestions and for the courtesy they have at all times extended to me.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

I. F. INGERSOLL,
Jail Surgeon (Pro tem.)

DOUGLAS STEWART, Esq.,
Inspector of Penitentiaries,

APPENDIX N

PRINCE ALBERT JAIL

PRINCE ALBERT JAIL.

JAILER'S REPORT.

PRINCE ALBERT, July 4, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit my annual report with sundry returns for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1900.

Owing to the regrettable death of the late jailer, H. J. Montgomery, which occurred on January 16 last, I have been filling the vacancy for the past six months.

There has been no death, pardon or escape during the year.

The daily average during the year was $3\frac{43}{365}$. The net cost per capita, $1,216.41, is large, but when you take into consideration the small daily average, and that we have expended $150 as part payment on acetylene gas machine; also $127.20 on repairs to west end of jail wall, which were in a very unsafe condition; also that the heating of the court rooms and sheriff's office is done by the jail, you will not find the cost excessive.

Under the head of "Heating" in the financial statements you will find a charge for coal of $344.75, and I think that as we heat the court rooms and sheriff's offices throughout, that one half of this amount should be charged against that department of the service; one half the firemen's salary should be also charged, making a total of $322.07. This would materially lower the expenditure, and I am strongly of the opinion that in justice to the jail it should be done.

Something should be done in the way of providing more land. At present I have only about one acre that I can cultivate, and find it difficult to keep the prisoners profitably employed. Land could be procured in the immediate vicinity of the jail at a small cost, and I would recommend the purchase of twenty or thirty acres.

The high board fence that incloses part of the jail grounds should be extended all the way around so that persons passing on the street could not annoy the prisoners while at work. This fence could be built at a small cost, the labour being done by the prisoners, and the old materials could be used as far as they would go.

I would recommend that the old buildings at the south end of the prison stable be torn down. These buildings are built of odds and ends of old lumber and covered with sods, and are unsightly, and I hope instructions will be at once given to have them removed, as they are a disgrace to the prison grounds.

The water supply is inadequate. At present we have not water enough, and the sewage pipes cannot be properly flushed. The artesian well borers are working here, and have gone down 700 feet. They have struck a stream of water, but it is of no use, either in the prison or for flushing purposes, as it is full of salt. In the event of their not finding good water some other system will have to be adopted, as a good supply of pure water is absolutely necessary for the jail.

I would again call your attention to the necessity of purchasing a horse, harness, wagon and buckboard for the use of the jail. The cesspool will in future require cleaning about every three weeks—it is built of wood and is becoming saturated with sewage, and there is a strong odour coming from it, and it will require frequent cleansing. The cost of emptying is $6. If we had a horse and outfit the work could be done by the prisoners, and in a short time the outfit would pay for itself.

The conduct of the prisoners has been good, only one case of punishment being recorded.

During the year two lunatics were committed to my charge; one was brought before the court and discharged, the other is still under my care.

I hope that in the near future the whole of the building will be given over for jail purposes. We require more room, and necessary changes will have to be made before part of the jail rules and regulations can be put in operation. The result of not being able to put them in force is a constant source of annoyance.

Considerable improvements have been made on the prison grounds. They have been levelled up, ditches have been made, and the whole place generally presents a creditable appearance.

The prisoners have been employed on above and other work, such as sawing wood, gardening, washing and scrubbing.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

F. W. KERR,
Acting Jailer.

DOUGLAS STEWART, Esq.,
Inspector of Penitentiaries,
Ottawa.

SURGEON'S REPORT.

PRINCE ALBERT, July 5, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit my report for the year which ended June 30, 1900.

The institution sustained the loss of a good and faithful officer by the death of the jailor, H. J. Montgomery, during January last. The health of the prisoners has been on the whole, good.

Last year I mentioned the fact that the cesspool was constructed of wood but was then giving no trouble; I regret to report that the wood is evidently now absorbing the sewage as the stench of excrementitious matter is constantly present about the building over the cesspool and in the immediate vicinity. The water supply is very inadequate; the piping about the building cannot be flushed out as often as is required.

If at any time we had a serious case of illness among the prisoners there would be great difficulty accommodating it on the premises, there being no place that could be set apart for that purpose.

I herewith inclose statement of cases that have come under treatment in the jail here during the past year.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

H. A. LESTOCK REID, M.D.

DOUGLAS STEWART, Esq.,
Inspector of Penitentiaries,
Ottawa.

APPENDIX No. 1

TO THE

REPORT OF THE DEPUTY MINISTER

OF

MILITIA AND DEFENCE.

REPORT OF THE CHIEF SUPERINTENDENT OF STORES.

STORE BRANCH, OTTAWA, January, 1901.

SIR,—At such stations as I was able to visit during the year, I found the duties being satisfactorily performed, and I have much pleasure in reporting favourably as to the general efficiency of the officers and employees of the Store staff.

STORE BUILDINGS.

It is strongly recommended that, as an urgent necessity, provision be made in the Estimates for the erection of new buildings at Kingston and Toronto. The stores already at these stations are very valuable, and a large quantity, in consequence of their importance as points of supply for large military districts, should be kept there in reserve; but owing to inadequacy of space and the present condition of the buildings (old wooden ones), it is impossible to either increase the supply or properly care for those already there.

In consequence of the impossibility of reaching the stores at St. Helen's Island from Montreal at certain seasons of the year, it will be necessary to provide accommodation in Montreal for the storage of a quantity of such articles as may be likely to be required for issue in case of emergency.

The new store building in course of erection at Ottawa is expected to be ready for occupation in the early summer. It cannot be available too soon, as the present accommodation is far from satisfactory owing to the scattered location of the stores and consequent want of general supervision.

SMALL ARM AMMUNITION.

The defective cartridges received from England are now undergoing alteration at the Cartridge factory, Quebec, and being distributed from there to the several centres. The altered ammunition is favourably mentioned.

In order to increase the quantity in charge to necessary proportions, the Cartridge factory is also turning out a supply of new ammunition which will, as ready, be distributed to stations where it is required, if space is available for storage.

Free ammunition was issued during the year to the following organizations :—

Dominion Rifle Association.
Ontario " "
New Brunswick Rifle Association.
Manitoba " "
British Columbia " "
Prince Edward Island Rifle Association.
Military Rifle League.

A statement accounting for the issue of this ammunition should have been furnished by the rifle associations concerned, or a certificate signed by the Aresident and Secretary, to the effect that the number of cartridges received had been expended at the annual competition for which they were issued.

CAMP EQUIPMENT.

The supply of marquees and circular tents now being received will enable the wants of the troops in this respect during the annual training to be more fully met. These, however, owing to many of the circular tents on charge being old, would still be inadequate should it be found necessary to find accommodation for the whole force. The use of this equipment, unless provision is made annually for a much larger renewal, should be restricted solely to the use of the Active Militia.

There is no doubt but that the Boys' Brigades in connection with Churches and Public schools will eventually prove a source of supply to the personnel of the militia, but it cannot be expected, unless Parliament makes increased provision to cover a much greater expenditure on account of wear and tear, that the money now voted for militia purposes only should furnish camp equipment, etc., for other organizations.

HARNESS AND SADDLERY.

Issues to complete the equipment of the Mounted Rifles and Artillery proceeding on service to South Africa, exhausted the supply of harness and saddlery in Store charge.

There is no doubt but that on the return of the troops to Canada, if they are still to be retained as effective units, the most, if not the whole of this portion of their equipment will require to be renewed as it cannot, in consequence of the severe strain to which it has been subjected, fail to have become for the most part unserviceable.

SMALL ARMS.

In consequence of issues made to the troops which proceeded to South Africa, to meet renewals through fair wear and to supply the new regiments of Mounted Rifles added to the establishment, it will be necessary to import a supply of Lee-Enfield rifles in order that sufficient may be on hand to cover possible demands.

Issues continue to be made to regiments on the recommendation of the General Officer Commanding as suitable Armoury accommodation becomes available.

The time of the small arm armourers is fully occupied in necessary work in connection with rifles in store charge, and in carrying out repairs to those in possession of the troops.

Accommodation is required for an Armourer at London. The one stationed at Toronto has as much work in his own district as he can satisfactorily perform. As the rifles become more generally used, this work will rapidly increase.

The rifles now in possession of the troops should be carefully examined. It is proposed to have this work carried out during the coming year by the Armourers in the several districts, and those found defective withdrawn for repairs.

A proper armoury with racks and fittings is required at Toronto. In the event of a new store building being erected, this should be provided.

The question of a suitable Arm for issue to Cadet Corps and Boys' Brigades, as also the extent to which they are to be used for firing purposes or otherwise, is one which requires consideration and the formulation of rules or instructions in connection therewith.

The increased demand for issues of Arms to Rifle Clubs and Associations, will have to be considered. The members of these organizations take part in the Dominion and Provincial associations and Rifle-League competitions and not only expect free issue of rifles but also a free issue of ammunition. It should be borne in mind that these clubs are, to a very great extent, purely civilian and outside of the militia. The department should not, therefore, be expected to provide for them out of the vote for militia purposes. A special vote should be asked for to meet their demands and regulations formulated governing their existence, so that in the event of their services being required, they might be available to the country. Purely civilian clubs or associations provided with rifles and ammunition, must prove detrimental to recruiting for militia units.

MORRIS AIMING TUBES AND AMMUNITION.

The present supply of these articles will not admit of their being brought into general use by the force. The necessity for their use during the winter months and in localities where rifle ranges are not available, is an admitted fact. Their use necessitates the provision of mantlets, which are the main expense. It is suggested that 100 mantlets and at least 200 Aiming tubes with 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition be ordered for the present to commence with, this supply might afterwards be increased.

CLOTHING AND NECESSARIES.

The experience of the year accentuated the necessity for a much larger supply of clothing and necessaries being on hand to meet emergencies. In the past the quantity has been too small to meet even the requirements of the militia ordered out for annual training. There is considerable variation in the sizes required; the proportion for one year will not meet the demands for a second year and this alone necessitates a considerable number being available for selection.

MILITARY PROPERTIES.

I have not found it possible during the year to visit the military properties, but the officers in local charge have reported satisfactorily as to their condition.

I have again to bring to your notice the very great assistance which I have received in the performance of my duties, from the officers of the Branch at headquarters and from the different Superintendents of Stores as well. They are zealous and painstaking.

The above Transport sailed on October 30, 1900, from Quebec.

The other steamships chartered were the Laurentian and Pomeranian, of the Allan Line, and the Montezuma, of the Elder Dempster Line, which later was afterwards rejected on account of fever breaking out on board among the crew, and the Milwaukee of the same line substituted.

These boats were fitted as transports for the Mounted Rifles and Artillery with horses and guns, under the supervision of the Chief Engineer Militia and Defence, at Halifax, N.S. These transports sailed on January 21 and 27, and February 21 respectively.

Your obedient servant,

PAUL WEATHERBE, Capt.,
Chief Engineer M. and D.

APPENDIX No. 3.

TO THE

OF

MILITIA AND DEFENCE

GOVERNMENT CARTRIDGE AND SHELL FACTORY, QUEBEC.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT FOR FISCAL YEAR ENDING JUNE 30, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to report as follows upon the operations of this establishment for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1900.

CARTRIDGE FACTORY.

The production of this factory for the period stated has been as follows:

Cartridges, S. A. ball,	·303″,	cordite,	Mark II,	16,500
" "	·303″,	"	V,	575,200
" blank,	·303″,	"	V,	500,500
" "	·303″,	black powder	III,	500,500

At the meeting of the Dominion Rifle Association, held in 1899, numerous complaints were made concerning quality of cartridges supplied. Many of the statements which were published in the newspapers at the time, appear to have been made thoughtlessly, or by persons without such knowledge of the subject, as would enable them to give a valuable opinion. Absence of exact knowledge was in some conspicuous cases coupled with the absence of fair and careful consideration. It is submitted that a skilled marksman is not necessarily an expert in ballistics, and that the size of a man's score frequently influences his judgment, without reference to other important points. The firer's personal equation is invariably eliminated from the problem, and the irresponsible utterances which have been seen in print are truly characteristic. While it is not claimed that the ammunition was entirely blameless, it is submitted that it is by no means as inferior as has been represented. Experiments were instituted at the conclusion of the rifle meeting to investigate the causes of hangfires, and a provisional report was forwarded to the War Office, with a request that an opinion be given. The experiments carried out here consisted in firing cartridges under artificial climatic conditions resembling those existing at Ottawa during the meeting, and measuring the velocity of ignition and pressure in the bore in comparison with ammunition made at the Royal Laboratory, Woolwich. Eight hundred and forty rounds each of English and Canadian ammunition were placed in a water oven, kept at constant temperature by a thermo-regulator, and raised by successive increments of 10 degrees from 60° F to 140° F, 100 rounds being fired for velocity of ignition, and 5 rounds for pressure at each increment. The Canadian ammunition tested was taken at random in store from lot which had been complained of, and the English ammunition was dated 1897, that manufactured previously having shown the same defect. I designed an electric contact breaker adapted to the Lee Enfield rifle, which was worked in connection with the Boulangé chronograph to measure the velocity of ignition. Pressures were measured by usual method in small arms pressure guage. The data obtained which are necessarily elaborate and complicated may be summarised as follows :—

Velocity of Ignition.	Mean Deviation.	Maximum Deviation.	Pressure.
Sec.	Sec.	Sec.	Tons.
0·002142	0·000173	0·000489	14·72	D. C. Ammunition, 1898.
0·002164	0·000156	0·000478	14·37	R. L. " 1897.
0·000022	0·000017	0·000011	0·35	Differences.

The chronograph employed measures correctly to the fourth decimal of a second, and it being desirable to know the degree of accuracy with which the arithmetical mean of the total results, represents the true velocity of ignition, the probable error of the mean was computed to be as follows :—

D. C. Ammunition, 0·00000489607 sec.

As this error occurs only in the 6th decimal of a second, it was concluded that the final results are absolutely correct for the purposes of this investigation. The longest times of ignition observed for both kinds of ammunition, were compared with the known duration of a slight hangfire. After making all possible allowances for outstanding and unavoidable errors, it was calculated that in both cases the mean velocity of ignition was less than that of even a slight hangfire by over 260 per cent. The pressures observed were moderate and uniform throughout. The number of burst cases reported at Ottawa did not exceed a fraction of one per cent, which is not sufficient to justify complaints, as perfect immunity from this defect cannot be guaranteed. There were no complaints of stripped bullets at Ottawa, where Mark II bullet was used, but as the trouble had occurred elsewhere, inquiries were made, and the English press subsequently stated that many cases had occurred at the rifle meetings at Bisley and Edinburgh with Mark IV. (expanding) bullet. This bullet was consequently modified to Mark V., which has given satisfaction, and the entire stock of Mark IV. on hand in the factory was destroyed. It is regretted that some of this should have been issued before the defect was discovered, and what still remains should be expended for practice. To ascertain what bearing defects in rifles would have on the various points mentioned over 500 rifles in the hands of the troops, and 1,000 new rifles in store, were thoroughly gauged and inspected, leading to the recommendations stated below. In forwarding this report for consideration to the War Office, it was pointed out that the caps had been unaffected by high temperatures; that the velocity, nature and regularity of ignition provided had produced ballistics within the prescribed limits, and that certain variations in manufacture of rifles would produce hangfires. It was further represented that assuming the impossibility of entirely preventing burst cartridge cases, it admits of proof that the mechanism of the rifle must be capable of withstanding the extra strain imposed without being wrecked and injuring the marksman. The report concluded with the following recommendations :—

That a supply of strikers amounting to 25 per cent of rifles on charge be provided, for replacement of any defective ones, after examination by a qualified armourer; that an annual inspection of arms by an artificer from this establishment be sanctioned for all city corps, and such units of the rural militia to be selected hereafter, as prescribed by paragraph 338, part I, 'Equipment Regulations' for Her Majesty's Army; that a supply of double pull-throughs, prescribed in the Lists of Changes, be obtained and issued; and, that the early establishment of a Rolling Mill, for manufacture of brass and cupro-nickel strip, as urgently recommended in the past, be considered and authorized. A complete report on the points at issue was received from the War Office, advising a modification in the manufacture of percussion caps which has been adopted so far with perfect satisfaction. The recommendations concerning inspection of arms, and provision of spare strikers and pull-throughs are concurred in, and will, it is hoped, be adopted. After protracted correspondence and numerous enquiries an order has been placed in England for the Rolling Mill plant, and a building for accommodation of this machinery is to be erected in a convenient position, adjoining the power house. It has been decided to adopt the mark II. (solid) bullet for general service, Mark V, (expanding) being reserved for specific purposes. It may, however, be explained, as there appears to be a prejudice against the hollow-pointed bullet, that the stripping with mark IV, has entirely disappeared in mark V., and it is found that this ammunition gives a better figure of merit than the solid bullet. As the competitors at the Dominion Rifle Association meeting expressed a preference for Rifleite, a quantity of this powder has been purchased, and will be issued for the ensuing matches, together with cordite ammunition. It has thus been arranged to give competitors a choice of the following kinds of ammunition:—

Rifleite, mark II.
" " V.
Cordite, " V.
" " II. (R. L. ammunition re-capped.)

All the cartridges have been most carefully tested, and there is reason to believe that any kind will give entire satisfaction. The statement has again been made that fired cartridge cases are re-filled at the factory, and in this connection reference is invited to the annual reports of this department for 1897 and 1898, explaining why this cannot be done. This was one of the thoughtless and unjust criticisms referred to above, which have no foundation and cannot be substantiated. During the time that experiments were in progress, the filling and finishing of ammunition was suspended, and advantage taken to carry out extensive repairs to the Danger Buildings, which were greatly needed. The work to be performed took longer than had been expected, and was completed only a short time previous to our being ready to resume ordinary manufacture. The interval was occupied in manufacturing blank, of which there was only a small supply in store, and in finishing some Rifleite cartridges already on hand.

The manufacture of Rifleite ammunition necessitated some changes in the machines for loading granular powders. Power was transmitted from No. 2 building to replace a water motor which was worn out; the machine itself was altered from suggestions made by the Foreman Danger Buildings, rendering it possible to load with a variation of only 0·2 grain, plus or minus; this result is extremely gratifying. This machine was also employed to load some cartridges small arm, blank, black powder, Mark III., the manufacture of which has enabled us to use up a large stock of R.F.G ^{2} in store. Black powder blank of this description has been adopted for use in the Royal Navy, and while it fouls the bore considerably, it possesses the advantage of producing a louder report than the cordite blank of service pattern. The recapping of defective ·303" cordite ammunition purchased from the War Office in 1895 is proceeding satisfactorily; it consists in extracting and replacing the defective cap, after which the cartridges are bundled and labelled 'Re-Capped.' Special machines for un-capping and re-capping were procured in England and others made locally. It is gratifying to record that the War Department has taken into favourable consideration the experiments submitted by this office, and agreed to defray the cost of repairing all defective ammunition on hand, which will amount to some $23,000.

It has been found difficult to identify complaints received about ammunition; our wrappers are not dated, and it is proposed to supply the omission by purchasing a press so that all wrappers and labels will be printed and duly dated as required.

An attachment designed by the Foreman Danger Buildings has been added to one of the existing machines for bulleting ammunition. This machine has a capacity of 25,000 per day, enabling one operative to do as much work as four with the hand presses formerly employed.

When the 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment (first contingent) sailed for South Africa, orders were received to hand over the Maxim Gun on charge; the gun being in daily use for proof of ammunition, we were in a position to deliver it promptly, in good order and serviceable condition. It being absolutely necessary to have a gun for proof work, another has been issued to replace the above.

A large quantity of scrap on hand should be disposed of for the benefit of the factory.

The principle laid down on page IX. of your annual report, dated April 17, 1900, that the proceeds of sales on repayment should be paid to the credit of the department and not to the Receiver General is particularly applicable to this establishment, which is at present deprived of benefiting from sale of ammunition, scrap, &c. In all commercial establishments, scrap is credited against cost of manufacture, and this principle is observed in the Imperial Government Factories. The balance sheet of Her Majesty's Ordnance Factories contains credit items such as 'Sale of old Stores, Miscellaneous Receipts, Refunds, &c.,' contributing to diminish cost of manufacture, which under our system go to the Receiver General. It is moreover submitted that the entire amount paid by the Imperial Government to defray cost of re-capping ammunition, should be credited to this establishment.

The manufacture of friction tubes has been initiated, and it is expected that in a short time we shall be able to supply all requirements.

We have also begun manufacture of silk cloth gun cartridges, which will be supplied empty or filled, with cordite or black powder as may be required.

Experiments and investigations were made concerning the following subjects, and reports submitted:

Picric Powder, invented by Mr. Dickson, Winnipeg.

Velocity of ignition of ·303″ cordite caps.

Pyro-collodion.

Smokeless Powder.

Patent Steel Nosed Expanding Bullet, invented by W. H. Hill, Sydney, New South Wales.

Conversion of Maxim Guns from ·45″ to ·303″ calibre.

Indurated Fibre Rifle Shield, proposed by A. Brunel, C. E.

Colt Automatic Gun.

Employment of Mineral Jelly for lubrication of arms, and specification to govern supply of.

Incomplete combustion of silk cartridges with saluting charges, reported by Inspector of Artillery, Eastern Division.

The examination branch has been removed to the Danger Buildings, and the change has proved a success. A new engine and boiler room has been built adjoining the Danger Buildings; the engine has been thoroughly repaired, and a boiler formerly employed in the main factory has been installed. Two small buildings for drying fulminate of mercury and mixing detonating composition, suitably isolated by earth traverses have been erected. The drying is now effected by hot water heating which is safer and more satisfactory.

SHELL FACTORY.

The following is the output of this department:—

Shells B.L. sharpnel, 12 pr	632
" R.M.L. " 9 "	1,180
" R.M.L. common, 64 "	1 075
" R.B.L. segment, 6 "	500
Cups, R.B.L. guns, 6 "	1,000
Posts, picket, 2½ ft., wrought iron	100

The manufacture of projectiles for R.B.L. guns on the lead coated system has been taken up and is progressing satisfactorily; as yet, only 6 Pr. segment shells, for the Royal Military College have been delivered, but we have in hand orders for 40 pr. sharpnel and common shells. It was deemed advisable to initiate this manufacture, as the practice of the garrison artillery is now largely carried out with 40 Pr. R.B.L. guns. The arrival of 5-in. B.L. howitzers has necessitated the manufacture of projectiles of this calibre, and an order was received to manufacture 5-in. cast iron common shell, filled with black powder, which are employed for practice purposes, in place of the forged steel lyddite shells.

This factory is now equipped to manufacture anything in the way of cast iron projectiles for all natures of ordnance in the Dominion. A complete outfit of tools and gauges has been provided, all of which are arranged and classified so as to be available at a moment's notice, involving a certain amount of expense, but quite indispensable for efficiency and quickness of production. The manufacture of wooden boxes for projectiles was begun during the year, and additional machinery purchased.

It has been the intention for some time past to introduce the manufacture of steel projectiles, which have entirely replaced cast iron for the use of modern artillery. After making extensive enquiries the following machinery was purchased for the finishing shop:—1 flat Turret Lathe, 1 Six Inch Cutting off and Centering Machine. One 18 inch Brass Finisher's Lathe. One 18 inch x 70 inch Shaping Machine.

All these machines embody latest improvements and have given entire satisfaction. We have been in communication with leading manufacturers for the supply of a hydraulic forging plant for the manufacture of forged steel shells, which will consist of a compound steam pumping engine, an accumulator, and presses, and it is hoped that we shall shortly be in posession of information to enable this order to be placed advantageously. It is proposed to begin with manufacture of 12 Pr. B. L. shells, but the plant is suitably designed for expansion and will be capable of producing 5 inch and 6 inch shells when required. This plant will be installed in the existing shell factory, and the machinery in the latter will be moved to a new building which it is proposed to erect for the purpose. Our present power plant being insufficient to meet additional work, a battery of boilers will be established in a convenient position at south end of iron foundry. The erection of a rolling mill in connection with the small arm ammunition plant, necessitates converting the existing iron foundry into a brass foundry. Plans and estimates for the erection of a new foundry have been submitted, as well as various propositions for the utilization of existing buildings the property of this department, all of which are still under consideration; the most convenient site is in St. John's Bastion, and it is strongly recommended that construction on this spot be authorized. Our present premises are altogether too small and overcrowded, and something must be done to provide additional room.

The proof of projectiles was carried out at the Island of Orleans as hitherto. In connection with this matter, 'Rules and Regulations for Artillery Ranges' framed on those of the Imperial Army, were submitted by this office, and were subsequently published in general orders. In spite of all precautions, great difficulty exists in providing for the safety of the inhabitants, who persist in handling un-exploded projectiles recovered on the range; the fatal consequences which unhappily resulted from this practice some years ago, leads to the suggestion that ample measures be taken for the protection of officers concerned.

A proof butt erected on the Cove Fields will be used for this work as much as possible, and will reduce danger, besides being more convenient.

ARTILLERY WORKSHOP.

The object of establishing a department of this nature may be explained as follows:

The repair of ordnance, carriages, war matériel, and equipment of all descriptions as well as the alteration of existing patterns in accordance with the Lists of Changes and local requirements. The examination and viewing of ordnance small arms and machine guns. Manufacture of any articles which cannot conveniently be obtained by contract. Execution of repairs or new work required by the Store Department. The training of machinery gunners, carriage smiths, wheelers, farriers, collarmakers and saddlers, for the Permanent Force and Active Militia,

With the introduction of B.L. and Q.F. guns, as well as magazine rifles and machine guns, the question of repairs becomes more complicated, and their proper execution more difficult. The improved but greatly complicated mountings employed in the garrison artillery for the service of Q.F. and other guns require the care and attention of highly trained specialists.

A schedule of machinery required for this factory was submitted, and the necessary funds were voted by Parliament. Arrangements are being made to place our orders as speedily as possible. Plans and specifications for erection of a building to accommodate the above machinery was forwarded, but it was decided to utilize instead a portion of the New Rolling Mill, and a building at the corner of Palace Hill, which is to be altered for the purpose. This arrangement, while feasible, presents many disadvantages, in that the buildings are not suitable for the reception of heavy machinery, and the interior space is so limited that the handling of gun carriages and other large pieces of work will be exceedingly difficult.

It is proposed to renew the request made last year for the erection of a workshop, at a moderate cost.

The viewing and examination of ordnance to be performed under this department was begun, and the guns of the following field batteries were examined: 'A' and 'B' Field Batteries, R.C.A. 3rd and 5th Field Batteries, C.A.; the 7 in. R.B.L. guns in Fort Henry and Fort Frederick, Kingston, were also examined and repaired. It is intended to retain copies of all History Sheets pertaining to ordnance and mountings in this office, in order that lost copies may be replaced, and to enable viewing to be performed in a regular and systematic way.

A complete inspection of the guns, carriages, and equipment of the 1st Field Battery C.A. (Quebec) was made, and a report thereon forwarded, showing that the matériel of this battery is in very bad order, and urgently in need of repairs. It may be inferred from this that other units which have not been inspected, are equally deficient. The following is the work which will first occupy this department, and for which we have already received orders: Repair of guns and carriages of batteries returning from South Africa; alterations of existing equipment in accordance with Lists of Changes; conversion and manufacture of field artillery gun sleighs; manufacture of planks, scotches, skidding, rollers, mauls, tent poles, &c., for Store Department. Should it be decided to convert the existing 12 pr. 6 cwt. equipment to Q.F., we shall be in a position to undertake the work; specifications and estimates are being prepared, and a proposition will be duly submitted. The 9 Pr. R.M.L. equipment is very much out of date, and in England has been allotted to form part of the movable armament of fortresses; should it be decided to retain this equipment for field batteries, it may be of advantage to make certain alterations, to assimilate it to the 12 Pr.B.L. We are prepared to take up this work, and a report thereon will be forwarded for consideration. When 'E' Battery R.C.A. was mobilized for service in South Africa, an attempt was made to carry out some of the most urgent alterations required to the equipment. Some of these were of the greatest importance, and it is regretted that lack of time and facilities prevented us from being of greater assistance. A complete set of books and forms has been obtained from England, in order that our system may be made to conform as far as possible with that of the Imperial Ordnance Factories. It is hoped that during the coming year the workshop will be fully established, and it is felt that valuable assistance can be rendered by an establishment of this nature.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The repairs and alterations to buildings which have been performed are as follows:

Office Building.—One room repaired and fitted up for use as an office with fire proof vault. Minor repairs to windows and roof.

Cartridge Factory.—Elevator, 2,000 lbs. capacity erected; rebuilding drains; repairs to walls; new coal shed; miscellaneous minor repairs.

Shell Factory.—Repairs to skylights and drains.

Laboratory Buildings.—New power house; transmission of power to filling room; new composition buildings; galvanized iron roof to Nos. 1 and 4 buildings; new coal shed; new lightning rods; extensive minor repairs.

Fulminate Buildings.—Painting and general repairs.

Officers' Quarters.—Miscellaneous minor repairs.

In addition to the above, the proof butt at the Cove Fields has been enlarged and a fence erected on top of rampart, McMahon St.

A damper regulator has been added to our boiler plant and saves about 10 per cent of fuel. The heating system of the cartridge factory has been entirely overhauled and arranged to make use of exhaust steam. It is impossible owing to badly laid pipe lines, to circulate exhaust steam to heat the shell factory and live steam is employed. It is proposed to modify our apparatus for use of low pressure steam, and it is expected that the entire establishment can thus be heated at greatly reduced cost.

The dynamo used for lighting the works is too small and a larger machine will have to be provided when new buildings are erected. The proposed opening of a roadway and selling of building lots on the Cove Fields tend to interfere with our operations and should be postponed as long as it is in the power of the department to do so. Our danger buildings should remain isolated, and traffic in the neighbourhood should be reduced to a minimum.

We have on our staff several old employees, who have rendered years of valuable service, but who are now unable to perform their duties in a satisfactory manner. It is suggested that the discharge of these men be authorized and that their claims to a gratuity or allowance, be considered.

Every effort has been made to carry out the progressive policy of the department, in building up an arsenal in keeping with the growing military requirements of the country; and it is felt that we are on the eve of completing successfully the task allotted. This success is due, largely to the efforts of the staff of this office, and to the solicitous attention given to our business by the officials concerned at headquarters.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

F. M. GAUDET, Major,
Superintendent Government Cartridge Factory.

To the Deputy of
The Honourable the Minister of Militia and Defence,
Ottawa.

PART II.

REPORT

OF THE

GENERAL OFFICER COMMANDING

The Honourable the Minister of Militia and Defence,
Ottawa.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit the following report upon the Militia Forces and Establishments under my command for the year ending December 31, 1900.

INSPECTIONS.

(1.) Having only assumed command of the Canadian Militia on July 29, I regret that it is impossible to make my report as full and comprehensive as I could desire, especially as regards the efficiency of the Canadian troops, except so far as I was able to carry out a personal inspection.

The difficulty in this matter arises from the circumstance that of recent years there have been so many changes of procedure in regard to the scope and nature of the Inspection Reports, that the District Officers Commanding are—not unnaturally—somewhat uncertain as to the proper form in which such reports should be rendered, and it thus becomes an impossibility to arrive at any conclusive opinion on the results of the annual training in the several districts, as evidenced by the degree of efficiency to which the units have attained. I have taken measures which I trust may remedy this defect and ensure that, in future, Inspection Reports shall all be rendered in the same form and supply an equal amount of data and information.

PERMANENT CORPS.

(2.) As early as possible after my arrival in the Dominion I deemed it my duty to make an inspection of the permanent troops. I need scarcely point out that all arms of these corps have been so depleted in officers, non-commissioned officers and men for service with the South African contingents that they were seen at a very great disadvantage when I made my inspections. It is therefore with very great pleasure that, taking into consideration the paucity of experienced officers and non-commissioned officers available for duty, and the abnormal number of recruits in the ranks, I am able to report that I consider these units in a very creditable state of efficiency, alike as regards their drill, discipline and interior economy.

The 3rd (Special Service) Battalion Royal Canadian Regiment does not, strictly speaking, form a part of the permanent corps, and I therefore think it is desirable to make a separate report upon it. In view of the important duties which have devolved upon this corps, occupying, as it does, the place of an Imperial regiment in a most important Imperial garrison, I made a point of subjecting it to a very searching inspection in drill, discipline, interior economy and administration, and it is only an act of justice to the officer commanding and his officers, non-commissioned officers and men, to place on record my general satisfaction with the state of this battalion. There were, as was to be expected, minor matters of detail in which there was room for improvement, and these were pointed out to the commanding officer, but at the date of my inspection the battalion had only been in existence some five months, and I was therefore much pleased to find the amount of efficiency that had been attained in so short a time, and I was also gratified to learn from the officer commanding Her Majesty's troops that the battalion had performed its duties in garrison in a most creditable manner.

RURAL CORPS.

(3.) During my tour of inspection in the Maritime Provinces I spent some days at the Camps of Instruction at Aldershot, N.S., and Sussex, N.B., and inspected the troops undergoing their annual training. The intelligence, zeal, and diligence shown by all ranks was everything that could be desired, and the conduct of the men, as well as the general arrangements, cleanliness, good order and sanitary condition of the camps gave me complete satisfaction, and were very creditable to the officers in command and the staff officers acting under their orders. In the limited period of nine working days, however, it is absolutely impracticable to do more than impart the rudiments of drill, for it must be borne in mind that at least 60 per cent of the troops assembled are raw recruits, entirely ignorant of discipline and soldier like habits, and consequently there is no time for giving even elementary instruction in "field training," which forms the most important part of a soldier's duty, while even musketry practice has to be hurried through under the most unfavourable conditions.

The result, so far as parade movements and ceremonial drill is concerned, was much better than I had expected could be learned in the limited time at disposal. This was especially the case with the Cavalry and Field Artillery, whose training is more difficult and duties much more onerous than those of the Infantry, and I am able to report that a most admirable spirit pervaded the rural corps that came under my observation, but I am constrained to add that, notwithstanding the most strenuous efforts on the part of officers, non-commissioned officers and men, these troops can never be made even fairly fit to take the field with the limited period of annual training that they receive under existing arrangements.

I attach as an appendix to this report a copy of certain recommendations which I had the honour to submit on the 4th December, 1900, and which, if favourably considered, would, I believe, aid in developing the splendid material of which the rural militia of Canada is composed.

CITY CORPS.

(4.) I have been unable to form any definite opinion on the efficiency of any of the city corps, as I have not enjoyed such opportunities of seeing them as would justify me in doing so. The few corps that could parade for my inspection did so either in their drill halls or on a church parade, which afforded me no means of judging of their value in a tactical sense. As a rule they were well turned out, their arms and equipment in serviceable condition, they performed 'parade movements' with accuracy, and executed the manual and firing exercises correctly and with very fair precision. The one city regiment that I was able to inspect both in its drill hall and at practical work, the 1st Garrison Artillery, acquitted itself most creditably in every way, and is, I consider, an excellent example of a good city corps.

It is very much to be desired that steps should be taken with a view to affording the urban regiments some practical experience in the way of field training, i.e., 'outpost duties,' 'scouting,' 'attack and defence of positions,' and the execution of 'hasty entrenchments,' but so long as their training is confined to the limited area of a drill hall with an occasional evening route march and a few church parades, it is obviously impossible for them to learn those most important duties of a soldier. I feel quite sure that all the city corps are animated by a most keen desire to render themselves thoroughly efficient in every respect, and I trust that it may be possible to introduce such measures as will give them greater facilities for 'field training' than at present they possess.

ARTILLERY.

(5.) The most important event connected with the Artillery service during the past year was undoubtedly the organization of the Brigade Division for service in South Africa, consisting of 3 Field Batteries on a War establishment. The order for mobilization was issued on December 20th, (M.O. 265) and in the depth of winter (January), these units had to be raised, equipped, horsed, and despatched to the port of embarkation. It was not deemed desirable to send the existing Batteries of the Permanent Force and consequently 3 Special Service Batteries—C, D and E—were formed, made up by drafts from A & B Batteries, R.C.A., and volunteers from all the Batteries of Militia Field Artillery in the country. The call was splendidly responded to and the applications from officers and men were so far in excess of the numbers required that many were necessarily disappointed.

C. Battery was organized by Major J. G. Hudon, Royal Canadian Artillery, at Kingston, and E. Battery, by Major G. H. Ogilvie, R.C.A. at Quebec, under the supervision of Lt.-Colonel F. G. Stone, Royal Artillery. D Battery, was organized at Ottawa by Colonel W. H. Cotton, Assistant Adjutant General for Artillery at Head-Quarters, and Major W. G. Hurdman, of the 2nd Field Battery, Canadian Artillery, was appointed to command it.

The Staff of the Brigade Division consisted of :—

Lt.-Colonel, C. W. Drury, A.D.C., R. C. Artillery, in command.
Adjutant—Captain H. C. Thacker, R.C.A.
Medical Officer—Surg.-Major A. N. Worthington, A.M.S.
Veterinary Officer—Veterinary Major J. Massie, R.C.A.
Attached for Duty—Captain H. J. Mackie, 42nd Regiment.

The work of organization was a duty of great responsibility, especially as the officers entrusted with it were unacquainted with the needs of a Battery on a War footing, and all the non-commissioned officers and men were unacquainted with their officers or with each other. That the confidence reposed in them was justified, is proved by the excellent reputation that these units gained for themselves on service in the Field, and by the commendation bestowed upon them by The Field Marshal Commanding in Chief in South Africa.

In order to equip these Batteries with the 12-pr. B.L. gun it was necessary to take the entire equipment of A and B Batteries, R.C.A. and that of the 2nd Field Battery, C.A. and in addition, the 1st and 3rd Field Batteries had to be indented upon to complete the equipment.

The 6th Field Battery also was required to hand over its guns and equipment to the remnant of A and B Batteries remaining at Kingston, for drill and instructional purposes, and therefore it will be seen that in order to place 3 Field Batteries on a War footing it was necessary to seriously cripple three others.

A AND B BATTERIES, R.C.A.

(6.) These two Batteries having been reduced to skeletons had to be partially recruited and the remnant of B Battery was sent to Kingston, and attached to A Battery, the whole under the command of Lt.-Colonel J. A. Fages, and several officers of the Militia Field Artillery were called in for duty, with excellent results. I personally inspected these units at Kingston, and taking into consideration the great difficulties against which they had to contend, the Commanding Officer deserves much credit for bringing such young soldiers and remounts to a very satisfactory state of efficiency and discipline.

GARRISON DIVISION, R.C.A.

(7.) The two companies comprising this Division, stationed in the Citadel at Quebec, have been also much depleted in all ranks by drafts to South Africa, though scarcely to the same extent as the Field Artillery. I personally inspected these companies under Lt.-Colonel Wilson, R.C.A., and found them efficient, well drilled, and everything in good order. Discipline had been well maintained, and the comforts of the men carefully studied. I regret that I cannot report the condition of the Fortress as being satisfactory. In many places it shows signs of serious dilapidation and portions of the works are becoming overgrown with weeds. I do not think that the present Garrison, even if up to its full establishment (173 rank and file), could possibly keep such extensive works in proper order and free from rank grass and weeds, in addition to its Artillery training and duties, and I strongly recommend the permanent employment of a few 'Barrack Labourers' who should be selected from discharged men of good character from the Permanent Force, and whose special duty should be to keep in proper order the works and approaches to the Fortress.

ARTILLERY PRACTICE.

(8.) I unfortunately arrived in Canada too late to be present at the Field Artillery practice-camp at Deseronto, and the only units that I was able to see perform their annual firing were the 3rd Field Battery at Montreal and 1st (Halifax) Regiment of Garrison Artillery. The latter corps having, through the kindness of the General Officer Commanding Her Majesty's Forces in Canada, enjoyed the advantage of instruction by an officer of the Royal Garrison Artillery, showed a very satisfactory proficiency, and the practice with 9-inch R.M.L. guns made at a moving target proved that this unit had taken every advantage of its opportunities.

The report of the Inspector General of Artillery, Lt.-Colonel Stone, R.A., on the proceedings at the Deseronto Camp, is evidence of the excellent result of bringing the Field Artillery together in Brigade Divisions, and combining their annual practice with advanced instruction in Artillery Tactics under a highly trained and qualified leader.

I propose to carry out a similar concentration at Deseronto this season, and it is much to be wished that the same facilities for the tactical grouping of Artillery units could be provided for the other provinces.

The progress in efficiency made this year by the Canadian Artillery under the supervision of Lieut.-Colonel F. G. Stone, R.A., appears to have been most marked. Judging from my own observations and from the admirable report attached as Appendix D, this officer was most assiduous in the performance of his duties, and the Dominion was very fortunate in having at its disposal when the Brigade Division for South Africa was being formed, the services of one of the most able, energetic and up-to-date artillerists in the British Service, and to whom the Canadian Artillery is much indebted.

ARTILLERY PRACTICE, GARRISON UNITS.

(9.) Gun practice for the following Artillery units was carried out at the Island of Orleans in the month of August:

Garrison Division—Royal Canadian Artillery.

6th Regiment Canadian Artillery.

Cobourg Garrison Company.

This practice, the details of which are included in Lt.-Col. Stone's very able report, does not appear to have been a success, for the only guns available were 64-pr. R.M.L. and 40-pr. R.B.L., the actual practice being confined to the latter. Both these types of guns are virtually obsolete, slow to work and use 'black powder.' As was to be expected, the practice from the 40-pr. R.B.L. by the Royal Canadian Artillery was as good as possible from that gun. I have already referred to the good work performed by the 1st Halifax Artillery Regiment under the command of Lt.-Colonel Oxley, who fired from 9-in. guns at York Redoubt, Halifax. Both divisions of this Regiment were trained under the supervision of Captain Phillips, Royal Garrison Artillery, whose report is attached (Appendix G), and who was indefatigable in carrying out the drills and practices. I hope that his valuable services, so readily given, will be suitably acknowledged.

The 4th Regiment performed its practice at Fort Dufferin, St. John, N.B, with 40-pr. R.B.L. guns. It was as satisfactory as could be expected.

The 5th Regiment at Victoria, B.C. have not yet practised with the 6 in. B.L. guns at that station, owing it is said to late arrival of the necessary ammunition, but it will be carried out at as early a date as possible.

It is much to be regretted that the want of modern armament has prevented much improvement in the practice of the Artillery units.

The arrival of 5 in. Howitzers will render it possible to practice with them this year, if, as I have reason to believe, the Cartridge Factory at Quebec will be in a position to supply iron practice projectiles.

I purpose submitting a scheme for the mobilization of the Garrison Artillery units, and that drill and practice in 1901 shall be carried out in accordance therewith. By this means all ranks will become acquainted with the duties assigned to them in war, and even if changes therein should subsequently be required, as is very possible, the instruction to the officers cannot be overestimated.

PRACTICE BATTERY, QUEBEC.

(10.) The establishment of a practice battery for Garrison Artillery on the River St. Lawrence at or near Quebec is a matter of great importance. A suitable site has been surveyed and plans prepared, and it is much to be hoped that it may be possible to proceed with the construction at an early date.

ARTILLERY GUN SHEDS.

(11.) With the advent of the new Field Artillery equipment the provision of suitable gun sheds is a matter of much importance, and in view of the costly nature of the harness, saddlery stores, &c., I venture to hope that this subject may receive prompt and most careful consideration.

I would also beg to urge that if the Field Artillery equipment is to receive the care and attention required by such valuable stores, a permanent paid caretaker is a necessity.

MAGAZINES, ETC., WARLIKE STORES.

(12.) In his report for last year the Chief Superintendent of Military Stores calls attention to the urgent necessity of magazine accommodation being provided at Toronto and London, and stores at Toronto and Kingston. In this I entirely concur. The concentration of our warlike stores at one extremity of this vast Dominion is on every military consideration most pernicious. In time of peace it is inconvenient in the extreme, and in time of war it might very easily prove disastrous.

The advantages of decentralization are now so thoroughly recognized by all modern authorities on military administration, that I cannot too strongly urge that western Canada should, at the earliest possible opportunity be provided with store and magazine accommodation sufficient to meet the requirements of the troops.

Pending this I recommend that an adequate supply of ammunition be maintained at Kingston for all arms in those districts.

MUSKETRY.

(13.) The musketry training of the Militia has been hampered by lack of range accommodation. This defect, I am glad to report, is having careful attention and every effort is being made by the Department to provide for our needs in this respect as funds become available. A new and excellent range is in progress at St. John, N.B., and the Quartermaster General has this year inspected proposed sites at Sherbrooke, Que., Victoria, Fredericton, N.B., Kaslo and Nelson, B.C.

Practice with the miniature cartridge (Morris Tube) has been carried out with satisfactory results, and is a most useful adjunct in musketry instructions, especially for the training of recruits, and I have recommended the issue of 50 rounds of Morris Tube ammunition to each recruit of the city corps with the necessary arms, at all stations where it may be practicable to establish miniature ranges for practice during the winter months.

Although I believe that every effort has been made that existing conditions permitted, to carry out the musketry instruction of infantry units, I consider that as a whole the musketry efficiency of our troops is very far below the standard required by the conditions of modern warfare, and I have had the honour to submit to you a proposal for the appointment of a qualified officer as Inspector General of Musketry, who would be charged with the supervision of the musketry training of the forces, and also a scheme for the establishment of a Royal Canadian School of Musketry on the model of the Imperial School at Hythe.

Such a school would in due course provide qualified instructors, commissioned and non-commissioned, for the whole of our troops, and would ensure the musketry training being carried out according to the most approved modern methods. I venture to hope my proposals may meet with the favourable consideration of the Canadian Government.

SOUTH AFRICAN CONTINGENTS.

(14.) The preparation and despatch of the 1st Contingent to South Africa has already been dealt with fully in the report of Major General E. T. H. Hutton, C.B., A.D.C., dated December 31, 1899.

During the first three months of this year the 2nd Contingent, consisting of two regiments of Mounted Rifles and three batteries of Field Artillery, was organized and despatched from Halifax on Jan. 21 and 27 and Feb. 21.

The assembling, clothing and equipping these troops—in all 1,233 men—and the purchase of horses, as well as their transport to the port of embarkation, and the provisioning and quartering of the units, entailed constant and heavy work upon the Quarter-Master General and his subordinates, in which he received every assistance from the staff of the Civil Branches of the Department.

The rapidity with which the 2nd Contingent was organized and despatched without, so far as I am aware, a hitch of any description, I think reflects great credit upon all the officials of the Department engaged in the duties of mobilization.

It is a matter for congratulation that the officers, N.C. officers and men of the 1st Contingent have been able to return to Canada before the close of the year, andenjoy a well earned and happy Christmas with their friends at home, and according to present information the 2nd Contingent should land in Canada on or about January 6, 1901.

The gallant services of all the Canadian troops employed in the field in South Africa is now a matter of history, and the Dominion from east to west has accorded her sons a reception worthy of their devotion to duty in the ranks of the Imperial Forces. Those officers, N.C. officers and men who had the privilege of visiting the Mother Country received the honour of a personal inspection by Her Gracious Majesty and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and the ovation they received in England is an evidence of the warm appreciation and regard entertained by all classes in the United Kingdom towards their fellow-subjects from the outposts of the Empire.

I cannot pass from this subject without bringing to notice the very excellent work performed by the chief railways in the country in transporting the large number of men and horses that were conveyed over their lines during the mobilization and despatch of the contingents to South Africa. The Quarter-Master General reports to me that he met with the greatest attention, patience and courtesy from all railway officials and agents in arranging all these movements, which were carried out with the utmost promptitude and regularity, often under stress of time and at very short notice. The way in which the railways handled the concentration at Halifax of nearly 3,000 men and 1,800 horses, both in large and small parties and from every part of the Dominion for nearly 4,000 miles, and during the severest weather, was a most important element in the successful despatch of the contingents and deserves every recognition.

I would also place on record the obligation under which the Department rests, to the staff of the Imperial garrison at Halifax, N.S., for assistance very cordially given to our officials. I can speak from personal knowledge as regards the disembarkation of the 1st Contingent, and I trust that a suitable expression of appreciation may be officially conveyed to the Officer Commanding Her Majesty's Forces in Canada.

A full report of the operations in which the Canadian troops were employed is being prepared and will, in due course, be submitted as a supplementary report.

CAMPING ARRANGEMENTS.

(15.) The arrangements for training Camps were made on the same lines as in 1899.

The Quarter-Master General visited all the camps during the period of instruction (with the exception of Aldershot, N.S.), and he was thus enabled to see by personal inspection the suitability of the localities for the number of troops encamped, the adequacy of the water supply, the requirements as to camp equipment, arrangements for cooking and messing and the rifle ranges in use by the troops.

He reports that everything was satisfactory, with the following exceptions, viz :—

London.—Rifle range has been closed as dangerous.

Kingston.—Range should be closed for the same reason.

Laprairie.—Ground rough, marshy and unsuitable. Proximity of village causes drunkenness and indiscipline.

Levis.—Ground rough, should be ploughed and sown.

It is recommended that the troops of Military District No. 4 should be trained at Ottawa, camped on or near the Rockcliffe range where musketry practice could be carried out, and that the troops of Nos. 5 and 6 Military Districts should be trained by brigades on the new Montreal rifle range, where a water supply should be provided.

CAMP EQUIPMENT.

(16.) The practice of each District Officer Commanding, demanding the equipment that he considers necessary, leads to want of uniformity in the camps and causes great labour in checking at headquarters. I recommend that a scale of camp equipment be adopted and published in General Orders for future use. I also recommend that the regulations be so amended as to allow the D.A.A.G (B.) of each camp with his clerk, assisted by a few men to lay out the camp, to be on the ground at least 2 days clear before the arrival of the troops, and for the same time at least after their departure so as to be able to deal satisfactorily with the issue and return of camp equipment. Confusion, loss of stores, and in some cases personal over work and pecuniary loss resulted from the arrangements in force last year. The necessary labour for forming the camps should be provided from the nearest depôts of the Permanent Force.

REGIMENTAL ARMOURIES.

(17.) Some progress has been made towards supplying Regimental Armouries, and those which should be provided next year have been scheduled by the Quarter-Master General for estimates. I would urge the great importance of providing armouries and gun sheds for the rural corps with a view to the issue of the Lee-Enfield rifle and the new Field Guns to all the militia. The fact that all our troops are not armed alike creates confusion in peace and would probably be disastrous in war.

DRILL HALLS.

(18.) The provision of Drill Halls at London, Peterborough and Sherbrooke is strongly recommended as the units in these important stations do not possess any suitable places in which to drill or store their arms and equipment. This is a very serious detriment to the efficiency of these corps and it is hoped that steps may be taken at an early date to supply their needs.

BARRACK WORKS.

(19.) The allowance of $25 per month granted to units of the permanent force has enabled small repairs to barracks to be carried out by men of the corps with benefit to the men themselves and economy to the public, while avoiding the trouble and delay entailed by obtaining tenders from tradesmen.

INTELLIGENCE DEPARTMENT.

(20.) Heretofore no organized system of intelligence work appears to have existed in the Militia Department, and it seems most necessary that this very important matter should be at once placed upon a sound practical basis. I have recommended that an Intelligence Staff Officer should be added to the department of the Quarter-Master General, and as it is impracticable for the Quarter-Master General to carry out this addition to his other important duties without assistance, I hope that my recommendation may be favourably considered by the Government.

The survey carried out by the cadets of the Royal Military College annually since 1895 was continued during the summer vacation and a tract of some 1,700 square miles in the Eastern Townships was completed. The previous year's survey was reproduced on a scale of 1 in. and 3 in. to a mile, making a valuable addition to our topographical information.

MEDICAL SERVICES.

(21.) In common with other branches of the Militia Department, the despatch of the contingents to South Africa entailed considerable work upon the Director General of the Medical Services, Colonel J. L. H. Neilson, G.C.H.S., and the very satisfactory manner in which the medical units were organized and equipped for service in the field reflects, I think, very great credit upon that officer and the staff of the Medical Department.

NEW MEDICAL UNITS.

(22.) Under authority of G. O. 82 of 1899 'Establishments,' eight new units of the Army Medical Corps were localized, organized and recruited during this year, and I attach (Appendix C), a very full and able report from the Director General Medical Services, giving in detail the progress made during the year in the administration of the services under his command.

MEDICAL DETAILS IN CAMP.

(23.) I had the opportunity of personally observing the work of the Army Medical Service at the Camps at Aldershot, N.S., and at Sussex, N.B., and it affords me great pleasure to report that the duties were carried out entirely to my satisfaction. The Hospital Encampments were well laid out, clean and neat, the patients appeared to be well treated and to have every practicable comfort ; and the reports and documents were prepared and kept up with due care and accuracy.

ADDITIONAL UNITS.

(24.) I do not feel justified in endorsing the recommendation of the Director General that four new medical units should be organized and recruited in 1901, so far as the personnel is concerned ; because I consider that there are other services which are of a more urgent nature, but I strongly recommend that the material should be provided, viz. :

Technical Equipment—

32 field stretchers,
4 ambulance wagons,
4 water carts,
32 Field Hospital tents.

The officers and men, clothing and accoutrements, could be raised and provided at comparatively short notice, but the above named stores could not, and consequently it is a matter of very great importance that they should be procured without delay and held in store charge against an emergency.

APPOINTMENT OF PRINCIPAL MEDICAL OFFICERS TO DISTRICTS.

(25.) I concur in the recommendation that principal medical officers should be appointed to Military Districts 3 and 4, 5 and 6, 8, 9 and 12, but I do not consider that the nature of their duties is such as to require an annual rate of pay in addition to that which they would receive during the annual training. I suggest that these officers should be granted an 'office allowance' to cover the expense of clerical assistance, stationery, postage and sundry outgoings incidental to the performance of their duties, at the rate of fifty dollars ($50) per annum.

The Militia Medical Services are, I consider, particularly efficient.

ROYAL MILITARY COLLEGE.

(26.) I visited the Royal Military College, Kingston, and was much pleased with the institution in every way. The Cadets appeared to be a very smart, well drilled and intelligent body of young men, and their conduct and diligence was reported to be most satisfactory. That so many of the gentlemen Cadets receive commissions in the Imperial Service, proves the excellence of the education afforded by the curriculum of the College, and it is a matter of very great regret that after receiving such a sound military training so few of the Cadets join the military service of their own country, while such a large proportion seek a market for their acquirements in the United States. I beg to urge that in view of the cost to the state of the education of these young gentlemen, it would be a national economy to offer them some practical inducement to secure their services to the Active Militia and the Permanent Corps.

I attach (Appendix E) the Report of the Commandant which I consider very satisfactory. Colonel Kitson, C.M.G., having recently been appointed Military Attaché at Washington, U.S.A., has resigned his appointment which for upwards of four years he has held with very great credit to himself and with most beneficial results to the well-being of the College. The value of having at the head of such a military institution, a soldier of Colonel Kitson's ability and experience cannot be overestimated, and in losing him Canada is deprived of the services of a most excellent officer.

(28). The following changes in the Staff of the Canadian Militia took place during the year :—

SOUTH AFRICAN APPOINTMENTS.

(29). The number of Canadian Officers and Non-Commissioned Officers who were selected for appointments to the Staff and for special duties in South Africa, is a matter for much satisfaction as a proof of the high opinion formed by the Commander in Chief of the Canadian Contingents.

The following is a partial list of the fortunate recipients, and the posts conferred upon them :

Major S. J. A. Denison, R.C.R.I., A.D.C. to Field Marshal, Commander in Chief.
Major J. C. MacDougall, R.C.R.I., Railway Staff Officer, April 5 to date.
Lt.-Colonel W. D. Gordon, Staff of Base Commandant, July 1. Asst. Staff Officer for Prisoners, Aug. 28 to date.
Lt.-Colonel J. L. Biggar, D.A.A.G.

Trooper W. H. Peebles, C.M.R., Army Service Corps, with local rank of 2nd Lieutenant.
Trooper H. G. Baldwin, C.M.R., Civil Surgeon, from May 1, 1900.

COMMISSIONS IN THE ARMY.

(30). An unusual large number of Commissions in the Army have been granted to Canada during the past twelve months.

Some twenty-one have been given to Graduates of, and Cadets in attendance at, the Royal Military College.

Early in the year the following Officers, who were candidates for Commissions in the Army under the regulations for the granting of Commissions to Colonial Forces, were given Commissions without undergoing further examinations :—

Lieut. L. B. Webster, 68th Regiment.
2nd Lieut. A. N. Vince, Brighton Engineers.
2nd Lieut. E. M. Harris, 7th Regiment.
2nd Lieut. C. A. Boone, 36th Regiment.
2nd Lieut. E. S. Osler, 36th Regiment.
2nd Lieut. A. Lewis, 10th Regiment.

Thirty other Commissions in the Army were placed at the disposal of His Excellency the Governor General; twenty-four of these His Excellency allotted to our Special Service Forces in South Africa, and the remaining six were reserved for applicants in Canada.

No military qualification was necessary for appointment to one of these Commissions, civilians being equally as eligible as qualified officers in that respect.

Ten appointments as Assistant Inspectors in the West African Constabulary were also offered to Canada during the year. Five of these have been allotted, the successful candidates being :—

Capt. J. L. R. Parry, 90th Regiment.
Capt. J. Wayling. 12th Regiment.
Capt. W. F. W. Carstairs, 56th Regiment.
Capt. A. G. Rastrick, 37th Regiment.
Capt. E. B. Fritze, 75th Regiment.

Unfortunately Captain Fritze failed to pass the necessary medical examination, and it is hoped that a selection for this vacancy will be made at an early date.

The five remaining Commissions have not been allotted as yet, but an intimation has been received that the nominations for them will be considered as opportunities offer.

RIFLE AND ARTILLERY ASSOCIATIONS.

(31). The very great importance of the Dominion Rifle Association and the Dominion Artillery Association in their relation to the Canadian Militia cannot be overestimated.

The competitions carried out under their auspices serve to stimulate a keen interest in rifle shooting and gun practice, and it is not too much to say that the best interests of the Forces are inseparably bound up with the success and progress of these two Associations. Both, in my opinion, deserve the cordial support of everyone interested in the Militia Service, and I would add, merit all the aid that the Government can afford them.

SUBSIDIARY REPORT.

(32). I attach (Appendix B), a Report from Colonel the Honourable M. Aylmer, Adjutant General, who, between the dates of Major General Hutton's departure and my assumption of Command, was in temporary Command of the Canadian Militia, and carried out the Inspections at all the Camps of Instruction, excepting those in the Maritime Provinces. This officer's long experience of the Forces in the Dominion adds to the value of his able report which deals with rural troops that, as yet, I have had no opportunity of inspecting.

CONCLUSION.

(33). In closing this report, I desire to express my warm appreciation of the efficient manner in which their important duties have been performed by the officers of my Headquarter Staff, and their subordinates; and my very cordial thanks are also due to the officials of the Civil Branches of the Department for the uniform courtesy and co-operation that I have received from them, which has greatly facilitated the performance of my duties.

I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient servant,

R. H. O'GRADY HALY,
Major General Commanding Canadian Militia.

OTTAWA, December 31, 1900.

APPENDIX A.

MEMORANDUM SUGGESTING MEASURES FOR THE MORE SUFFICIENT TRAINING OF RURAL UNITS OF THE CANADIAN MILITIA.

WASTAGE.

At my recent inspections I was much impressed by the excessive 'wastage' in the country corps and the large and profitless expenditure thereby entailed upon the State.

Under normal conditions 33 per cent of the total force should represent the annual recruiting requirements of the Militia, but very careful enquiry elicited the fact that the number of recruits (i.e. 1st year men) in the ranks averaged between 50 per cent and 60 p r cent of the total strength under arms, so that obviously there must have been nearly 25 per cent of desertions, and I was assured that similar conditions obtained every year. It is scarcely necessary to point out how detrimental this is to the efficiency of the Canadian Forces, and the serious financial loss it entails upon the country.

To me it appears degrading to the moral sense of the people that annually a large number of intelligent and fairly well educated young men should enter into a three years' contract with their country, and deliberately break it with impunity. So far as I can gather, the engagement to serve for three years is generally looked upon as an empty formality, the fulfilment of which no Government would venture to enforce, but that the very same individuals who do not hesitate to thus defraud the State, would no doubt honestly carry out a civil contract which they knew would be exacted by law.

I think it more than probable that the gravity of the offence is not appreciated, and that if it was clearly made known that 'deserters' would be proceeded against under clause 85 of the Militia Act and that a few men were tried and convicted, much of the trouble would gradually disappear, especially if a system of transfers was instituted so that young men who desired to change their residence might complete their engagement with another unit.

It does not appear from the Militia Act that any legal provision is made for the calling out of enrolled militiamen for their annual training, by personal notices, such as is prescribed by the British 'Militia Act., 1882,' Clause 21 and 22, to which I would invite attention, and I suggest that it is of the utmost importance to the efficiency of the defensive forces of Canada that our Militia Act be amended by the addition of similar provisions, with such modifications as may be necessary to adapt them to local conditions.

There is, however, another measure which I believe would go far to render service in the Militia more popular and thus serve to retain men in the ranks, and this is a scale of pay graduated in proportion to efficiency. I venture to suggest that the pay of the 'Private' militiaman be thus varied according to his service, viz :—

1st year's service	50	cents per diem.
3rd "	75	"

And I would further strongly recommend that on the expiration of the three years' engagement, men of good conduct and especially non-commissioned officers be encouraged to continue in the service on annual attestations not exceeding six years in all, receiving a gratuity on the conclusion of each extended year's training. It must be borne in mind that the value of a measure of this nature cannot be estimated by the personal efficiency of the men thus retained, but rather by the effect upon the younger militiamen of being associated with a larger percentage of soldiers better trained and disciplined than themselves, and I can answer for it, as the outcome of many years' experience in the training of young soldiers, that habits of cheerful obedience and other soldier-like attributes are far more quickly acquired from good example, than by any amount of precept or coercion

DURATION OF TRAINING.

It is absolutely impossible in twelve days (from which must be deducted one Sunday and the days of arrival and departure) to give more than the most perfunctory and rudimentary training to the Country Corps in Camp.

I can testify to the admirable zeal and diligence with which the drills and duties are carried out by all ranks, but the time is far too short to produce any real practical result in tactical efficiency. One most conspicuous defect is that with so large a percentage of 'recruits,' the drill of the older soldiers is kept back until the former are, to a certain extent, fit to take their place in the ranks, and to meet this difficulty I would suggest that the 'recruits' should drill for the full sixteen days permitted by the Act, performing four days 'recruit drill' before the remainder of the unit assembled for training.

This preliminary drill could be carried out at the Regimental Head-Quarters under the Adjutant, Sergeant Major and some picked instructors, or better still at the 'Camps of Exercise,' and I am confident that it would be found to greatly increase the efficiency of the Forces.

I must, however, most strongly urge that even the full sixteen days is quite insufficient for the effective training of the troops, and that to obtain any practical efficiency, clause 60 of the Militia Act should be so far amended as to make the statutory drill period from eight to twenty-four days instead of from eight to sixteen days as at present. The 'recruits' of rural corps should then perform twenty-one days drill and the trained soldiers fourteen days, the latter assembling seven days later than the former. This would permit of a few days being devoted to practical training in field manœuvres which under existing conditions is absolutely impossible, and so strongly am I convinced of the benefit that would result from this extension of the training period, that if expense be an obstacle to its adoption, I would advocate training fewer infantry units annually and thus improve the quality at some sacrifice in quantity.

It would not be advisable to omit the training of any of the Cavalry or Field Artillery units. Such large sums have been expended on luxurious drill halls and armouries for the urban corps, that I venture to urge the claims of the country corps to consideration. In these the Dominion has the making of a magnificent force of hardy, willing and intelligent men upon whom the country might with confidence rely, if only its unquestionable capabilities were properly developed in time of peace, and any expenditure incurred in improving the opportunities for its training, and making the service more popular, would, I am sure, be money well laid out.

CAVALRY AND ARTILLERY HORSES.

As a rule the mounted units that came under my observation in the Maritime Provinces, were very well horsed, but it has been brought to my notice that it would greatly facilitate the keeping up of the Cavalry Regiments and Field Batteries, if rough shelters for the horses could be provided at the Camps.

I myself saw at Camp Sussex, N.B., the horses of the 8th Hussars and the 10th and 12th Field Batteries standing for forty-eight hours with saturated blankets and sleeping in pools of water.

Such an experience deters farmers from hiring their horses or bringing them to Camp themselves, and it could be avoided by constructing very rough shelters. On active service it is unavoidable that both men and horses shall suffer privations and exposure, but no useful purpose is served by making them do so for instructional purposes.

It only disgusts the men and renders the service unpopular.

From inquiries I made, I have reason to believe that were such rough stables constructed, the men would for the most part, gladly pay from 50 cents to $1 each per training for the use of them, which would in time pay the greater part of their cost and expense of up-keep.

MESSING AND RATIONS.

My observations and inquiries at the camps have convinced me that the messing arrangements for the rank and file are not yet so satisfactory as they might be, and I think to some extent this deters men from joining and remaining in the service; the cooking and the conditions under which the food is served out and eaten, being usually very far from comfortable. On active service such conditions would be unavoidable, but in camps of instruction more suitable arrangements could easily be made. Of course the most complete would be an issue of marquees, say one between two companies, with tables and forms, but this would entail perhaps more expense than I consider justifiable for the short period that the men remain in camp. As an alternative I recommend an arrangement that I saw in use by the 69th, 78th and 93rd Regiments at Aldershot Camp, N.S. This consisted of tables and forms of rough lumber erected by carpenters in those Regiments and the cost complete was about $25 per Battalion less the amount realized for the lumber, which was sold at the termination of the Camp. In fine weather the men were able to take their meals in a much more orderly, cleanly and comfortable way at these tables than those who messed in their 'Bell' tents.

The credit of this plan is due to Lt.-Colonel Irving, D. O. C., District No. 9, at whose suggestion the experiment was tried, and it was so far successful that I recommend it for further trial at summer camps.

The rations supplied were, in my opinion, of very good quality, and ample in quantity, but I think a little more variety would be greatly appreciated by the men; and I beg to suggest that twice a week a ration of pork and beans be issued in lieu of meat and cheese. This would not cause any additional expense, but rather a saving.

Twelve lbs. of pork (mess pork) and ½ bushel (30 lbs.) of beans (yellow eyed) would, it is asserted, make a good meal for one hundred hearty men, but I confess I look upon this as somewhat under-estimated.

Pork averages 10 cents per lb. and beans about $1.50 per bushel, and allowing for one hundred men, as much as 36 lbs. pork, $3.60; 1 bushel beans, $1.60; total, $5.20; the cost per ration would be a small fraction over 5 cents, whereas the meat and cheese ration costs, I believe, about 6 cents.

The cooking at the Aldershot and Sussex Camps was primitive and very rough, and in this matter I think there is room for some considerable improvement. There is no difficulty, I am told, in securing the services of men thoroughly experienced in the methods of cooking practised in lumber camps, and I would advocate very strongly that a proportion of such men be hired for the summer camps as 'Master Cooks' to supervise and give instruction in preparation of men's food in a palatable form. By this means it would be possible to establish a uniform system of camp cookery that would give satisfaction to the troops.

In submitting the foregoing remarks and recommendations, I beg to add that they are the result of very careful observation and inquiry, representing also the views of many experienced Militia officers whose opinions I consider very valuable. My suggestions involve no drastic changes of organization nor of system, and I am confident that if adopted they would tend to such efficiency as would amply compensate for a small addition to the estimates. I venture to hope therefore that you will give them your favourable consideration and that it may be possible to give effect to them in the coming season.

R. H. O'GRADY HALY, Major General,
Commanding Canadian Militia.

APPENDIX B.

REPORT OF THE ADJUTANT GENERAL, CANADIAN MILITIA.

To the Major General Commanding Canadian Militia:

OTTAWA, January 14, 1901.

SIR,—I have the honour, by your request, to report on the work of my office during the year ending December 31, ultimo.

ANNUAL TRAINING.

(1.) Having been in command of the Militia from the date of the retirement of Major General Hutton, viz., February 12, 1900, until the date of your arrival in Montreal, viz., July 29, 1900, it fell to my lot to inspect the following Camps of Instruction:—

Military District No. 1, at London.
" No. 2, at Niagara-on-the-Lake.
" No. 3 and 4, at Kingston.
" No. 5 and 6, at Laprairie.
" No. 7, at Levis, and the Artillery Camp at Deseronto.

I deem it advisable to bring to your notice, in anticipation of the time when you may have an opportunity of judging for yourself, the following remarks on the state of the Force under your command, in the Districts named.

DIVISIONAL CAMPS.

(2.) The Divisional Camp system inaugurated during the preceding year, was followed during 1900. This system might be profitably adapted for the training of the Militia, if the area of the camp grounds, and the numbers of Instructional Staff available were sufficient, and the period of annual training increased from 12 to 16 days at the least.

The number of privates per company of the rural regiments of infantry might, in my opinion, be reduced, and a progressive rate of pay for length of service, as well as an increase of pay to all qualified N. C. officers, provided, with a view to inducing this deserving class to become thoroughly efficient, when they would be available as efficient section commanders and, possibly, instructors.

If these conditions, or most of them, are not obtainable, then the system of Brigade Camps which formerly prevailed, is to be preferred.

CAMP GROUNDS.

(3.) In every instance I found the camp grounds systematically and well laid out, clean and tidy. I fear, however, that in some instances they will have to be abandoned for want of convenient rifle ranges.

CAMP EQUIPMENT.

(4.) The camp equipment supplied was all that could be reasonably expected. At Laprairie and Levis a good deal of wet weather was experienced. There appeared to be ample waterproof sheets and blankets, and the tents appeared to be proof against the rain.

I could not, however, fail to observe that the men are not provided with comfortable and common sense means of enjoying their meals. To see N. C. officers and men squatted around their tents, with greasy mess tins in their laps was not a pleasing sight at this date of our military organization, and I consider that prompt measures should be taken to remedy this.

A few regiments had provided tables, forms and awnings, for their own use, and these regiments were consequently comparatively comfortable. An expenditure of $200 per regiment would go a long way towards providing a messing tent, &c., and I consider that in no way could money be better expended in the interest of comfort and discipline. It does not seem fair that officers should be obliged to bear the cost of what is a prime necessity, and which I am sure the public would be glad to see made a charge against the revenue of the country.

DESERONTO CAMP.

(5.) For some six consecutive weeks Field Artillery camps assembled at Deseronto, under the command of Lt.-Colonel Stone, R.A., Inspector General of Artillery, whose report on these camps is before you.

Deseronto has advantages which should make it an important centre for artillery training, as well as for the mobilization and manœuvre of the other arms. It occupies a convenient geographical position in No. 3 Military District; is easy of access; an excellent place for gun or rifle practice; the camping grounds are large and are convenient for railway and steamboat travel, as well as being near the town, and there is an unlimited supply of excellent water. There are no other grounds within No. 3 Military District where gun and rifle practice can be carried on with safety.

CANTEENS.

(6.) We have heard a great deal during the past few years about the sale of liquor in camps. While I do not think that strong alcoholic drinks should be permitted, I am unable, after an experience of many years with the Canadian military forces, to advocate, or understand how well-intentioned people can advocate prohibiting the sale of lager beer and soft drinks. That men who have performed hard training in the heat of the day should be obliged to quench their thirst with lukewarm water conveyed to the grounds through half-exposed pipes, or in open headed hogsheads, and thus exposed to impurities, seems to me to be most unreasonable. If men are able to obtain soft drinks and lager beer instead of being compelled to drink impure or nauseating water, it would have the effect of restraining them from seeking stronger drinks outside the camping grounds, and from bringing liquor into camp in bottles, and thus temperance might better be promoted.

CEREMONIAL DRILL.

(7.) There are those who affect to sneer at ceremonial parades, but my knowledge of our militia has taught me that nothing steadies down all ranks and all arms, during our short period of drill in camps, more than the old-fashioned 'march past,' 'advance in review order' day, and the earlier this is carried out during the period of training the better; it should be limited to one or two practices.

At London this parade did splendidly; at Niagara and Levis, well, and, at the other camps I saw each brigade parade and carry out the usual formality, and after one or two trials, make surprising progress.

These parades cement a brigade together, bring the bands and all ranks into touch, and create a spirit of emulation that paves the way to more important operations.

CLOTHING AND BOOTS.

(8.) I found the clothing of good quality and as well fitting as could be expected where it is impossible to have it fitted for each individual man. It would, I think, add greatly to the comfort if the men were to adopt head-dress and clothing on the lines followed last year at London and Niagara, where straw hats and flannel shirts took the place of forage caps and tunics in some regiments.

The question of boots is a most difficult and serious problem for consideration. My solution would be, when a man is found deficient of a pair of serviceable boots to remove his name from the pay list of his company, and to return him at once to his headquarters. If he should prefer to remain with his corps he should be provided with a pair of government boots, at a fixed price, and the amount deducted from his pay. These boots should not be valued at more than $1.90, and if well made and of good material they should prove a boon to the man, either in or out of military service.

CAVALRY, RURAL CORPS.

(9.) The subject of mounted units is so interesting that I would like to call your attention particularly to it, as I am aware how much weight you attach to the question of mounted rifles.

The men and horses of the cavalry are, generally speaking, all that can be desired from a physical standpoint.

The men, who are from among our best to do people of the rural constituencies, are especially intelligent. Quite ninety per cent of the horses were well fitted for rough cavalry or mounted rifle work. Some of them were, perhaps—too valuable. The saddlery was good, but many of the head stalls and girths were too long—too much leather appearance– and many of the bits were, strange to say, too small to reach comfortably across the horses' mouths. The regulation bit and bridoon are not at all suitable to our unbitted Canadian horses. The Pelham is the better bit. Many collar ropes were conspicuous by their absence.

The system of picketing horses is generally well understood. With a sufficient supply of serviceable head and heel ropes of good quality, there should be no injuries to horses within the lines, as there have been frequently in the past.

Feeding is also well understood, and our veterinary officers are equal to all occasions, so far as our service is concerned.

The above practically applies to Field Artillery as well as Cavalry, except, perhaps in relation to bitting.

Natural shelters for horses from the hot sun which the trees afforded, were not always taken advantage of, from which I drew the conclusion that all Cavalry and Field Artillery commanders are not horsemen.

ENTERTAINMENTS IN CAMPS.

(10.) In some camps, London in this respect being particularly fortunate, many kindly disposed people lent their energies towards providing entertainments and supplying reading and writing material, as well as a place in which all ranks could read or write. In these several ways, the clergy, the ladies and the Y.M.C.A. greatly aided the Commandants and Staff.

GUARDS AND INLYING PICQUETS.

(11.) For some years it has been the rule to dispense with regimental guards and picquets. This has proved a decided mistake, as the neglect of brigade staff inspections, and particularly the want of daily inspections, has resulted in rusty rifles, dirty equipment and boots, and the unsoldierly habit of wearing long hair, to say nothing of the thousand and one important little lapses that only the daily inspection of a competent brigade staff officer can effectually check. It is wonderful how the change is effected by these inspections. In a day or two the belts and rifles improve ; in a couple of days more, the men appear with their hair cut,and a more tidy appearance--and by the end of the first week they can hardly be recognized as the troops who marched into camp, and the little gained each day, seems to permeate the whole, when, as if by magic, a soldierlike force presents itself throughout the camp.

MEDICAL SERVICE.

(12.) I understand the Director General Medical Services ismaking the medical service the subject of a report to you, but I would like to add, here, that nothing I saw during the camps gave me greater pleasure, or impressed me more favourably, than the extraordinary advancement made in this important branch, which augurs well for a possible Army Service and Engineer corps Service in the near future.

OFFICERS.

(13.) Except in occasional instances the officers of all arms were well turned out and uniformed. The want of sword knots and gloves appeared to be the rock upon which many split.

The majority of young officers had not qualified for commissions, but promised to do so at an early date. The possibilities, under proper guidance and encouragement, presented by the force of officers, alone, that I saw during my inspection, are pregnant with great military possibilities. They showed zeal and aptitude far beyond what their apparent opportunities could have afforded. Many of them are hard and clear-headed business men, and it should be made evident to them that soldiering is a business and not a mere holiday affair, and that they cannot do good soldiering without modern arms, the most sensible equipment, and efficient officers and men to carry out successfully the minutest detail.

The mounted officers were remarkably well turned out, and their riding was exceptionally good. It made me feel that the equitation courses provided by regulations have borne good fruit.

RIFLES AND EQUIPMENT.

(14.) The Snider-Enfield, the knapsack and the pipe-clay should be banished and the bayonets left at home. There is a universal feeling that they are out of date, and no amount of talking, scolding or 'instilling di-cipline' can stimulate the enlightened rank and file to devote their spare time to furbishing up a lot of trash. Even if the Department cannot provide proper armouries and a sufficient number of district staff officers to look after them, still, I maintain, the new Lee-Enfield rifles and Oliver equipment should be issued to all infantry, and let them take their chances with the regimental officers for safe keeping, for, under the present order of things, the whole infantry force of the rural districts is fast losing self respect, from the effect of being served out with an obsolete and used-up arm, and a lot of worthless equipment. I hardly took a Snider rifle in my hand, at any inspection last year, that was not unfit for use.

RIFLE PRACTICE.

(15.) In cases where there were no rifle ranges available the Morris Tube was used to fairly good purpose, for loading, aiming, and holding the rifle correctly, &c., and, in a few cases, that miniature system was also taken advantage of by way of supplementing the inadequacy of the range proper; but in no instance did the men receive either the theoretical or practical training necessary to ensure average shooting.

The crudest attempt at judging distance does not appear to have assumed even the form of a dream with our force, and it struck me most forcibly, as I passed from camp to camp, how terribly at sea our troops would be, were they armed with the best rifle, in event of having suddenly to face the meanest of 'regular' troops who had a fair idea of distance, to say nothing about their fire discipline, or their powers of shooting to hit.

STAFF OF THE CAMP.

(16.) I feel justified in saying that no country can produce a harder working or more intelligent staff than did duty from early morn till late at night, day in and day out, at every camp from London to Lévis, and the proof of their competency is the fact that progress and improvement was evident, and that these large bodies of men and horses were assembled, fed, sheltered, carefully instructed and transferred back to their homes without a serious casualty, mishap or crime.

NUMBERS TRAINED.

(17.) A feature of this year's camps was the large number required to complete the authorized establishment of the several corps. The only explanations I am able to give as to the cause of this, are, first, the large number of militiamen who were on service in South Africa, and secondly, the good times which prevailed at the time. Appendix F(1) will show the numbers trained, partly trained, and untrained.

SPECIAL SERVICE FORCES.

(18.) Having three thousand troops in the field in South Africa has made the year one of unusual moment in my office.

Officers commanding corps were instructed, on their departure from Canada, to forward by mail, weekly, the following:—Weekly state, Weekly sick report, Weekly staff Diary.

In addition to these reports they were instructed to forward, as opportunity permitted, general reports and also special reports on important actions in which their commands took part.

They were also instructed to report by cable all casualties and other matters of sufficient importance to warrant the expense. Speaking generally, it has been most evident that great care was taken by commanding officers to keep this office well informed as to all that was occurring, particularly the casualties, which were also reported to His Excellency the Governor General by Sir Alfred Milner, High Commissioner, Cape Town. Receiving information from these two sources, this office was enabled to announce casualties, with very few exceptions, promptly and correctly.

Once a week the commanding officers in South Africa were written to by me, in order that they and the Department should be kept well in touch, and that they should be informed as to what was occurring in Canada in connection with the Militia.

Early in July an arrangement was made by which cablegrams could be transmitted between our troops in South Africa and their relatives in Canada at a greatly reduced cost. These messages were forwarded as packed telegrams through the London Post Office. All telegrams to and from Canada were dealt with in this office, where they were unpacked and repeated to the parties concerned in Canada, or packed and sent to the Post Office at London for onward transmission to South Africa. This arrangement has been taken advantage of to a great extent by our troops in South Africa, and also, but not to so great an extent, by their relatives in Canada.

Great care is being taken in making the records concerning our Special Service Troops complete. These records are being made on cards, one for each officer, non-commissioned officer and man. On one side of the card will be the name, and particulars as regards age, regimental number, next of kin, place and date of appointment or enlistment, etc. On the other side the officer's or man's history as regards promotion, wounds, death from any cause, invalided home, date of discharge, &c.

When completed it is the intention to have these cards alphabetically arranged and bound. Their preparation is involving a great deal of time, and consequently expense, but it is believed that providing such easy means of procuring accurate particulars respecting our Special Service Troops will more than justify the expenditure of both time and money.

SCHOOLS OF INSTRUCTION.

(19.) The large number of officers, non commissioned officers and men of the Permanent Force who proceeded on service in South Africa rendered our Cavalry and Field Artillery Schools of instruction non-effective on the organization of the 2nd Contingent at the beginning of the year. An interruption in the courses of instruction at these stations was unavoidable.

In order that instruction might be resumed at the earliest possible date, officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the Permanent Corps, serving in South Africa, were made supernumerary to the establishment of their corps, and officers commanding units were authorized to enlist men for the vacancies, excepting as regards 'B' Battery, R.C.A. which was amalgamated with 'A' Battery at Kingston.

Officers were attached to the Permanent Corps for duty as follows :—

YUKON FORCE.

(20.) The balance of the Yukon Garrison, being no longer necessary as such, and the officers, non-commissioned officers and men being urgently required at their respective stations, was withdrawn upon the opening of navigation.

The rifles with which the Garrison were armed, and the ammunition, were left at Dawson, in the custody of the North-west Mounted Police.

A soldierlike spirit and zealous attention to duty characterized all ranks of this Force during its two years' service in the Yukon.

STAFF COURSE.

(21.) Owing to Lieut.-Colonel H. H. Burney, Gordon Highlanders, Professor of Strategy, Tactics and Staff Duties, at the Royal Military College, having resigned his appointment to rejoin his regiment, and to the difficulty of doing without the services of the Officers of the Permanent Corps who were selected to undergo the Course, at a time when so many Officers were in South Africa, the Staff Course for 1900, which commenced at the Royal Military College February 1, was discontinued from the 17th of that month. This was regrettable, but under the circumstances unavoidable.

The offer of temporary employment in connection with our schools of instruction, to the Officers who had obtained leave of absence from their civil employment to undergo this Course, was a thoughtful act on the part of the Honourable the Minister, and tended to lessen the disappointment caused by the discontinuance of the Course.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,

M. AYLMER, Colonel,
Adjutant General.

APPENDIX C.

CANADIAN MILITIA ARMY MEDICAL SERVICES—REPORT FOR 1900.

(From the Director General Medical Services.)

To the Major General Commanding the Militia.

EPITOME OF WORK ACCOMPLISHED.

SIR,—I beg to submit this my report for the year 1900.

2ND CONTINGENT TO SOUTH AFRICA.

With the beginning of January the undermentioned medical duties were being carried out under my direction :

RECRUITING.

1. Examination of recruits : This duty was fairly carried out in the larger military centres, but in the North-west Territories recruits had to be examined by civilian practitioners in many places where there were no Militia medical officers, with the result that on re-examination at a later period about 6 per cent were finally rejected as physically or mentally unfit. Several Militia examiners were also guilty of carelessness in this respect.

MEDICAL OFFICERS SELECTED.

2. The following Medical Officers were selected from about 110 applicants for service with the Canadian Militia in South Africa :—

Surgeon Major H. R. Duff (Surgeon-Major, 4th Hussars), detailed to the Royal Canadian Dragoons.

Lieutenant J. A. Devine (late Surgeon-Lieutenant, 90th Regiment), detailed to the Canadian Mounted Rifles.

Major A. N. Worthington (late Surgeon-Major, 53rd Regiment), detailed to the Brigade Division Field Artillery.

Lieutenant L. F. Vaux, A.M.S., unattached. These in addition to the three Medical Officers who accompanied the First Contingent.

FEMALE NURSES.

3. About 190 Canadian Graduated Nurses volunteered for service in South Africa. The Imperial authorities accepted the services of four only :

Miss D. Hurcomb,
" M. Horne,
" M. Macdonald,
" M. P. Richardson.

Four nurses had been sent with the First Contingent.* On their return to Canada I recommended that the cadres of a nursing service be inaugurated in connection with the Militia, and that positions therein be offered these ladies and other graduated and qualified nurses.

* Misses G. Pope, S. Forbes, M. Affleck, and E. Russell.

FIELD MEDICAL EQUIPMENT.

4. (a) There being no reserve of first field dressings, 1,300 packets were hurriedly manufactured, and the required number supplied to each unit. They seemed carefully made and equal to the packet issued to the Imperial Force.

(b.) The field equipment, as required by the 'Regulations Army Medical Services, 1897,' page 149, was issued to each unit, and in addition eight light field stretchers (Canadian pattern).

(c) A chest containing medical and surgical necessaries, and cases of medical comforts were provided for use on board ship, so that the field medical equipment might not be depleted before reaching South Africa.

(d.) A sufficiency of the best vaccine virus procurable, so that all might be vaccinated, was supplied to each medical officer, also some typhoid virus.

Appendix 'A' is a copy of the instructions issued by me to each medical officer in charge of troops on board ship.

MEDICAL REPORTS FROM THE FIELD FORCE.

5. The sick reports forwarded from the front to me by these officers are filed in the Adjutant General's office, under the following numbers :—

90140—Royal Canadian Dragoons.
88245— " Artillery.
89015—Canadian Mounted Rifles.
89752— " "
90905—1st " "

I have received no report whatever from the officer in medical charge of Strathcona's Horse.

RETURNING INVALIDS.

6. Application has been made to the Imperial authorities for instructions as to the organization of medical boards to report on cases of permanent or temporary disability. Definite instructions and assistance are meanwhile anxiously looked for by the returned disabled militiamen. A few have, however, been granted gratuities or pensions.

THE MEDICAL SERVICES.

THE C. M. A. MEDICAL STAFF.

1. The Canadian Militia Army Medical Staff G. O. 62 of 1899, para. 12, provides for the supervision of military districts by principal medical officers, and in G. O. 41–1900, page 12, three officers were appointed to Militia Districts. These appointments are still open in military districts 3 and 4, 5 and 6, 8, 9 and 12. To each group of districts I propose that one principal medical officer shall be appointed in addition to three already appointed. No special rate of pay has yet been sanctioned (see G. O. 62–1899, para. 12. I propose that it be fixed at 50 cents per diem in lieu of all expenses connected with the administration of the service, except when this officer is in receipt of full pay when on duty with troops.

(a.) Under provisions of G. O. 62–1899 and 19–1900 the medical staff was organized in March of this year, and the officers who had volunteered for this service were gazetted thereto by G. O. 25, pages 8, 9 and 10.

THE C. M. A. MEDICAL CORPS.

2. The Canadian Militia Army Medical Corps. No. 1 Bearer Company, Halifax, was formed in September, 1898, under authority of G. O. 64, 1898. Details of its personnel, special organization and loan technical equipment are to be found in A.G.O. No. 57350. It exists in connection with the Imperial scheme of defence of the Fortress of Halifax.

I inspected this company on March 16, 1900, and also on July 6, 1900. I am pleased to report on its general smartness and efficiency. The N. C. officers and men display great intelligence, interest and zeal in the performance of their duties. The General Officer Commanding Her Majesty's Forces in North America testifies to their good work in an extract of his General Orders to be found in Militia Order 157 of 1900, para. 3. The technical equipment loaned by the Imperial authorities, and accoutrements are well kept, the uniforms clean and tidy. The commanding officer, Major Jones, deserves special commendation for his good work. His two subalterns have qualified since my last inspection, in accordance with G. O. 19 of 1900, paras. 8 and 9.

EIGHT UNITS, A. M. C.

3. Under authority of G. O. 82 of 1899 'Establishments,' pages 23-24, eight new units of the A.M.C. were localized, organized and recruited under the officers of the A. M.S., detailed for command in G. Os. 23 and 25, 1900. They were uniformed and provided with technical equipment before June last. Subaltern officers were selected from the A.M.S. and detailed for duty with their respective units, in Militia Orders.

FIELD HOSPITAL CO'S., A. M. C.

4. No. 2 Field Hospital performed its drill and training, and was utilized as such in No. III. Divisional Camp at Kingston, Ont.

(a.) No. 3 Field Hospital. The complete organization of this unit has been delayed owing to the absence of its commanding officer, Major C. W. Wilson, A.M.S., while on duty in South Africa. He has now returned and is devoting his attention to completing the personnel and organization of this unit.

(b.) No. 4 Field Hospital. Under its able Commanding Officer, Captain A. Y. Scott, performed excellent service, and carried out the syllabus of training at No. II. Divisional Camp, Niagara, in a very satisfactory manner.

(c.) No. 5 Field Hospital displayed special zeal and aptitude at No. IX Brigade Camp, Lévis.

BEARER CO'S., A.M.C.

5. No. 1 Bearer Company has been reported on above. The four new Bearer Companies, organized under authority of G.O. 23–1900, received nine days training at their regimental headquarters, and three days under canvas, in the Divisional or Brigade Camps, as hereunder :—

No.	2	Bearer	Company	in	No.	III	Divisional Camp.
"	3	"	"	"		IV	" "
"	4	"	"	"		II	" "
"	5	"	"	"	IX & X	Brigades	"

(a.) This camp training of these units, particularly in connection with field days and manœuvres, was not only of great practical value to them, but their professional services were of distinct utility and they served also as a useful object lesson to the staff and members of the Division or Brigade they were attached to.

(b.) I thus inspected all the units of the A.M.C., during the camps, or at their headquarters. With the exception of No. 2 Bearer Co. I was favourably impressed by the results of this their first training, and by the zeal of the officers, the intelligence of the N. C. officers and privates, their eagerness to learn, their exemplary behaviour, qualities which augur well for the future efficiency of the A.M.C.

(c.) The Commandants of Camps have expressed themselves to me as well pleased by the services performed and the example given by the A.M.C., Units.

EIGHT NEW UNITS FOR 1900–1901.

6. The organization of eight additional Units of the A.M.C. being sanctioned and included in the Militia Establishments for 1900–1901, the localization of the new units has been approved as hereunder :—

No.	6	Bearer	Company,	London, Ont.
"	7	"	"	Hamilton, Ont.
"	8	"	"	St. John, N.B.
"	9	"	"	Vancouver, B.C.
"	6	Field	Hospital,	Sarnia, Ont.
"	7	"	"	Toronto, "
"	8	"	"	Charlottetown, P.E.I.
"	9	"	"	Winnipeg, Man.

(a.) The recruiting of the personnel will be proceeded with as soon as the Commanding Officers are appointed (Gazette before Privy Council).

The A.M.C. will then consist of seventeen units :—

9	Bearer Companies,	344 of all ranks.
8	Field Hospitals,	192 " "
Totals, 17		536

(b.) The personnel of these units is of course on the peace scale. On the war scale their strength would be :—

9	Bearer Companies,	576 of all units.
8	Field Hospitals,	360 " "
Totals, 17		936

(c.) Bearer Companies, Nos. 1 and 9 are for service with the garrisons of Halifax and Esquimalt.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

7. If the policy inaugurated by G. O. 62 of 1899, be adhered to, four additional Bearer Companies will have to be formed. I recommend that their organization be sanctioned, and the cost added to estimates for the financial year 1901–1902. The full complement contemplated by G. O. 62 of 1899, shall be attained. Two of these Bearer units should be equipped with a view of exceptional mobility in order to co-operate with two Cavalry Brigades. The other two would be for service with forces defending strategical points.

(a.) At the close of the financial year 1901-1902 the Militia Force shall then possess the necessary Medical Staff, also 21 units A.M.C., this being the complement required by an offensive-defensive field force consisting of :—

2 Infantry Divisions.
2 Cavalry Brigades.
2 Independent Brigades of all arms, plus
5 Bearer Companies for 5 strategical centres.

The Medical Equipment will have to be added to in the early future.

INSTRUCTION AND TRAINING.

8. The complement of officers of the Canadian Militia Army Medical Staff is 72. Of these comparatively few were qualified for their ranks on the 1st March last. (G.O. 19, 1900, para. 1). To give them and the Officers of the regimental service an opportunity to qualify at an early date, Courses of Instruction (G.O. 19, 1900, paras. 8 and 9) were formed in the following camps of instruction :—

Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 Divisional Camps, and in the 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th Brigade Camps.

This permitted 80 Medical Officers to undergo the Course of Instruction, of whom 11 failed to pass the examination.

At present 47 of the 72 Officers of the A.M.S. are qualified under G.O. 19, 1900, paras. 8 and 9, for their present ranks. 38 regimental medical officers have also qualified.

(a.) The instruction of the A.M.C units was carried out at Corps Head-Quarters and in Camps, under the supervision of the Commanding Officers, by the 4 Sergeant Major Instructors, who had been sent last year to undergo a special course of training at Aldershot Camp, England. I hope to be permitted to utilize them in like manner during the coming year, and until such time when the N.C. Officers of the A.M.C. units shall have become quite proficient enough to act as Instructors.

ACCOMMODATION IN DRILL HALLS.

9. In Military Districts Nos. 1, 2, 5 and 6, 8 and 12 (also at Sarnia for No. 6 Field Hospital and Hamilton for No. 7 Bearer Company) accommodation to the extent of 1 store room, 1 lecture room and 1 officer's room is required for each unit or group of units.

HONORARY COLONEL, A.M.C.

10. I have received individual expressions of opinion of Officers of the A.M.S. that it would be a distinct honour, and most gratifying to all the members of the Medical Services if Surgeon Lt.-Colonel the Honourable F. W. Borden, Minister of Militia, would consent to become Honorary Colonel Commandant of the A.M.C. with the rank of Colonel in the Militia. The Medical Services would not likely have emerged from their former hopeless and ineffective condition, had it not been for the kindly interest taken in them by Surgeon Lt.-Colonel Borden, in his capacity of Minister of Militia and Defence.

APPENDIX C.(A.)

TO MEDICAL REPORT, 1900.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR MEDICAL OFFICERS ON HIRED TRANSPORTS TO THE CAPE.

1. You will be responsible to the Commanding Officer for the medical service, administration, cleanliness and discipline in hospital; you willl advise him on matters of sanitation. Twice a week you will make a thorough medical examination of all men and of the quarters.

2. You are charged with the training of hospital attendants and stretcher-bearers, in stretcher drills, and you will arrange a course of 'first aid' for the latter, and see that the use, &c., of first field dressings is explained to all ranks, and well understood by all.

3. For the duties of ward-master, dispenser, &c., you will recommend to the Commanding Officer the most competent individual from among the N. C. officers or the ranks. He will be given the rank of Medical Orderly Corporal; he will also be responsible to you for discipline, order and regularity in the hospital.

4. For your general duties you will be guided by Queen's Regulations, 1899, and Medical Regulations, 1897.

5. As soon after the vessel leaves port as convenient, you will arrange with the Commanding Officer for the vaccination of all members of the force, and of such of the crew as need it, so that all evil effects of the operation on individuals may have disappeared before disembarkation.

6 The anti-typhoid serum supply is very limited, you will use your judgment in inoculating any but the younger men, who are more likely to contract enteric fever.

7. Consult with the Commanding Officer about the placing of the first field dressing in the skirt of every man's frock, together with the individual's Description Card, filled. This should be done before the ship reaches the Cape.

8. The services of the nursing Sisters will be called upon only for attendance on serious cases of illness or injury during the passage. These ladies are to report to the P.M.O. at the base.

9. Enter in a book all prescriptions and issues from medicine chests. The medical stores in your charge are divided into two classes—

(1) For shipboard only:—

1 Medical chest.
1 Material and surgical chest, including 1 case capital instruments.
1 Box medical comforts.
1 Hospital clothing as per inventory.

These will be stored at port of disembarkation for the return voyage.

NOTE—As a matter of fact these supplies followed some of these units to the front. It was fortunate, as the Medical Officers in charge would have found themselves short of many essential articles, during the first months of the campaign.

(2) To accompany the force in the field:—

1 Pair field panniers.
1 Medical Companion } or surgical saddle-bag for mounted units.
1 Surgical Haversack }
2 Water bottles.
4 Field stretchers.

10. When at the Cape you will requisition the acting Quartermaster of the unit for 1 general service wagon or cart, 2 draught horses, with set of suitable harness, for the conveyance of the field medical equipment, stretchers, &c., required for the field.

11. Your field medical panniers, &c., will be replenished on applying for the same to the nearest depot of medical stores.

12. You will forward to the Director General of the Medical Services, Ottawa, a monthly report of all casualties occurring among the force in your medical charge, together with such other observations as you may think desirable.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

J. L. H. NEILSON,
Lt.-Col., D.G.M.S.

APPENDIX D.

GENERAL REPORT ON CAMP DESERONTO, BY LIEUT.-COLONEL STONE, CAMP COMMANDANT.

1. The Artillery Camp at Deseronto was formed on May 30, 1900, in accordance with M. O. No. 114, of May 18, and came to a conclusion on July 14.

The dates of joining of Staff Officers and units, and all matters relating to training, are dealt with in Part II of the Report.

CAMP SITE.

2. The camp site was hired at a rental of $20, and was thoroughly satisfactory, shelter being obtainable under the trees for sick horses, which protected them from sun and wind.

There is plenty of suitable land for camping, the best sites being marked in order of merit Nos. I, II, III and IV respectively.

SOIL.

The soil is remarkably well drained, and there is an entire absence of mud, even after heavy rain.

TENT PEGS.

Owing, however, to the presence of limestone rock immediately below the surface, it was necessary to supplement wooden picketing posts and tent and heel pegs, by iron posts and pegs, which could easily be driven into the rotten and partially disintegrated rock.

Provision was made beforehand for this by obtaining from the Artillery Workshop, at Quebec, 500 tent and heel pegs, and 400 picketing pegs of iron: this number proved sufficient for five Batteries, and may be taken as a fair sample on which to base future estimates of requirements.

WATER.

3. Drinking water was obtained by contract from the Town Waterworks, the contractor supplying barrels and keeping them filled twice a day. The water was presumed to be of good quality, but I have since ascertained from Dr. Newton, at Deseronto that the sources of supply are contaminated, and that there is a good deal of sickness in Deseronto, directly attributable to the presence of sewage in the water.

There are plenty of springs in the immediate vicinity of the camp, and a good supply of pure water could be obtained at small expense by sinking wells and erecting a windmill to pump and distribute the water.

The facilities for watering horses are unusually good, the Bay of Quinté, which adjoins the camp site, having a gently shelving beach suitable for the purpose.

The bathing is excellent and was much appreciated.

4. The facilities at Deseronto for transport are excellent, as there are good steamship lines plying to this port, and the terminus of the Deseronto branch of the Bay of Quinté Railway is at the same dock as the steamboats arrive at and depart from. The dock is two miles from the camp site.

The Grand Trunk Railway passes through Deseronto Junction, between which place and Deseronto, the branch line of the Bay of Quinté Railway plies.

WEATHER.

5. The weather was very favourable throughout the camp; there is very little rain or cold in the locality after June 1.

HEALTH.

6. The general health was good, but there were rather a large number of mild cases of sickness under treatment, possibly attributable to the water. The detailed statement of the cases is given in appendix (c).

MEDICAL ARRANGEMENTS.

7. The medical arrangements were inadequate, only one medical officer being in camp after June 14, although there were four batteries until the end of June to be attended to. I consider that with four Batteries there should be two medical officers at least, and with anything over that number there should be three. It was impossible for the one medical officer to be present at every gun practice, to be with both sides at a tactical field day, and to attend to the sick in camp. Moreover, at an Artillery camp there are always more accidents requiring immediate attention, and more chance of serious accidents than at Cavalry or Infantry camps. There was not even a competent hospital assistant.

DISCIPLINE.

8 The discipline in camp and in the town was satisfactorily maintained. The artillery has made a good name for itself in Deseronto, and the establishment of a permanent camp here is popular with all classes.

STAFF.

9. I wish to draw special attention to the excellent work performed by the camp staff. Where all were zealous and competent, it would be invidious to mention individuals; but it is most gratifying and encouraging to find that the reserve and unattached lists can be drawn upon for staff officers with the successful results which have attended this camp.

LOCAL CONTRACTS (SPECIAL).

11. The following contracts were entered into specially, not being included in the ordinary contracts for supplies, &c. :—

Service.	Name.	Amount.	Authority.
Hire of camp site	T. Powlis	$20	Provisional lease accepted for one year by Deputy Minister.
Housing camp stores, targets, &c.	Powlis (ferry horse.)	$5	A.G.O. 92,011.
Destroying unexploded shell.	P. Bardy	$1 per shell found and destroyed; 50c. per shell found by other persons and destroyed by P. Bardy.	Regulations for recovery of projectiles issued with Gen. Order and A.G.O. 90,718.
Hire of room for case of measles.	Miss Hill	$2 per week	A.G.O. 91,394.
Telephone	North American Telegraph Co.	$30	A.G.O. 90,950.

CAMP AND BARRACK STORES.

12. It is hoped that a proper schedule of these articles may be drawn up as an authority for future issue. The Store Department issued one wheelbarrow and one rake per Battery to keep the horse lines clean, instead of fourteen wheelbarrows and twenty rakes requisitioned for. The absurdity of trying to keep horse lines clean with one wheelbarrow and one rake must be obvious to any thinking individual when it is remembered that the manure has to be wheeled 200 yards to the rear of the lines, so as to be well clear of cooking lines, mess tents, &c. I think the following scale would be suitable as a basis :—

Articles.	Proportion.
Wheelbarrows	3 per Battery.
Rakes, iron	6 "
Brooms, bass	6 "
Forks, stable, 4-prong	3 "

In every Cavalry or Artillery Camp there should be, if possible, a manure wagon. Such a wagon can be detailed for regular rounds to the horse lines of each unit three times a day, thus saving much labour and waste of time in wheeling manure long distances in wheelbarrows. The time thus wasted can be more profitably spent in cleaning harness.

TENTS.

The allowance of tents which the Store Department proposed to issue was quite inadequate to the requirements. These camps are standing camps for purposes of instruction and should be made decent and comfortable if we wish to keep decent and respectable men in the militia. Everyone is willing to put up with the necessary hardships and discomforts of active service, but no good object is served by playing at it in peace time. Active service entails deterioration in the health of the men, as well as in the efficiency of the harness and equipment; unnecessary wear and tear in peace time is to be deprecated.

F. G. STONE, Lt.-Colonel,
Camp Commandant.

DESERONTO, 14-7-1900.

APPENDIX E.

REPORT OF THE COMMANDANT OF THE ROYAL MILITARY COLLEGE.

To the General Officer Commanding the Canadian Militia, President of the Royal Military College of Canada.

KINGSTON, ONT. October 31, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to now forward you my Report on the Royal Military College from the date of my last report, 24th November, 1899, to the date of my resignation of the command, October 31, 1900.

STRENGTH.

1. At the commencement of the Term 1899-1900 there were in residence at the College 87 cadets :—Of these 14 graduated during the period covered by this report; 21 received Imperial Commissions without graduating; 4 were withdrawn by desire of their parents; 5 failed to qualify and were removed in consequence, and two were discharged as medically unfit. Total left the College from all causes 46, leaving 41 cadets to rejoin. A new class of 35 cadets joined with these in September, 1900, making the number 76 at the beginning of the present Term, 1900-01. One of these has since been withdrawn, leaving the total strength to date, 75 cadets.

CONDUCT.

2. I am able to report that the conduct of the cadets has been satisfactory except in one particular. I regret extremely to observe how prevalent the dishonest habit of cribbing and cheating in the examinations has become. On no less than five different occasions have charges of this nature been proved against the cadets, and in many other instances it has been more than suspected, but owing to want of certain proof, charges were not preferred.

In other respects I am fairly satisfied with the discipline which has been maintained by the cadet N.C. officers.

CHANGES IN STAFF.

3. I wish to bring to your notice my high appreciation of the services of Lt.-Col. McGill who retired from the Staff Adjutancy of the College on August 31 last. He has faithfully served the College in the above capacity for the last 17 years.

EXAMINATIONS.

4. The Midsummer examinations have not been as satisfactory as in former years, but it must be taken into consideration that in both the first and second classes many of the most able cadets did not take part, having already been recommended for commissions.

STAFF COURSE.

5. The second "Staff Course" for the training of officers of the Canadian Militia in the higher functions and responsibilities of the General Staff of an army, was commenced on February 1, 1900, but was discontinued on the 17th of the same month, by orders from Head-Quarters, owing to some of the officers forming the Course having been ordered to South Africa, and others to return to their military duties.

SURVEY PARTY.

6. During the Midsummer vacation, a party of nine graduates and cadets and Sergeant Brown, R.E., of the R.M.C. Staff, under the superintendence of Major H. S. Logan, Leicestershire Regiment, were engaged on the Reconnaissance Survey in the neighbourhood of Magog, Que., and about 1,500 miles were added to the work already done.

VISIT TO MCGILL UNIVERSITY.

7. The senior class were again invited to visit the McGill University workshops, through the kindness of the Dean, and many interesting tests of materials were made before them.

NEW BUILDINGS AND REPAIRS.

8. Although the cost of a new drill shed and hospital were included in the estimates for 1900-1901, nothing has yet been done in this direction, and the consequence is that our space for drill is very limited, and the hospital accommodation very unsuitable. A new floor to the gymnasium is urgently required, the present one being very old and uneven.

An extension to the Dormitory building has been approved, and will be carried out in the spring of next year.

DRILL, &C.

9. The drill and gymnastic instructions at the College has been kept up to a high standard.

A good deal of time has been devoted to rifle shooting, and the individual standard of the cadets in this respect is very fair.

MILITIA CAMPS.

10. Twenty-nine cadets availed themselves of the privilege, under paragraph 73, R. M. C. Regulations, of being attached to the Canadian Militia at the Camps of Instruction.

COMMISSIONS.

11. During the year the following cadets obtained commissions in the Imperial Army :—

2nd Lieutenants, Royal Field Artillery, March, 1900 : C. W. W. McLean, R. C. Keith, A. G. Piddington and R. W. S. Burrill.

2nd Lieutenants, Army Service Corps, March, 1900 : V. D. Denison, H. G. Reid, R. Simpson and G. C. Milson.

2nd Lieutenants, Royal Field Artillery, May, 1900 : G. T. Hamilton, T. Kirkland, H. S. Stewart and A. Z. Palmer.

2nd Lieutenants, Royal Engineers, June, 1900 : E. C. Baker, F. H. W. Archibald, and G. B. Johnson.

12. Diplomas of graduation have been awarded to the following gentlemen of the 1st Class, the five first-named being with "Honours" :—

APPENDIX G.

REPORT ON 2ND DIVISION, 1ST REGIMENT, CANADIAN ARTILLERY.

There were 70 recruits out of a total of about 140 officers, N.C. officers and men. These recruits did not even know squad drill, and, consequently, the difficulty of teaching them gun drill was increased. If possible they should learn squad drill before coming up for the training. The officers had most of them been up for a training before, and in comparison with the N C.O. and men were more advanced in the knowledge of their duties.

One or two companies had special clothing for gun drill. It would be an advantage if all were served out with this, and so save their best clothing, which soon gets damaged at work.

A few more instructors (one for every twenty N.C.O. and men) from N.C.O. of the Royal Artillery would be an advantage at the beginning of the training. Their services could be dispensed with after the first five working days. One night was given to night-manning, and was very instructive to all ranks. The fire discipline was very good.

It would be a very great advantage for all ranks if a tug could be hired for two or three days at the end of the training for the purpose of towing a target for laying on. Also, if practice could be obtained from a few rounds of Morris Tube ammunition. It is cheap and practices the Battery commanders in ranging, and also gives confidence to the gun-layers in firing.

Specialists were chosen for the Depression Range Finder and were trained. These men soon learnt the instrument and did excellent work.

REPORT

ON THE

SOUTH AFRECAN CONTINGENTS

PART I.

DEPARTMENT OF MILITIA AND DEFENCE,
OTTAWA, April 23, 1901.

To the Honourable
F W. BORDEN,
Minister of Militia and Defence.

SIR,—In my report to you dated April 17, 1900, upon the work done by the Department during the year 1899, I made the following remarks on the organization, equipment and despatch of the Contingents to South Africa, and I may be permitted to repeat them at the outset of this report. I stated :—

'Of the work done in the department during the year, that connected with the organization, equipment and despatch of the first contingent, and the organization and equipment of the second contingent was, in a way, the most important, and possessed a more absorbing interest than any feature relating to military operations carried on in connection with the permanent force, or with the drill or manœuvres of the active militia.

'I take this opportunity of assuring you that the loyalty and patriotic devotion to Britain evinced by Canadians of every creed and nationality, and wherever living, also existed to the fullest extent among the officials of the department.

'The work of organizing and enrolling the contingents was carried out with zeal by the officers of the military branch of the department, efficiently aided by the district officers commanding and staff officers in the various military districts.

'As intimated elsewhere, herein, practically the whole of the clothing, the necessaries, the equipment, &c., had to be purchased for the contingents and delivered to them within about two weeks.

'To accomplish this the officials in the purchasing branch, in charge of Captain A. Benoit, worked early and late in a systematic and businesslike way that could not be excelled.

'The distribution of the supplies involving, as it did, a great amount of labour and exceptional care, was carried out very successfully by the stores branch under the control of Lieut.-Col. Macdonald, Chief Superintendent of Stores, who states that the officers of his branch spared neither time nor effort to thoroughly and rapidly do the work connected with the equipment of these forces.

'The experience gained in connection with the sending out of the contingents, from the inception of the work until its completion, is regarded by the officers of all the branches in the department as having been of great advantage and service to them.

'I cannot close this report without expressing my appreciation of the earnest co-operation I have received, throughout my first year as Deputy Minister, from all the officials in the department. They have invariably discharged their duties in a most satisfactory and earnest manner. But I desire to especially refer to their willingness—I might say eagerness—to work with unremitting application in getting the contingents ready to go to South Africa. Night after night for weeks, some of the clerks in our department worked in their offices till a very late hour, and when necessity arose, they did not hesitate to come on Sundays and holidays; a number of them, in fact, cheerfully gave up both Christmas and New Year's Day to help to get their own particular work done and prevent delay. The work was done in a marvellously short time. That there was no hitch in the preparations nor any avoidable delay in the despatch of these troops, is due in a very great measure to the intelligent way in which this service was performed.

'I take this opportunity of showing that I recognize and highly appreciate the zeal and efficiency displayed by the departmental staff in the discharge of their different duties.'

In the foregoing remarks I have dwelt more upon the equipment of the contingents than upon their organization or their transport to South Africa, while no reference at all was made to the large amount of work done in the Account Branch, and by the Engineer Branch in getting the transport steamers ready to carry the troops to Africa.

I now submit, herewith, separate reports (Appendix A, B, C) from the Accountant, the Chief Superintendent of Stores, and the Chief Engineer; also from the Major General Commanding (Part II); a perusal of these may give some idea of the nature of the increased work that the despatch of the contingents entailed upon these branches.

Special attention is invited to that part of the report of the accountant in which he refers to the additional work done in his branch in connection with the Contingents: even this lucid statement on the subject cannot give more than a faint idea of the work done by himself and his staff from the time the organization and equipment of the Contingents began down to the present moment

Hitherto I have not made any reference to the work done in our correspondence branch in relation to the Contingents.

While it is true that much work of this nature was necessarily done through the Military Branch, nevertheless it is a fact that hundreds and hundreds of applications for enlistment were sent direct to you, as Minister, and to myself, as your deputy; countless communications and suggestions were received from persons who wrote us about almost every subject which they could conceive might have even a remote connection with the despatch of the Contingents; while hundreds of people, both in Canada and elsewhere, whose curiosity had been aroused, wrote for information on many and varied questions.

All these communications had to be answered, entered in our registers, and then filed; besides this the usual routine departmental work had to be carried on.

But, owing to the suddenness of the emergency and to the nature of the work we had to depend entirely on our regular staff to do it: there was no time to train others to assist them; early and late they cheerfully laboured for months to keep abreast of their work, and now that the strain is past, I cannot but record my profound appreciation of their zeal and industry during that time.

If the sending of the Contingents to Africa has brought credit to Canada, glory to those brave Canadians who fought and those who died there for the Empire, and drawn us into closer and more enduring relationship to the Mother Country, surely some slight meed of praise is due to our departmental staff who willingly performed, without any expectation of recognition thereof, the unusual and important work they were called upon to do.

The despatch of the Canadian troops to South Africa, their work and stay there are matters of the past; in connection with their return the following remarks may be of interest.

Of the clothing, ordnance, equipment, &c., taken from Canada, all the first was used and none returned to stores.

Out of the three batteries sent to Africa, only two have been brought back to Canada; it is understood that the War Department intends to either return the remaining battery from South Africa or to replace it.

The two batteries brought back, are being overhauled and put into serviceable condition at the cartridge factory, Quebec; the work on them will be completed early this month.

The harness and saddlery brought back will also be thoroughly overhauled.

A portion of the equipment for the two batteries has been lost on active service and otherwise; this will be replaced from store.

The horses, and the prairie and light wagons were all sold in Africa to Ordnance Department; for the former different prices were received—from £36 down to about £18; for a few a lower price was realized.

For the wagons £10 each was obtained; for one the price was £49, or more than was paid for it here.

It is not within my province to discuss what impression, permanent or otherwise, that I may feel has been made upon our national impulses, or whether our national aspirations have been deflected into different or new channels, but no one who has not read the vast amount or correspondence that has come to the department, since September, 1899, in relation to sending troops to assist the Mother Country, can form any adequate conception of the loyalty and patriotism prevailing in every section of Canada.

It is, however, permissible for me to assert that the experience gained by so many Canadians in active service in South Africa, and by the department in connection with the work relating to the contingents has been of inestimable value.

I only express the earnest hope of all Canadians that it will never be necessary to use this experience in the field even in defence of our country; if we avail ourselves of it in camp, in barrack life, in the organization and equipment of our troops and in the many other ways to which it may be adapted, we will have a fair recompense for all the expenditure incurred on account of the contingents.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

L. F. PINAULT, Colonel,
Deputy Minister of Militia and Defence.

J. W. BORDEN,
Accountant.

March 31, 1901.

The foregoing statement shows, under the principal sub-heads, the expenditure in connection with the special service force to March 31, 1901, covering a period of about eighteen months.

Parliament, it will be remembered, voted $2,000,000 for this service. It will require every cent of this amount to pay all claims and to make good the arms, stores, &c., supplied to the troops. Of this expenditure $707,960, over one-third, went for transport of troops, horses and supplies in the four troopships chartered and fitted out for that purpose. Transport to ports of embarkation required over $108,000, bringing the total of transport up to $815,960, over two-fifths of the total expenditure. Pay of the troops and separation allowance to families of married men used up $440,000 and will require $10,000 more before all claims are settled.

Enlisting and maintenance of the troops to the date of embarkation cost $46,000. About one half of the second contingent, those who went on that ss. Milwaukee, had to be maintained several weeks before transport could be arranged for them.

Clothing, under which head is included every article of dress worn by the soldiers, cost $290,000, or about $105 per man.

*$37,118 of this amount is to be repaid by the Imperial Government for transport of Boer prisoners from Cape Town to St. Helena.

For the 1,139 horses purchased it required $131,660. This does not include those which were transferred from the R.C.A. and the R.C.D. The purchases were made in the different districts as follows :—

Military district No. 1	32 horses	$	3,734 00
" 2 & 3	373 "		48,260 00
" 4	80 "		10,595 00
" 5 & 6	44 "		6,655 00
" 7	50 "		6,860 00
" 8	26 "		4,130 00
" 9	66 "		7,782 00
" 10	57 "		7,769 00
" 11	15 "		1,464 00
North-west Mounted Police	396 "		34,411 00

The horses in districts 2 & 3 were purchased by Col. Kitson late commandant of the R.M.C. It is therefore difficult to separate these two districts.

The horses purchased from the police were the cheapest, averaging less than $90 each, whereas those purchased in the districts averaged from $115 to $160 each, the prices in No. 1 District being the lowest and in No. 8 the highest.

In war time telegraph lines and cables have to be freely used particularly where the distances are so great. This service cost the Government $9,382.

The foregoing figures do not give a correct idea of the large amount of work that has been thrown upon the account branch by the expenditure of this appropriation of $2,000,000. Unlike most of the other branches of the department in which there was a great deal of work for a short time, this branch during the entire eighteen months has been required to do nearly double its usual amount of work, the only addition to the staff being one junior clerk for a short time.

The additional work has been caused not only by the immense number of accounts and claims that have been audited and paid but also by reason of the branch having to perform all the duties of a pay department.

There were nearly 2,500 troops not including the Strathcona's Horse. There was assigned pay to be issued every month to families and relatives : there were separation allowances monthly to wives and children of married officers, N. C. O's. and men, there being 255 of these families : and deferred pay to be issued to the men on their return to Canada. This latter is the difference between Imperial and Canadian rates of pay computed from the date of the soldier's arrival in South Africa to his return to Canada. As most of the men were receiving pay from various sources it was necessary to open an account with each individual. This necessitated 2,500 accounts. For the final payment on their return to Canada a special paysheet, prepared by the accountant, was used in which were entered all the details and payments in connection with each soldier's service from the date of his enlistment to date of his discharge. Every pay-sheet in connection with these final payments were prepared in the Accountant's Office in duplicate and in the case of the three largest troopships bringing soldiers home, viz :—the Idaho, the Lake Champlain and the Roslin Castle, carrying about 1,600 troops in all, a cheque in payment was prepared for each soldier to be handed to him as soon as his signature was obtained on the pay-sheet.

In addition to issuing pay for the Canadian Government a great deal has been issued at the request of the War Office for the Imperial Government : the last request being to issue the Special War Gratuity to all Canadian troops including Strathcona's Horse. This has been undertaken. It necessitates looking up the soldier's address, writing out receipts in duplicates and mailing them to him for his signature, the cheque being issued on the return of the receipts. There are about 2,900 of all ranks entitled to this gratuity and as they are scattered all over Canada correspondence has to be opened up with each individual.

J. W. BORDEN,
Accountant.

APPENDIX B.

CONTINGENTS FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

From the Chief Superintendent of Militia Stores to the Deputy Minister of Militia and Defence.

The probability of a Regiment of Canadian Infantry being enrolled for service in South Africa was communicated October 13, 1899, and the possible date of sailing said to be October 31, 1899.

With the exception of the Arms and Oliver Equipment there was little in Store Charge to meet the special requirements of such a force.

A statement of articles to be provided was made out and the contractors for clothing and merchants likely to be in a position to meet the demands were communicated with.

The material for the clothing had to be made—the contractors had none on hand. Everyone concerned, however, started to work with a will and the equipment, as per the following list, was issued to the regiment. The actual date of sailing was October 30, 1899, one day within the limit given. The work was, consequently, accomplished in 14 days by the Staff of the Branch without extra help.

D. A. MACDONALD, Colonel,
Chief Supt. of Militia Stores.

SECOND CONTINGENT.

Although, numerically, this contingent was but slightly in excess of the first, about one-fourth larger, much greater difficulty was experienced in making issues, due to the following causes :—

1. Two arms of the service were represented, consequently, different kinds of clothing had to be provided.

2. The many places at which enrolment was made and to which clothing and necessaries had to be forwarded previous to concentration.

3. The fact that nearly everything that was provided passed through the Store Branch.

4. The greater distance of the port of embarkation from head-quarters.

The Artillery was provided with the regulation serge clothing for that arm. The khaki frocks were of special pattern.

The frocks for the Mounted Rifles, both serge and khaki, were of an entirely new pattern and had to be specially made. The serge was blue, with white facings, edged with dark crimson braid, a pad was made diagonally on the back, from shoulder to waist for the rifle to rest against when carried slung. The uniform was completed with pantaloons of both materials, serge and khaki, cowboy hats, putties and ankle boots.

One suit of serge clothing and all the articles of regimental necessaries for the men of the first battalion and the three batteries of artillery were forwarded to the places of enrolment, the remaining articles were issued at Halifax.

The second battalion Mounted Rifles, 371 of all ranks, were armed, equipped and clothed at Halifax, in less than two days after its arrival at the station. No easy task, considering the many other duties which had to be carried on at the same time by a very limited staff. The Officer commanding, Lt.-Colonel Herchmer, expressed his great satisfaction not only with regard to the quick delivery made, but, also, as to the quality of the articles issued.

The Mounted Rifles were armed with Lee-Enfield Rifles, Sword-bayonets and revolvers, and were equipped with bandoliers for carrying ammunition, and with waist-belts of the Oliver equipment pattern for carrying the revolver and sword-bayonet.

The contingent was carried to destination on board three steamers, the Pomeranian, the Laurentian, and the Milwaukee. Each steamer had to be supplied with its quota of stores peculiar to the arm of the service and number of men who embarked on it.

A detail of all stores issued to the troops and placed on board the steamers is given below.

STRATHCONA HORSE.

The Right Honourable Lord Strathcona having offered to raise a Regiment of Mounted Rifles in Canada for service in South Africa, and his patriotic offer having been accepted by Her late Most Gracious Majesty, Queen Victoria, the duty of supplying the necessary equipment was placed in the hands of the Store Branch.

The men were concentrated in Ottawa, and were accommodated in the Central Canada Exhibition Association Buildings, Lansdowne Park.

The equipment supplied differed but slightly from that issued to the Canadian Mounted Rifles, which formed part of the second Contingent. One pair of long boots, with laced insteps, made of brown leather by the Slater Company of Montreal, was issued instead of one pair of ankle boots and the jack spurs were provided with brown leather straps instead of black.

Revolvers, clothing and necessaries were issued in Ottawa. The rifles and other supplies were sent on board the steamer at Halifax.

The expenses of the outfit was borne by Lord Strathcona, who expressed his entire satisfaction as to its completeness, &c.

Chief Supt. of Military Stores.

APPENDIX C

FROM THE CHIEF ENGINEER MILITIA AND DEFENCE, ON THE FITTING UP OF TRANSPORTS FOR THE CANADIAN CONTINGENTS FOR SOUTH AFRICA, 1899-1900.

The Deputy Minister
Militia and Defence.

I beg to report as follows :—

The first Canadian Contingent for South Africa consisted of a battalion of infantry for which transport was provided by the Allan Line steamship Sardinian.

The second Canadian Contingent consisted of two battalions of Mounted Rifles, and a Brigade Division of Field Artillery, for which transport was provided by the Allan Line steamships Laurentian, and Pomeranian, and the Elder Dempster Co., steamship Milwaukee, which was substitued for the Steamship Montezuma rejected for the reason that typhoid fever broke out among the crew in Halifax, N.S.

The Strathcona's Horse consisted of a regiment of Mounted Infantry, raised in Canada, for which transport was provided on the Elder Dempster Company's steamship Monterey.

The transport Sardinian was fitted up at Montreal and Quebec in about two weeks for the accommodation of 41 officers, 978 non-commissioned officers and men, and 7 horses.

The officers, and non-commissioned officers were quartered in staterooms, with bath rooms, and a separate mess room for each, all on the main deck.

The men were quartered half in bunks and half in hammocks, and were divided into messes with a table for each mess. The tables were made to unship and stow away when necessary to clear the deck. The men's tables and hammocks were on the main deck, and the men's bunks on the steerage deck.

A galley, and bake house, with steel range, bake ovens and steam cookers were installed on the spar deck, together with a canteen. A large ice room was constructed on this ship.

Latrines and wash houses were also built on the same deck, for the men.

Two miniature rifle ranges, and two revolver ranges were erected on the spar deck for practice in fine weather. A kit and equipment room, baggage room, helmet room, guard room and prison, and rifle racks were built to give accommodation for each man embarked.

A hospital and dispensary was constructed and fitted with berths, etc.

A magazine for 160,000 for small arm ammunition was built below two decks. Stalls for the horses were erected on the spar deck. The life boat accommodation necessary for the number of troops on board, and proper fire hose and appliances were supplied and fitted up. Awnings were made and placed on board for use in the tropics, and air scoops and windsails provided for ventilation. Electric lights and fans were installed, throughout the ship.

The whole ship both inside and outside was painted, and all tables, &c., properly numbered.

The transport was handed over for the embarkation of troops on October 30, 1899.

The transports Laurentian and Pomeranian were fitted up at Halifax, N.S., in about three weeks each, sailing on January 21 and 27, 1900, respectively.

The transports Milwaukee and Monterey were also fitted up at Halifax in less than three weeks each, sailing on February 21 and March 17, 1900, respectively.

The Laurentian and Pomeranian were passenger and freight ships, and small changes only had to be made to accommodate the officers. A mess room had to be constructed on both ships for the non-commissioned officers, and staterooms on the Pomeranian.

The horses were accommodated in stalls patterned on the admiralty regulation stall, on the after part of the Laurentian and the forward part of the Pomeranian.

The Milwaukee and the Monterey were freight boats with bare iron decks from end to end, which had to be entirely floored with wood, and had only accommodation for a few cabin passengers.

New staterooms had to be built for the officers, non-commissioned officers and two large saloon mess rooms for same on each ship.

The horses were accommodated on the after part of the Milwaukee and on the whole main deck of the Monterey. A percentage of spare and large stalls and loose boxes were provided for the horses.

A pharmacy was built on each ship for the veterinary surgeon. A canvas horse hammock was provided for each horse for use in rough weather. The ordinary stall was two by six feet, inside measurements, with side bales, breast board and haunch board. Battens were placed on the floor to give the horses a footing. Detachable feeding troughs were also provided, and large puncheons were placed on the decks for water. Sawdust was spread under the horses' feet, and a percentage of cocoa mats were provided. Horse boxes were made for embarking and disembarking horses when necessary.

The men were all berthed in hammocks and were arranged in messes with a mess table, made to unship and stow away, for each mess.

Accoutrement hooks were provided on the mess decks, and bread rooms and issuing rooms built. Kit boxes were put up for each man's kit bag. Baggage rooms, guard rooms, prisons, saddle and harness rooms, store rooms, hospitals and dispensaries were built and fitted up.

A large galley and bake house, fitted with steel ranges, bake ovens and steam cookers were installed in the Milwaukee and Monterey, and a large ice room lined with nine inches of sawdust and lead, was put up in each ship except the Monterey, which was fitted with a refrigerating plant.

Electric lighting and fans were installed. Water closets and bathrooms for the officers and n.c.o's. were provided, and large canvas baths for the men. Latrines, wash houses and canteens were put up for the men and awnings were made for use in the tropics.

Miniature rifle ranges and revolver ranges were built. Sheep pens for live sheep to supplement the dead meat were built. Air scoops, fans and windsails were supplied on each ship.

Sufficient life boat accommodation was provided and fitted according to the admiralty regulations. Fire hose and appliances were also put on board.

The ships and fitting were painted inside and outside, and designation and number boards provided for each transport.

The second contingent transports were turned over for the embarkation of troops as follows:—Laurentian, January 21, 1900; Pomeranian, January 27, 1900; Milwaukee, February 21, 1900; and Monterey, March 16, 1900.

I attach herewith a plan of the SS. Monterey as an example of how the transports were fitted.

REPORT

OF THE

MAJOR GENERAL

ON THE

SOUTH AFRICAN CONTINGENTS.

The Honourable
The Minister of Militia and Defence.

Sir,—I have the honour to submit, as a supplement to the annual report, the reports of the officers commanding the corps sent from Canada to South Africa, to aid in the war between the Mother Country on the one side and the Transvaal and the Orange Free State on the other.

In submitting these reports, I think the occasion an opportune one to make a resumé of the work of organizing the several contingents so far as the military branch was concerned, and it will, I feel sure, add interest to the subject if I commence with the date of the first despatch from the colonial office intimating that Canadian troops would be accepted for service in South Africa.

1st CONTINGENT.

On October 3, 1899, the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies sent the following telegram to His Excellency the Governor General :—

"Secretary of State for War and Commander-in-Chief desire to express high appreciation of signal exhibition of patriotic spirit of people of Canada shown by offers to serve in South Africa, and to furnish following information to assist organization of force offered into units suitable for military requirements. Firstly, units should consist of about 125 men ; secondly, may be infantry, mounted infantry, or cavalry ; in view of numbers already available infantry most, cavalry least, serviceable ; thirdly, all should be armed with ·303 rifles or carbines, which can be supplied by Imperial Government if necessary : fourthly, all must provide own equipment, and mounted troops own horses ; fifthly, not more than one captain and three subalterns each unit. Whole force may be commanded by officer not higher than major. In considering numbers which can be employed, Secretary of State for War guided by nature of offers, by desire that each colony should be fairly represented, and limits necessary if force is to be fully utilized by available staff as integral portion of Imperial forces ; would gladly accept four units. Conditions as follows : Troops to be disembarked at port of landing South Africa fully equipped at cost of Colonial Government or volunteers. From date of disembarkation Imperial Government will provide pay at Imperial rates, supplies and ammunition, and will defray expenses of transport back to Canada, and pay wound pensions and compassionate allowances at Imperial rates. Troops to embark not later than October 31, proceeding direct to Cape Town for orders. Inform accordingly all who have offered to raise volunteers."

It may be interesting to note that 35 minutes before the despatch of this telegram a similar message was sent to the Governors of South Australia, New South Wales and Victoria, which was preceded, by a few moments only, by telegrams to the Lieut. Governor of Queensland and the Governor of New Zealand to much the same effect.

On October 13, His Excellency the Governor General sent the following reply to Mr. Chamberlain :—

"Much pleasure in telling you that my Government offers 1,000 infantry on organization proposed in your telegram of October 3."

And on October 16, His Excellency received an acknowledgment in the following words :—

"Her Majesty's Government have received with much pleasure your telegram of October 13, conveying Canada's generous offer of 1,000 troops, which they gratefully accept."

On October 14, His Excellency approved the following report of the Privy Council :

"The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration a despatch, dated October 3, 1899, from the Right Honourable Mr. Chamberlain.

"The Right Honourable Sir Wilfrid Laurier, to whom the said despatch was referred, observes that the Colonial Secretary, in answer to the offers which have been sent to him from different parts of Canada expressing the willingness and anxiety of Canadians to serve Her Majesty's Government in the war which for a long time has been threatening with the Transvaal Republic and which, unfortunately, has actually commenced, enunciates the conditions under which such offers may be accepted by the Imperial authorities. Those conditions may be practically summed in the statement that a certain number of volunteers by units of 125 men, with a few officers, will be accepted to serve in the British army now operating in South Africa, the moment they reach the coast, provided the expenses of their equipment and transportation to South Africa are defrayed either by themselves or by the Colonial Government.

"The Prime Minister, in view of the well known desire of a great many Canadians who are ready to take service under such conditions, is of opinion that the moderate expenditure which would thus be involved for the equipment and transportation of such volunteers may readily be undertaken by the Government of Canada without summoning Parliament, especially as such an expenditure under such circumstances cannot be regarded as a departure from the well known principles of constitutional government and colonial practice, nor construed as a precedent for future action.

"Already under similar conditions, New Zealand has sent two companies, Queensland is about to send 250 men, and West Australia and Tasmania are sending 125 men each.

"The Prime Minister, therefore recommends that out of the stores now available in the Militia Department, the Government undertake to equip a certain number of volunteers, not to exceed 1,000 men, and to provide for their transportation from this country to South Africa, and that the Minister of Militia make all necessary arrangements to the above effect.

"The Committee advise that your Excellency be moved to forward a certified copy of this Minute to the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

"All of which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

A Copy of this Minute of Council was transmitted by His Excellency to Mr. Chamberlain, who on November 15, acknowledged the receipt as follows :—

"My Lord :

"I received from you on the 2nd instant a copy of an Approved Minute of the Dominion Privy Council, dated 14th October, 1899, in which your Ministers authorized the equipment and despatch of 1,000 volunteers for service with the Imperial troops in South Africa."

"The great enthusiasm and the general eagerness to take an active part in a military expedition, which has unfortunately been found necessary for the maintenance of British rights and interests in South Africa, have afforded much gratification to Her Majesty's Government and the people of this country. The desire thus exhibited to share in the risks and burdens of Empire has been welcomed, not only as a proof of the staunch loyalty of the Dominion, and of its sympathy with the policy pursued by Her Majesty's Government in South Africa, but also as an expression of that growing feeling of the unity and solidarity of the Empire which has marked the relations of the Mother Country with the colonies during recent years. The thanks of Her Majesty's Government are specially due to your Ministers for the cordial manner in which they have undertaken and carried through the work of organizing and equipping the Canadian Contingent."

Mr. Chamberlain's despatch of October 3, required that the troops should embark for Cape Town not later than October 31. The decision to send troops was reached on the evening of October 13, thus leaving only 18 days to organize, equip and move the force to point of embarkation.

Major General E. T. H. Hutton, C. B., who was then in Command of the Militia, was in British Columbia, and, in the absence of Colonel the Honourable M. Aylmer, Adjutant General, who was in England, the work of organizing the contingent devolved upon Colonel Hubert Foster, Quarter Master General, the senior officer at Head Quarters.

RECRUITING.

On October 14, orders were issued to all concerned notifying them that the enrolment of 1,000 men in 8 Companies of Infantry had been authorized, and stating the conditions under which men would be accepted.

The following places were decided upon as recruiting centres, viz.:

In British Columbia—Victoria and Vancouver.
Manitoba—Winnipeg.
Ontario—London, Toronto, Ottawa and Kingston.
Quebec—Montreal and Quebec.
New Brunswick—St. John.
Nova Scotia – Halifax.
Prince Edward Island—Charlottetown.

The men were all enrolled as privates. The agreement they were required to sign was as follows:—

OATH TO BE TAKEN IN THE PRESENCE OF THE ATTESTING OFFICER.

I, ...

swear that I will well and truly serve our Sovereign Lady The Queen in the Canadian Contingent for Active Service, until lawfully discharged, and that I will resist Her Majesty's enemies, and cause Her Majesty's peace to be kept on land and at sea, and that I will in all matters appertaining to my service faithfully discharge my duty, according to law. So help me God.

I, ...

hereby declare that I am willing to serve wherever Her Majesty The Queen may direct in the Canadian Contingent for Active Service under the provision of the Militia Act of Canada so far as it applies, under the Queen's Regulations and Orders for the Army and the Army Act, for a term of six months, or one year if required, or until sooner lawfully discharged or dismissed, at the rate of pay fixed for the Permanent Corps of Canada, until landed in South Africa, and after disembarkation to serve in Her Majesty's Regular Forces, at the rates of pay fixed by the Royal Warrant for the pay of the British Army.

FORMED INTO A REGIMENT.

On October 18, His Excellency telegraphed Mr. Chamberlain offering a Regiment of Infantry instead of eight independent companies, as follows :—

"After full consideration my Ministers have decided to offer a regiment of infantry, 1,000 strong, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Otter.

My Ministers hope that Canadian contingent will be kept together as much as possible, but realize that this must be left to discretion of War Office and Commander-in-Chief."

On October 19, His Excellency telegraphed Mr. Chamberlain, offering medical officers and nurses, as follows :—

"Many militia medical captains and lieutenants, also trained female nurses, volunteer as auxiliaries to medical staff corps in South Africa, on usual scale of pay given to auxiliary aid. Dominion of Canada will give free transport with contingent if its services would be acceptable. Engagement for six months or twelve months. Two female nurses offered at expense of Canadian Red Cross Society ; shall I send them ?"

On October 23, the following reply was received :—

OFFICERS FOR INSTRUCTIONAL AND OTHER PURPOSES.

On October 26, the following telegram was received by His Excellency the Governor General from Mr. Chamberlain :—

"In reply to your telegram of October 24, the Secretary of State for War regrets that military requirements preclude the addition of any special service officers to the Imperial staff, but not more than sixteen officers extra to the authorized Imperial regimental establishment may accompany contingent for instruction."

The following four officers were specially selected to proceed to South Africa for instructional purposes, viz.:—

Three chaplains, viz.: Rev. J. Almond (Church of England); Rev. J. F. Fullerton, (Presbyterian); Rev. P. M. O'Leary (Roman Catholic): were sent in excess of the authorized strength, and went on the understanding that their services would be retained after the contingent arrived in South Africa only if they were required for duty by the Imperial Government.

Capt. F. J. Dixon, R.O., was sent as Historical Recorder.

Lt. Colonel S. Hughes, 45th Regt., Capt. Todd, Royal Dublin Fusiliers; Messrs. F. Hamilton, Stanley Brown, Wm. Smith and T. Simonski, press representatives, and a representative of the Y.M.C.A. also accompanied the contingent.

On October 27, it was seen that the contingent would be clothed and equipped by October 31, or one day before the date fixed by the Secretary of State for the Colonies, and it was announced accordingly. It may be here stated that, as it was not decided to send the contingent until the evening of October 13, the force was organized and equipped in eleven days less time than allowed by Mr. Chamberlain's despatch of October 3.

On the same date the Major General Commanding, who had returned from British Columbia on the 25th, proceeded to Quebec.

On October 30, the date fixed for the embarkation, the battalion was inspected by the Major General Commanding at 11.30, and afterwards reviewed by His Excelleney the Governor General, who was accompanied by the Right Honourable the Premier, the Honourable the Minister of Militia, and several other Ministers.

It then marched to the docks amid great enthusiasm, embarked on the S.S. Sardinian in a most creditable manner, and sailed at 3.30 p.m., the send off being one which the citizens of Quebec as well as the departing troops will long remember with feelings of pride.

On October 24, His Excellency received the following telegram from Mr. Chamberlain, conveying the thanks of Her Majesty the Queen to her Canadian people, for voluntarily sending troops to South Africa :—

"Her Majesty the Queen desires to thank the people of Her Dominion of Canada for their striking manifestations of loyalty and patriotism in their voluntary offer to send troops to co-operate with Her Majesty's Imperial Forces in maintaining her position and the rights of British subjects in South Africa. She wishes the troops God-speed, and a safe return."

And on October 30, another, which read :—

"Referring to your telegram of October 29, Her Majesty's Government offer hearty congratulations to Canadian Government and military authorities, for rapid organization and embarkation of contingent. Enthusiasm displayed by people of Dominion source of much gratification here."

In the Canada Gazette of November 11, 1899, you expressed your appreciation of and satisfaction with the assistance accorded you in the organization of this contingent, by the Civil and Military Officers of your department, in the following words :—

DEPARTMENT OF MILITIA AND DEFENCE.

OTTAWA, November 10, 1899.

The Imperial Government, having offered their hearty congratulations to the Canadian Government and Military Authorities for the rapid organization and embarkation of the contingent sent to South Africa, the Minister of Militia and Defence desires to express his great satisfaction at the prompt response given by every section of the Dominion to the invitation to enlist in the Volunteer Forces for South Africa. The difficulty which he experienced was chiefly one of selection—owing to the large number of officers, non-commissioned officers and men who volunteered their services. He regrets the disappointment which must unavoidably be felt by those who were compelled to remain behind. He further desires to express his warm appreciation of the loyal support accorded to him by the officers of his department—both civil and military—and to congratulate them upon the extraordinary success which attended their efforts,

Deputy Minister of Militia and Defence.

REINFORCEMENTS.

On March 7, His Excellency sent the following telegram to Mr. Chamberlain offering reinforcements to fill up vacancies in the first contingent :—

"My Government wishes to know if it is considered expedient by War Office to send forward recruits to fill up ranks of its first contingent. Immediate reply necessary in order to utilize transport now available. (Personal). My ministers would much like answer to-morrow."

On March 8, orders were issued for the enlistment of 100 men, as follows :—

Toronto	20
Kingston	10

Montreal	10
Ottawa	10
St. John, N B.	10
Halifax	15
Charlottetown	15
Quebec	10
Total	100

These men were enlisted under the same conditions as to pay, terms of service, &c., as the men who were then serving in the battalion in South Africa.

The following officers were selected to proceed to South Africa with this detachment :—

Captain C. F. Winter, The G.G.F.G.

Captain A. J. Boyd, 10th Royal Grenadiers.

Lieut. and Brevet Capt. A. E. Carpenter, R.C.R.I., to be absorbed as Lieutenants. as vacancies occurred.

Capt. J. A. MacDonald of the 82nd Regiment, had already proceeded to South Africa to be absorbed when a vacancy occurred.

This detachment embarked on March 16 at Halifax, for Cape Town, on the steamship Monterey. The men were enlisted, concentrated at Halifax, some of them having travelled 1,500 miles, and clothed and equipped in eight days.

The history of the 2nd (special service) Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, from the hour of embarkation at Quebec until its disbandment, can best be told by Colonel Otter, under whose able command the battalion established for itself a reputation which any regiment of the Regular Army would be proud to own. His report has been very carefully prepared, and will be found to be most interesting reading.

REPORT A.

From the Officer Commanding 2nd (Special Service) Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, to the Adjutant General, Militia Department, Ottawa.

TORONTO, January 26, 1901.

SIR,—I have the honour to make, as officer commanding the 2nd (Special Service) Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, a general report upon the proceedings of that battalion from its organization until disbanded.

The battalion was mobilized at Quebec on October 28, 1899, and sailed therefrom in the steamship Sardinian, for Cape Town, on October 30, at 3.30 p.m., amid the unbounded enthusiasm on the part of the thousands assembled to witness its departure.

On the morning of the 30th, the battalion was inspected by His Excellency the Governor General, the Earl of Minto, G.C.M.G., and addressed by him, as well as by the Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, K.C.M.G., the Hon. F. W. Borden, Minister of Militia, His Worship the Mayor of Quebec, and Major General Hutton, C.B., commanding the Militia.

Bad weather was encountered for a couple of days in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, after which the passage, so far as weather was concerned, was a most delightful one. The Cape Verde Islands were passed without touching on November 12, at 7 a.m., and we anchored in Table Bay at noon on the 29th, making a voyage of practically thirty days.

The Sardinian proved a very slow ship, and greatly lacking in room and accommodation for the numbers on board. The sanitary arrangements were particularly bad, and so crowded was the ship that parades or drills were matters of extreme difficulty, although they were most regularly maintained.

Immediately on our arrival at Cape Town, an officer of the staff of His Excellency the High Commissioner of South Africa, came on board with a message of welcome from His Excellency, and was followed shortly after by His Worship the Mayor of Cape Town, and several members of its corporation with similar messages. On the 30th the battalion disembarked at 7 a.m., and marched to Green Point Common, where it encamped, awaiting orders.

OFFICERS, NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS AND MEN.

By the time of our arrival at Cape Town, I was able to form an estimate of the material of which the battalion was composed, and which opinion I have not since had reason to change. With the exception of the permanent corps, and a few others, none had much idea of duties, interior economy or discipline. In drill there were many well qualified, but I was astonished to find a very large number of the men ignorant of the first principles.

However, the spirit of all ranks was of the best, and by a course of lectures to officers and non-commissioned officers, and as much practical work as the crowded state of the ship would admit, it became possible, before reaching Cape Town, to effect a very great improvement in the efficiency of the battalion, though a great deal still remained to be done before it was fitted for the field.

Of the physique and high intelligence of all ranks of the Battalion I could not but form the very highest opinion, and it was in a great measure due to these qualities that ultimate success accrued.

DRILL, DUTIES AND DISCIPLINE.

In the matter of drill, I have already referred to the lack of knowledge of that military necessity which existed upon the part of very many of the men, and while on board ship every effort was made to correct this deficiency; yet you can easily imagine on a crowded troop-ship such was restricted to the very elements of squad-drill, the manual and firing exercises and target practice. Movements and formations could not be thought of, and it was only when we reached Belmont that such could be practised.

Every advantage, during our two months tour of lines of communication duty, was made the most of, and before our advance with the main army the battalion had become very smart in its field movements.

A great deal was also learned there of the duties necessery in the camp and field, and particularly those connected with outposts, of which work we had a very great deal to do. Route marching and target shooting were also constantly practised.

The creation of the discipline, so imperative in a military body, was a more difficult matter than either that of drill or duties.

PAY.

By the regulations under which the battalion was organized, officers and men drew pay at Canadian permanent corps rates in the field, up to time of landing in South Africa: after that the rates of pay issued in the Imperial service were to be received.

ARMS.

I shall now take up the question of arms, equipment and clothing. In the matter of arms the battalion was as well equipped as any other in the Imperial service, and, I think, considering the rough usage and wear and tear which fell to the lot of both the Lee-Enfield rifle and bayonet, no fault can be found with either.

EQUIPMENT.

In the matter of equipment, I consider the brown leather accoutrements very satisfactory. The valise was never worn in the field, but left by order at Cape Town, and I cannot therefore report upon it with any degree of accuracy. The braces and straps of the Oliver equipment, which we wore, were the subject of a good deal of diversity of opinion as compared with those worn by the Imperial service troops: but, personally, I am of the opinion that the main brace was not altogether satisfactory, it being inclined to rest too low from the shoulders, and apt to gall, or pinch, under the arms. The ball bag seemed to answer well with its load, generally 80 rounds.

WATER BOTTLE.

The water bottle issued us proved simply useless, it being much too small for the purpose, and had to be changed at once for the Imperial service pattern.

BANDOLIER.

A bandolier I consider a very necessary article of equipment in the field; but the pattern issued to us did not prove equal to the occasion, as the divisions soon stretched, allowing the cartridges to fall out, and the loss of such was constant and out of all proportion, while the rows of brass heads in the front made a distinct and easy mark for the enemy's fire. I would advocate a bandolier made of webbing, as were ours, but provided with a cover to confine the cartridges and hide the sheen.

KIT BAGS.

I must also report that the kit-bags belonging to the Oliver equipment proved too small. It is an article that would never be carried by the men in the field, and as a receptacle for extra kit to be left at the base is not half large enough.

CLOTHING, JACKETS AND TROUSERS.

The khaki jackets and trousers of Canadian issue, and made of brown canvas, certainly stood as much wear as the Imperial issue of brown drill, but had the fault of being very stiff and harsh on the man's person, which in the case of the trousers made them most uncomfortable to wear on account of excessive chafing. They also have the disadvantage that when washed the brown gradually disappears, and the clothing becomes almost white.

BOOTS.

We had experience of both Canadian and British made boots, and while hitherto a great advocate for the latter, I am strongly now of the belief that the Canadian boot, with heavy nails in the sole, is very much easier, lighter, and in a hot, dry country, more lasting than the English.

HELMET.

I am not an advocate of the helmet on active service, and I think my opinion will be borne out by the majority of those who had to wear them. They are heavy and cumbersome. A felt hat is by far and away the most comfortable and serviceable head dress, and was adopted by every corps in South Africa that could possibly obtain them. This hat should have a soft brim of moderate width, as well as the soft crown, and be of a gray or brown shade.

GREAT COAT.

I cannot speak very favourably of the Canadian great coat. It is too light in texture ; not sufficiently full in the body and skirt ; requires pockets in front and would be better with an adjustable back band for infantry, instead of the all round belt, which is constantly being lost.

BATTLES AND MARCHES

The battalion was not allowed to remain long at Cape Town, for on the evening of November 30, orders were received to proceed to the front the next day. On the morning of December 1, tents were struck, and preparations made for marching out from Green Point Common. At noon the Battalion paraded with forty officers, 933 N.C.O's and men in light marching order, i.e., without valises, which were left in store ; but with great coats and one blanket per man, any spare kit being rolled in the great coat, the officers being restricted to thirty-five pounds of baggage each, and this order of march was to continue for the next eleven months.

Moving to the railway station, headed by the pipers of the Cape Garrison Artillery, we found the streets lined with people, who cheered us most enthusiastically. On arrival at the station the battalion entrained by half battalions in two trains there waiting, and at two p.m. His Excellency the High Commissioner, Sir Alfred Milner, drove upon the platform with the object of saying "good-bye" to the regiment. All the officers were presented to His Excellency, and to them he expressed his pleasure and satisfaction at meeting the first Canadian contingent.

The first train, containing the headquarters and right half battalion, left Cape Town at 2.30 p.m., destination unknown, followed by the second train with the left half battalion some twenty minutes later. For the next two days we continued our journey northwards, arriving at DeAar at 4.30 a.m. on December 3, where we detrained and encamped. A fearful sand storm raged the whole day, giving us our first real taste of the discomforts of campaigning in South Africa. DeAar was then a large supply depot, and we remained there four days, during which period we were equipped with our first and second line transport, the draft being mules.

Leaving DeAar at five a.m. on December 7, by train, we reached Orange River in a few hours, and went into camp there. Another unpleasant experience overtook us here in the form of a terrific rain storm, which came on before our tents where fully pitched.

It was here that we first met the 1st Gordon Highlanders, with whom we were to be subsequently so closely and pleasantly connected. This battalion had reached Cape Town on the same day as ourselves, and preceded us up the country. On reaching Orange River, we found it lying there, and as troops were urgently needed by Lord Methuen, who was at Modder river, it became, I understand, a question as to whether we should be pushed on, or detained, and allow the Gordons to proceed.

The question was decided in favour of the Gordons, who took over our train, and through this became engaged in Magersfontein on December 11, when they lost somewhat heavily.

This incident was, I think, greatly to the advantage of the Royal Canadians, as they were not at that time so well prepared to go into action as they ultimately became.

At Orange river we only remained a couple of days, but during that time earned some little credit for the smart and effectual manner in which we built a long platform at the railway station.

At 8 a.m. on December 9, the Headquarters and Right Half Battalion moved by rail some 40 miles to Belmont, followed the next day by the Left Half Battalion, where we relieved the Royal Munster Fusiliers, who proceeded higher up the line, and we then found ourselves relegated to the line of communication, Orange river-Modder river, under Colonel Miles, C.B., and later on Major General Wood, R.E.

We were now enabled to settle down under canvas and devote some time to drill, although the duties of outposts, &c., were very heavy. We found at Belmont a part of the Mounted Infantry Company, Royal Munster Fusiliers, which remained with us, and in a day or two were joined by one section of 'P' Battery, Royal Horse Artillery; the Queensland Mounted Infantry, and two companies of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, making a garrison of about 1,600 officers and men.

As no commandant had been named at that time, I found myself in command of the station, and so continued until the 25th instant, when Lieut.-Col. Pilcher arrived and took it over.

On January 1, 1900, a part of the battalion had its first experience under fire, as 'C' Company, Captain Barker, formed a part of a small flying column which, under Col. Pilcher, attacked a force of the enemy at Sunnyside. Fortunately no casualties were sustained by 'C' Company, although it took an active part in the engagement and had a trying experience in the march to Douglas. The flying column returned to Belmont on January 4. On two other occasions during January 'A,' 'B,' 'G' and 'H' companies of the battalion formed parts of similar flying columns sent to reconnoitre in the neighbourhood. These small expeditions proved of great value to the companies engaged in them, being experience in marching and gaining a knowledge of the country.

After some five weeks' sojourn at Belmont, officers and men began to grow weary of the monotony of their duties, and to long for something more exciting. This soon came, for on February 8, the Field Marshal, Lord Roberts, Commander-in-Chief, with Lord Kitchener, passed through on their way to the front. The Commander-in-Chief stayed for a few moments at Belmont and spoke to me respecting the regiment, and, a day or two after, rumours reached us as to its probable movement. Then several of the companies were moved to Gras-Pan, a few miles north, for a day or two, but were again brought back to Belmont, and finally, on the 10th instant, definite orders were received for the whole battalion to proceed to Gras-Pan and there become a part of the newly formed 19th Brigade, under Major General Smith-Dorrien, C.B., D.S.O. On the evening of February 12, the battalion moved by train to Gras-Pan and joined the 19th Brigade, which was composed of :—

1st Battalion—Duke Cornwall's Light Infantry.
2nd " King's Own Shropshire Light Infantry.
1st " Gordon Highlanders.
2nd " Royal Canadian Regiment.

This Brigade with the Highland Brigade, under Major General Hector S. Macdonald, formed the 9th Division, commanded by Lieut. General Sir Henry Colville, K.C.M.G.

Tents were left at Belmont, and at Gras-Pan that night we had our first experience as a battalion in bivouac.

Now was to begin the celebrated march of Lord Roberts from the railway on the west to Bloemfontein, a march which changed the whole phase of the war ; was the means of relieving Kimberley and Ladysmith, and caused the withdrawal of the Boer armies from their points of vantage in Natal and Cape Colony.

Lord Roberts' army was of a strength of about 35,000 men, with 5,000 native drivers and 25,000 animals. This force was cutting itself adrift from its base for an unknown period, and therefore all supplies were to be carried with it. This, of course, made the number of wagons and transport animals very large; and everything superfluous, or not absolutely necessary, was ordered to be left behind.

The composition of Lord Roberts' force was as under :—

Cavalry Division, Major-General French.
Corps Artillery, Major-General Marshall.
6th Division, Major-General Kelly-Kenny.
7th Division, Major-General Tucker.
9th Division, Lt.-General Sir H. Colville.
Naval Guns, Captain Bearcroft, R.N.

The 9th Division being a part of the main army under Field Marshal Lord Roberts, which was to march to the east into the Orange Free State, moved on the 13th of February ; the Highland Brigade leaving Enslin on that day, while the 19th Brigade left Gras Pan at 5 a.m. on the same morning. Our first march was a most trying one, as it was not only excessively hot, but the delays were many and vexatious owing to the transport wagons, which were in many cases either over, or badly, loaded, and constantly broke down.

We arrived at Ram-Dam at 2·30 p.m., with a loss of over (50) fifty stragglers, having marched twelve miles, every one being very tired. Our strength on marching out of Gras-Pan was 31 officers, 865 N.C.O's and men. On the following day we reached Waterval on the Reit river, some 13 miles. This march was quite as trying as the previous day, added to which we had no sooner arrived at the Drift than heavy fatigue parties had to be furnished by the battalion in order to assist the naval guns over This duty was admirably done, and a good deal of credit was given to our parties by the naval officers. It was here that on the next morning, after the departure of the division, some 200 supply wagons were captured by the enemy, which resulted in short rations to the force for the next four weeks. As on marching that morning, we had left at Waterval some 10 men unfit to proceed, it was with considerable anxiety we heard of the capture of this convoy, and for some time afterwards we were under the impression that they had become prisoners. I did not, however, report the matter until certain of the casualty, and was, therefore, very glad to ultimately learn that they had escaped. The following day brought us to Wegdraai. Our advance troops had become engaged that afternoon with the enemy at Jacobsdal, and succeeded in capturing the place ; our brigade following up, halted for the night within three miles of Jacobsdal, where we took up our first turn of outpost duty in the brigade.

On the morning of the 16th, we moved into Jacobsdal and remained there during the day. At 9 p.m. that evening we marched for Klip Drift on the Modder river, forming the advance guard to the division, arriving there at 4 p.m. the next morning—having done 16 miles. This change in the time of our marching was a great relief from the hot sun, the nights being generally cool; although, unless with a good moon, the veldt becomes very trying, owing to its unevenness. We rested through the day at Klip Drift, and at 6 p.m. were on the move again, forming the rear guard to the division.

This was a very long and excessively tedious march. The interruptions in the front were many, and the night was dark, whilst the distance traversed was more than ordinarily long, being 23 miles. We arrived at Paardeberg Drift at 6 a.m. of the 18th, and preparations were immediately made for breakfast. This meal had barely been taken when firing was heard, and we received orders to parade at once, as the enemy, under General Cronje, had taken up a position in the bed of the Modder river, from which we were to dislodge or capture them.

At 7.20 a.m. we left our temporary lines and moved a few hundred yards to some high ground, from behind where we could see the Highland Brigade already engaged with the enemy. We were immediately ordered to practically retrace our steps and cross the Modder river, nearly five feet deep, at the Paardeberg Drift, which we did, and at 9.30 a.m. our share of the first of the nine days fighting at Paardeberg began. The special report upon which, with plan, is now attached as appendix 'A 1.'

On the 19th February we buried our unfortunate comrades who had fallen the day before, and I sent a cablegram by special messenger to Kimberley giving a full list of the killed and wounded, which I have since learned never reached you. In the afternoon we took up a line of outposts some three miles up the river and within 3,500 yards of the Boer laager. The next morning, the 20th, the brigade was sent still further forward and during the whole day was engaged with the enemy, with the loss to the Royal Canadians of four wounded. The report of this action was duly sent you and is now attached, with plan, as appendix 'A 2.'

On the 21st, the battalion was detailed for the support of the naval guns on Artillery Hill, which were all day shelling the Boer's laager with lyddite, and during the night did its share of outpost duty. On the 22nd the arrival of a relieving force to the enemy caused the battalion to be sent some two miles to the west of Artillery Hill to occupy, in conjunction with the rest of the brigade, a line of kopjes, and for nearly three days it was engaged in this duty, during the whole of which time it rained heavily and incessantly, and as a consequence officers and men were continually wet through.

On the afternoon of the 24th, the battalion was, for the first time during this arduous week, relieved from duty and sent back to Paardeberg Drift (some four miles distant) for a rest. As, however, it rained heavily through the whole of that night, making our bivouac a perfect quagmire, and though fine on the following day (25th) the time of the greater part of the men was taken up by poling off the dead bodies of animals and human beings which drifted down the river immediately alongside our lines from the enemy's laager and threatened to form a dam. The time spent there was a rest in name only. During this day (25th) a moderate calculation was made of the number of dead animals and men which passed our bivouac, and was found to be one in every two minutes of the twenty-four hours, or a total of 720, to say nothing of the filth from the Boer laager above.

As it was from this river, the Modder, that the only supply of water was available during the nine days we occupied the locality, to it may safely be attributed in a large measure the epidemic of enteric and typhoid which later on developed in the battalion, and which numbered in the aggregate some 350 cases.

On the morning of the 26th February, the battalion was ordered to relieve the Cornwall's in the trenches, which were being gradually pushed up to the enemy's position, still on the north side of the river. By noon that day this was done, and we found ourselves occupying a line of trenches within 600 yards of the enemy. All the rest of the day we engaged the enemy from these trenches, and during the afternoon were informed that it was proposed to make an attack at 2 a.m. the next morning. Preparations were then made for this attack, which took place as ordered on the morning of the 27th February, and the nineteenth anniversary of Majuba Hill.

My official report, with the plan of this action was sent you shortly afterwards, and is now made Appendix 'A' 3. After the fire had ceased, an evacuation of the laager was made by the enemy, when we buried those who had fallen, and the battalion marched into the laager at 9.30 a.m., and there received orders to await the arrival of the Field Marshal, Lord Roberts, Commander-in-Chief, who desired to see the corps. It was, however, nearly 4 p.m. before he arrived, when he thanked us for the morning's work and gave us credit for being instrumental in the capture of General Cronje and his forces. That night our bivouac was made on the north side of the laager, and the following day our brigade was moved to Kodoes Rand, some five miles higher up the river, in the neighbourhood of which the whole army was concentrated. Here we remained until the 7th of March, and had a fairly good rest. Orders were here received on the 6th for a movement to attack a position strongly held by the enemy, to the east of Poplar Grove, and which covered a frontage of some thirteen miles. At 4 a.m. on the 7th, or an hour before daybreak, the brigade was moving to the right of the enemy's position. The order of movement by the brigade was Shropshire L. I., leading, followed by the Cornwalls, the Gordons and Royal Canadians. To the right of us was the Highland Brigade, while our left was protected by a strong force of mounted infantry. Advancing in this order for about two hours, a halt was made for half an hour, when we again moved forward, the Shropshires covering the front, supported by the Cornwalls, with the Gordons and Royal Canadians in reserve. Our immediate objective was a large table-topped kopje, approaching which to within 4,000 or 5,000 yards, we came to a halt, and awaited the development of the attack by the other portions of the army. About 9 a.m. our naval guns, which had come up to the right of us, opened on the large kopje, and immediately drew the fire of two Creusot guns, which were posted on it. This artillery duel lasted for some two hours to the disadvantage of our guns, which were forced to retire out of range, and we were sent as an escort for their protection. We had hardly complied with this, which entailed a couple of miles marching to the right rear, when we received an order to join the Highland Brigade, which was moving rapidly to the right front in support of the 7th Division, then moving against the centre of the enemy in conjunction with the 6th Division and the cavalry, who were supposed to be by that time on the left flank of the enemy and his rear. After joining the Highland Brigade, we had a very stiff march of some ten miles to Poplar Grove, where we found the 7th Division engaged, and advancing on the left flank of the Highland Brigade for another mile; we were suddenly ordered to move directly across to the left, and take possession of a line of small kopjes, thought to be occupied by the Boers. Advancing against these with every precaution, we reached them without opposition, and from the top of one, Slags Kraal, saw a large part of the Boer force in hasty retreat. This was at 4 p.m. The result of this action was the evacuation of the whole of the enemy's position, and its possession by our forces. The losses were comparatively small; although the work was exceedingly hard and the results most important. An interesting feature of the day was the presence in the enemy's line of the presidents of both the Orange Free State, and the Transvaal, who by the way, narrowly escaped capture. As orders had been given in the morning to move as light as possible, great coats and blankets had been left at our last bivouac, as well as all supplies, and consequently it was not until 2 a.m. the next morning that these reached us. In the meantime we were without food, and the night turned out to be one of the coldest experienced in the whole of our eleven months campaigning. We had marched fully twenty miles in the hot sun, and though hungry and tired out, could get no rest, owing to the intense cold. The remainder of our brigade had continued on the enemy's right, with whom it became lightly engaged at intervals during the day, until the general retreat of the Boers took place. It was 9 p.m. that night before the brigade was brought together again.

On the 8th March, we had a much needed opportunity of washing, which was taken advantage of, and on the afternoon of the 9th, our division was brought back about three miles to the Poplar Grove drift, and there crossed to the south side of the Modder. Our turn for crossing did not arrive until 7 p.m., and after two hours hard work, we reached the opposite bank. The men had to be taken over on ponts, and it required a large fatigue with ropes, to assist the wagons up a very steep embankment.

On the morning of the 10th of March Lord Roberts began the last stage of the march to Bloemfontein in three columns, of which our division formed a part of the centre, and with which was the Commander-in-Chief himself. The 6th Division, which formed the northern column, became engaged early in the day with our enemy of the 7th inst., in a running fight, beginning at Abraham's Kraal. The original direction of this column had, through this, to become somewhat changed in a southerly direction, and in the afternoon our column came in contact with these opposing forces, and thus took a small part in what is known as the battle of Driefontein. The Boers in this action lost very heavily in guns and men.

For the next three days no incident of note occurred, the march of the three columns being unopposed. On the afternoon of the last (13th March) the advanced troops of the army reached Bloemfontein. Our division went into bivouac that night at Ferreira Spruit Siding, a station on the railway, some six miles south of the city. Here it remained for a day, and on the morning of the 15th March, we marched into Bloemfontein, and formed a bivouac on the south-west side of it. Here it was understood that the army would remain for some time to rest and refit, as men and animals were pretty well tired out, the losses in the latter having been extraordinarily great, and supplies of all kinds were much needed, particularly food.

The Royal Canadian Regiment had suffered equally with the others in the matter of short rations, all having been for the last three weeks upon half rations at the most, and at odd times not even that. As to clothing and boots, the battalion was in a pitiable condition.

With the seizure of the Orange Free State railway, it was expected that all necessary supplies would soon be forthcoming, but owing to the destruction of the bridge over the Orange river at Norvals Pont by the enemy, this hope was only partially realized, and stores were very slow indeed in reaching Bloemfontein.

The duties which now fell to the lot of the 9th division were not excessive, and time was found in which to resume to a limited extent, the drilling of the battalion. Owing to the casualties caused by death, wounds, and troubles incident to the line of march, our strength on reaching Bloemfontein was reduced to 28 officers and 712 N.C.O.'s and men.

A few days after our arrival enteric and typhoid made its appearance amongst us, and before the end of the month, we had upwards of 100 cases in hospital, with fresh ones appearing daily.

On the afternoon of the 30th March, we suddenly received an order to march with the division early next morning, and at 5.30 a.m., of the 31st of March, we were moving as rear guard in an easterly direction from Bloemfontein. About noon that day we were met by small parties of cavalry and mounted infantry who informed us hurriedly of the disaster that evening at Koorn Spruit, or Sannah's Post. We were pushed rapidly on, and at 1 p.m. reached Boesman Kop, a commanding point 18 miles to the east of Bloemfontein. Here I was ordered to remain with four companies of the battalion, and hold the Kop, while the rest of the battalion moved some six miles further on, to the Waterval drift, Modder river. The division that afternoon became slightly engaged with the enemy along the river between Waterval drift and the waterworks, but no casualties occurred in the 19th Brigade. On the following day, 1st April, the division was concentrated at Boesman Kop, and on the 1st of April began its return march to Bloemfontein, arriving there the morning of the 3rd. We had hardly taken up our old bivouac, when orders were received for the division to march again the following day, and at 1.30 p.m. we began our march in a south-easterly direction, reaching Reitfontein at 8.30 p.m. This was a most tedious march, the latter part of it being over a very rough country, and in the dark. At 5.30 a.m., of the 5th of April, we again moved off, and shortly afterwards our mounted troops and guns became engaged. The enemy, however, did not offer any serious resistance, and the position we had by this time taken up on Leeuw Kop, became unnecessary, so that after a rest of a couple of hours we returned to Reitfontein. Shortly after reaching this place it began to rain heavily, and so continued through the whole night. Our bivouac became a mud hole, and nothing could be more uncomfortable than we were.

The next morning, the 6th, we gladly left this camp and returned to Bloemfontein. On this day our tents arrived from the south, and were immediately pitched on the ground of our original bivouac.

For the next two weeks all were very much more comfortable than for the past two months, and had it not been for the many serious casualties from fever, we might have felt quite happy, as an issue of clothing had also arrived and food was plentiful ; while a good many of our comforts, so kindly sent us by friends from Canada and England, also found their way into our hands.

On the 20th April, the 19th Brigade received orders to march to Springfield, a farm some eight miles to the east of Bloemfontein, and there take over the duties of the 18th Brigade. We were, at the same time, instructed to take the least possible quantity of baggage, as it was not likely that we should be absent for more than three days. Consequently, when we marched on the next morning, we left our camp standing, with a large quantity of personal baggage, and other stores, which had been accumulated during the last two weeks. We had also to leave in camp three officers and and about 150 men, who were unable to stand the fatigue of marching, besides those in hospital. Our marching out strength was 27 officers, 584 non-commissioned officers and men.

We took over the duties of the 18th Brigade that afternoon (21st), and at 8 a.m. of the 23rd, orders were received for the Brigade to move, on half an hour's notice, to Boesman Kop, and this was the beginning of our second series of long and arduous marches and fighting, which did not cease until our arrival in Pretoria on the 5th June.

The Brigade moved at 11 a.m., and in place of halting at Boesman Kop, we passed it, and moved on towards the waterworks. As we approached, firing was heard in front, and we soon learned that the mounted infantry which preceded us, had become engaged with the enemy, and had forced their retirement from the position they held on Modder river. We camped that night about two miles short of the waterworks, at Klip Kraal, and the next morning moved early, in fighting formation, over the river, on to the heights of Momema mountain, which the battalion scaled about 1 p.m. These heights had been held in the morning by the enemy, who had retired on our approach. Our bivouac that night was a most pleasant one, at the foot of the heights, and we learned that we had become a part of the column under the command of General Ian Hamilton, consisting of 'P' Battery, Royal Horse Artillery, Marshall's Mounted Infantry, two Cow guns, the 19th and 21st Brigades. Major General Smith-Dorrien now assumed command of the two infantry brigades, while Colonel Speirs, Shropshire Light Infantry, took charge of the 19th Brigade. This arrangement meant the dissolution of the 9th Division, the Highland Brigade being left at the Waterworks.

On the 25th April, the column moved at 9 a.m., the Royal Canadians forming the advance guard. About noon considerable firing was heard on our left front, and it was soon apparent that the mounted infantry was engaged. The infantry column was halted, and the guns pushed forward, opening fire. The further details of this engagement will be found in Appendix 'A 4.' As it was on this day I was wounded and sent back to Bloemfontein, the command of the battalion devolved upon Lt.-Col. Buchan, until I was able to rejoin, on 26th May.

The wound I received was classified as slight, and by the 12th of May I was fit for duty. During the last four or five days of my convalescence at Bloemfontein, I made arrangements for a store house in which to place the regimental and personal property, which up to this time had been in our old camp in charge of details left there on the 21st April. In the store-room I had everything properly sorted, labelled and left in charge of a N. C. O. and two men. I left Bloemfontein on the 12th May, proceeding northward to rail head at Welgelegen siding, and the rest of the journey I made with ox convoys of supplies. This journey was most tedious and slow, as on the railway we had several times long stoppages, while the ox convoys were even worse, so that it was not until the morning of the 26th May that I was able to rejoin, and assumed command of the battalion at Wonderheuval.

During my absence much hard work was endured by the officers and men of the battalion, and several actions had been taken part in, but not being myself present, I must ask permission to insert herein as Appendix 'A 5' the diary of Lt.-Col. Buchan.

The day I resumed command our column crossed the Vaal, at Boschbank, at 3.10 p.m.; the crossing was an easy one, and as the battalion was the advance guard of the infantry that day it had the honour of being the first battalion of infantry of the main army to enter the Transvaal, as Lord Roberts' own column did not effect a crossing until the 28th. Our strength on that day was 25 officers and 418 N.C.O. and men.

We halted for the night on the northern side of the Vaal, and the next day, the 27th, made a march of some fifteen miles.

On the 28th May we had a further march of ten miles to Cyferfontein. During this march we could distinctly hear the guns of General French's force, which was closely engaged all day with the enemy.

On the morning of the 29th, we began our march at 7.15 a.m., reaching Klipriversberg about 11 a.m. Here we came up to General French's force, and found that although fighting for the last 24 hours, it had not been able to make any impression upon the enemy, who occupied a very strong position at Doorn-Kop, celebrated as the site of the surrender of Dr. Jameson and his force. Our column was at once given orders to take up the fighting and the 19th and 21st Brigades were told off to their respective lines of attack. For particulars of this action I must refer you to my report at the time, with map, and now attached as Appendix 'A 6.'

The night following this engagement was a miserable one. Our transport did not reach us until midnight, and in the meantime officers and men suffered very severely from hunger, thirst and cold. We were also very much grieved at the heavy loss sustained by our good comrades the Gordon Highlanders; many among the casualities being well known to us.

We were ordered to parade next morning, 30th May, ready to march at 4.30 a.m., and remained so until the order to move came at 10 a.m. As we momentarily expected the order to march, no breakfast could be prepared.

Leaving our bivouac at 10.30 a.m., we marched into Florida, a suburb of Johannesburg, on the west side, where we went into bivouac, and remained until the 1st of June, when we moved some six miles to Braamfontein, another suburb, to the north-east of Johannesburg, and here we stayed until the 3rd of June.

On the last named date we left Braamfontein at 6 a.m. and made a march of sixteen miles to Jacksie river. While the column with Lord Roberts moved the same day in a northerly direction by the main road, ours took a north-westerly one.

On the 4th we began our march at 7 a.m., our brigade being in the rear. A change in the direction was made soon after starting from north-west to north-east, and at about noon firing was heard to our front. This was the beginning of the engagement called Six-mile Spruit to the south of Pretoria. By 3 p.m. the firing having increased, it soon became evident that an action was being fought, and it was not long before the 21st brigade with the Cornwalls and Gordons of our brigade were pushed forward into the fighting line, having to climb the Schwartz Kopjes, while we were held in reserve at the foot of these, and the Shropshires remained as a baggage guard. The action lasted until five p.m., and resulted in the retirement of the Boers through Pretoria. Our bivouac was made that night where we lay, and the next morning (June 5) the triumphant march into Pretoria began. It was the turn of the 19th Brigade to lead, and of the Royal Canadians to lead in that brigade, so that we have the honour of leading the infantry of our column into the city. At eleven a.m. we reached Skinner's Court on the west side of the city, and the brigade there made its bivouac for the night.

On the afternoon of this day at 2 p.m. the whole army marched past the Field Marshal, Lord Roberts, Commander-in-Chief, who took his position in the Market Square. The spirit of all ranks of the regiment was excellent, and its movements on this occasion was remarked upon as being most smart and soldierly.

The strength of the battalion marching into Pretoria was twenty-seven officers and 411 men.

In that day's orders the dissolution of the 19th Brigade was announced, and in connection with this, a valedictory order of Major-General Smith-Dorrien was promulgated, which will be found under the heading of 'Commendatory messages' accompan ing this report. We were notified that for the present we should remain with the Gordons at Pretoria ; the Cornwalls and Shropshires being detailed for duties down the line of railway, the Shropshires moving away during the night. On the 6th, we were moved to Arcadia, a suburb in the east end of the city, and attached to the 7th Division, Major General Tucker.

On the morning of June 7, however, we received orders to be ready to move that afternoon to the south, and on reaching the rendezvous at five p.m., found that the 19th Brigade was again reformed under Major General Smith-Dorrien ; the Suffolks taking the place of the Shropshires.

The brigade marched at six p.m. to the south-east to a bivouac, two and a half miles east of Irene Station, there to take our place with the 21st Brigade in practically the old column under General Ian Hamilton.

Before nine a.m., the next morning, this arrangement was changed, and while General Ian Hamilton, with the 21st brigade, moved to the north-east, our brigade with the 74th Field Battery, and a half company of Royal Engineers marched southwards under Major General Smith-Dorrien, being detailed for the line of communication.

We halted that night at Kaalfontein and continued our march the next morning the (9th) leaving strong detachments of the Cornwalls and the Suffolks at different railway stations along the line.

On the 10th June, what was then left of the brigade viz. :—the Gordons and Royal Canadians, with the Artillery, and Engineers, reached Elandsfontein Junction, and there formed a bivouac.

On the following day, I received orders to take five companies, and occupy Springs, a coal mining centre, some eighteen miles east of Johannesburg ; at the end of the branch railway line. I marched out at 2 p.m. of the 12th of June with 'A', 'B,' 'C,' 'F' and 'G' companies, reaching Boksburg, five miles, at 5 p.m., where I was joined by a squadron of Loch's Horse under Captain Brown.

At 7.30 a.m. of the 13th, I resumed my march on Springs, which, contrary to expectations, I found unoccupied by the enemy, and took possession of the railway station and village. In the railway yard I found three very good engines, less the connecting rods, which had been removed, and some forty trucks and railway carriages.

In the village were some five coal mines, employing about three thousand natives. These mines had not, however, been working for some time, and only the natives connected with one, viz. : the Great Eastern, were at hand. This mine began working in a few days after our arrival, supplying coal to Johannesburg and Pretoria, and the Imperial Military Railway. Immediately on taking possession of the village, we took precautions for the defence of the place by establishing picquets on the coal dumps, which afforded excellent points for observation, and by digging trenches at these and other points of advantage, so that the place was soon rendered fairly safe, while a regular system of patrols by the mounted infantry was also arranged. These dispositions were inspected by Major General Smith-Dorrien, on the 21st June, and fully approved by him. We soon became aware of the presence of a force of the enemy hovering in the neighbourhood, which continued during the whole time of our occupation of the station, and varied in numbers from 150 to 800 at different times.

On the 14th of June, the remaining three companies of the regiment arrived under Lieut. Col. Buchan, and one section of the 74th Field Battery under Lieut. Julian, thus making the garrison up to a strength of 600 all told.

Having been detailed by Major General Smith-Dorrien as commandant of this station, and the line Springs—Elandsfontein, which included Boksburg, I appointed the following as station staff officers : Staff and Intelligence Officer, Capt. J. H. C. Ogilvy ; Railway Staff Officer, Lt. F. D. Lafferty ; Assistant District Commissioner-Capt. W. A. Weeks.

On the 14th June, one of our patrols encountered a small party of the enemy, and were driven in, several shots being exchanged. The duties necessary for the proper protection of the place became very heavy, as in order to render it secure all the coal mine dumps had to be taken into its defences, and these covering a large area, required not only strong parties, but also entailed a good deal of time in reaching and returning from them. As much as one half the effective force being at one time required for the duties of outpost guards, etc. Much work was also required in preparing the dumps for the defence, and making the trenches, while every morning the whole garrison had to be under arms before daybreak, and remain so for at least an hour. All the inhabitants of the neighbourhood had to be visited, their names registered, arms taken from them, and the oath of neutrality administered and passes granted to such as were considered fit to be trusted with them. Cattle and stock had also to be collected from the farms, whose owners were absent from them. Railway communication was established at once to Johannesburg, and trains run regularly to and from that place. This line as far as Boksburg had to be regularly patrolled through the night by parties of infantry on hand trolleys, and on the 18th I was instructed to augment a force of mounted infantry that was stationed at Boksburg, by a company of infantry. I detailed "H" Company, under Capt. Stairs, for the duty, and that officer to the command of the station.

For the first day or two following our arrival at Springs, the battalion was in bivouac, but finding many houses and a couple of large buildings vacant, these were turned into barracks and quarters, and soon had the whole force under cover in the immediate neighbourhood of the railway station, thus ensuring protection from the cold nights, the season being that of winter in South Africa. On the 19th of June, a large supply depot was established here, under the charge of an officer in the Army Service Corps, and the object of which was soon seen, it being largely used for operations that were subsequently carried on to the north of us. In the meantime it was rather a source of anxiety, as the enemy in the neighbourhood, it was well known, were very short of food.

On the 21st of June General Ian Hamilton's column arrived on its way to Heidelberg and the Orange Free State, remaining over the night at Springs. On the 23rd the detachment of Loch's Horse was relieved by one of the N. Staff Mounted Infantry, under Lieut. Ewing.

On the morning of the 28th of June, the enemy to the number of about 600 made an attack upon our lines. It was not a very determined one, as with the exception of a comparatively few of them who worked up under cover to within 500 to 600 yards of one of our posts, they contented themselves with remaining at long range rifle and gun fire. For half an hour, we kept up a desultory fire by volleys at 1,600 yards, and threw a half dozen shells into their ranks at about 3,000 yards. The latter fire had the effect of causing them to retire with a loss of one man, and a couple of horses. Our casualties were nil. The battalion was most prompt in proceeding to its respective stations on the alarm being given.

On the following day (29th), information was received of a second attack, which was to be made on the following morning, and notified the general officer commanding lines of communication and asked for reinforcements. These came early on the morning of the 30th in the form of an armoured train with pom-pom and machine guns. A 6 inch gun mounted on a railway truck, and 200 of the Gordons under Lt.-Col. Macbean. Later on in the morning, a strong company of mounted infantry under Capt. Harris also arrived, but no attack being made early in the morning as expected, three strong patrols of mounted infantry were sent to the east and north; one or two of these patrols became engaged, losing one horse, and capturing two men and two horses, when the enemy retired quite too far for us to pursue. Considering from all information that could be obtained, all danger was over for the present, the reinforcements were returned to their stations the next day.

On the 5th of July, I had, in accordance with instructions, to relieve the detachment of the Gordons with the armoured train, stationed at Elandsfontein, by two officers and sixty men; as the 19th Brigade was being reformed again for services in the field, and the above named regiment was to form part of it, "G" company under Lieut. Jones was detailed for the duty. In connection with the return of the 19th Brigade to the field again; it was at first intended that the Royal Canadians should remain in it, but as troops were not available to relieve the latter, the brigade was sent out with only 3 battalions.

About July 5, Major General Hutton, with a force of Artillery and M.I., which included the Royal Canadian Dragoons, Canadian Mounted Rifles and Naval Guns, reached Reitvlei, some ten miles to the north of the Springs, with a view of operating against a large force of Boers, formed from those who had been operating against Springs, and a portion of General Botha's Army from Middleburg. On the day following, I was ordered to move with a flying column of Artillery, Mounted Infantry and Infantry, from Springs, to assist in a proposed attack to be made by Major General Hutton, should he drive the enemy southwards. The same day Lt. Col. Ross, in command of the 8th M. I. with Lumsden's Horse, reported to me in connection with this duty, and two companies of Gordons also reported to temporarily relieve the Royal Canadian Regiment while absent from Springs.

On the 7th July, according to instructions received the evening before, the whole available force, some 650 officers and men, with the exception of the two companies of the Gordons above alluded to, moved out under my command at 6.30 a.m. to the northward, with the object of cutting off the retreat of the enemy, should he be driven back by General Hutton's force. About noon communication was established between our advance parties and the right of General Hutton's force at Olifantstontein, and considerable firing of big guns was heard some five miles further north, which proved to be in connection with an action fought on his left flank, and in which the Royal Canadian Dragoons were engaged and had seven casualties. As this action ceased about 1 p.m., and there being no appearance of the enemy any where, I returned to Springs with my force, in accordance with instructions should such a contingency arise.

On the 8th and 9th July, it was evident that General Hutton's force to the north of us was engaged, as the guns could be heard from that direction, and information reached me that the movement of a part of General Botha's force had begun from Balmoral on the Lorenzo Marquez railway to the south.

On the 9th July, a change was made in the command of the Pretoria-Kroonstadt line of communication, Major General Sir H. Chermside, R.E., relieving Major General Smith-Dorrien.

The following day a force of 250 mounted infantry under Lieut.-Colonel Ross was added to the garrison at Springs, from which large convoys of supplies were now daily moving, and many sick and several wounded from General Hutton's force arrived en route to the hospital in Johannesburg.

From the 11th to the 22nd July, our own and the enemy's forces still occupied the country in the vicinity and to the north of Springs, engaged in desultory fighting, and on the the 18th news reached us of the gallant deaths of Lieuts. Borden and Burch of the Royal Canadian Dragoons. Large convoys of supplies were being sent from Springs to the commands of Generals French and Hutton, while numbers of sick arrived from these forces on the way to the hospital.

A large 'sick horse' depot was established, made up of the unfortunate animals found incapable of service for the time.

The enemy also kept hovering about Springs, and on several occasions fired on our patrols, with the loss to us of one man killed, one wounded and two horses killed.

About the 24th July, a forward movement north-east was made by Generals French and Hutton, which caused the enemy to retire. This relieved the strain upon Springs, as but few Boers remained, and with the departure of our own troops the strain on the supply depot ceased and also the necessity for the occupation of Springs.

During the time we were at Springs the strength of the battalion came up to 25 officers and 523 non commissioned officers and men, owing to the return of convalescents.

On the 2nd of August, orders were received for the evacuation of the place at once, and at 9 p.m we moved out by train taking the supply depot with us. The mounted infantry and 'sick horse' depot moved by route march.

Moving southward we crossed the Vaal and reached Wolvehoek at 9 a.m., the morning of the 3rd, and there detrained. During the afternoon orders arrived for us to join Major General Ridley's mounted infantry column, which formed a part of General Lord Kitchener's force, engaging a strong body of the enemy under General DeWet, in the neighbourhood of Vredefort.

At 9 a.m., of the 4th, seven companies of the battalion (leaving 'G' company still on the armoured train on line of communication, Pretoria-Kroonstadt), with the 8th Mounted Infantry, under Lt. Col. Ross, marched from Wolvehoek, south-west, to join General Ridley. We mustered 23 officers and 463 non-commissioned officers and men.

On the afternoon of the 5th, after two marches of 12 miles each, we opened helio communication with that officer from a point of nearly midway between Vredefort and Parijs. That afternoon Ross's M.I. became slightly engaged with the enemy for a couple of hours, but without loss, and during the evening Lt.-Cols. Delisle and Legge joined us with their commands of M.I., followed the next morning (6th August) by General Ridley and the remainder of his force. We were now with a column some 2,500 strong, composed of one battery R.H.A. (P), several pom-poms, five battalions of M.I., and the Royal Canadian Regiment.

During the forenoon of the 7th, heavy firing from guns was heard from the west, where Lord Methuen's column was evidently attacking the enemy from that side. In the afternoon large parties of the latter could be seen in the distance, moving very quickly northwards.

On the morning of the 8th of August General Ridley's column resumed its pursuit of the enemy, moving northward to Lindeque Drift, where it arrived on the afternoon of the 9th. A slight action took place here with the rear guard of the enemy and our advance troops.

On the 10th of August we suddenly received orders to join General Hart's column, which had reached Lindeque through the night, and consisted of :—

Marshall's Horse.
84th Battery, R.F.A.
2 Naval Guns, 4.7.
Northumberland Fusiliers.
Somerset Light Infantry.
The Derbyshire Regiment.
The Royal Dublin Fusiliers.

With this column we crossed the Vaal at 7.30 a.m. at the Lindeque Drift, a very bad crossing, and continued the pursuit of the enemy, reaching Losberg in the afternoon, having made eleven miles against a very heavy wind, which was most trying.

On the 11th, we had to contend against a similar wind blowing over the burnt veldt, and made fifteen miles, under what were, perhaps, the most trying circumstances in our experience of South Africa. Continuing north, we crossed the railway at Welverdiend on the 12th August, making 20 miles on the 13th. On the 14th and 15th of August we marched steadily, much difficulty being experienced in obtaining water. On the latter day we reached "Zandfontein" and went into bivouac with the columns of General Ian Hamilton, and Brigadier General Mahon. Here we learned that the enemy had got through Olifants Nek, which was supposed to have been held by our troops, thus rendering pursuit impossible, and also that a small force under Colonel Hore was surrounded and in danger of capture at Zeerust, some 60 miles to the north-west of us, and which force our column was to move at once to relieve.

On August 16, we changed our direction towards Zeerust, but had proceeded only some three miles, when we learned of the relief of Col. Hore's force, and received orders for return of General Hart's column to Pretoria. Subsequent orders of same day, however, required our movements to Elands river to join Lord Kitchener. We moved in a westerly direction at 1 a.m. on the 17th to Tootefontein, and covered fully 20 miles before a chance was given for breakfast. Half-past one in the afternoon again saw us on the march, but an hour after starting, we had instructions to return to Tootefontein, where we remained the night. Orders here again reached us to return to Pretoria, via Krugersdorp, in order that General Hart's column might refit, and replenish supplies.

On August 18, we began our return march, and reached Krugersdorp by noon of the 23rd. Here we were detached from General Hart's force, and sent by rail to Pretoria, where we received orders on the 24th to take up line of communication duties at Silverton and Eerste Fabricken, two stations just east of Pretoria.

Before leaving the subject of our service with General Ridley's and General Hart's forces, I think that I should place on record the severity of these marches and strain to which officers and men were subjected. Not only were the marches long, averaging seventeen miles a day, but they were continuous ; the roads very dusty ; water scarce, and rest most irregular. Never, however, in the South African experience were the duties, entailed upon all ranks, more cheerfully performed or more pluck and endurance shown by all ranks of the regiment.

A feature of these marches was a system adopted of organized singing, which greatly relieved the monotony of them, and I might state that over 1,000 miles of honest marching had now been covered by the battalion.

On the morning of August 25 we marched from Pretoria, and in accordance with instructions, three companies (" E," " F " and " H ") under Major Pelletier, were left at Silverton, to relieve a like number of men of the Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, which was ordered to move further eastward on the line.

In addition to these three companies, one troop of Roberts' Horse, and one section of 18th Battery, R.F.A., formed the garrison.

With the remaining four companies, " A," " B," " C " and " D," I moved on to Eerste Fabricken, and here I took over command of that station, and relieved the remainder of the D.C.L.I. I found here one troop of Roberts' Horse.

" G " Company, R.C.R., was still doing duty on the armoured train.

Eerste Fabricken, I found, was a village of some importance, and the site of the Hatherley Distillery. The enemy was in small parties hovering about in the vicinity to the northward, threatening to cut the railway line—Pretoria-Middleberg—over which large numbers of troops and supplies were passing to the headquarters of the army.

Brigadier General Barker, R.E., was in command of this line with headquarters at that time at Bronkhurst Spruit.

The defences of Eerste Fabricken, I found already made, consequently the duties entailed upon officers and men were not heavy, nor was the enemy very energetic, although on the 30th of August, one of the M.I. patrol was killed, and two horses shot.

On the 2nd of September, " F " was ordered to relieve the troops at Olifants River with three companies from the Royal Canadians, and did so with " C," " E." and " I " Companies under Major Pelletier, sending " D " Company to Silverton, which station was placed under the command of Capt. Stairs.

On the 7th September, I received a telegram from Field Marshal Commander-in-Chief, asking if the Regiment would prolong its service in South Africa, but as I am treating of this subject under another heading, I shall not here enter into any of the details.

On the 24th of September, the officers and men who had decided to return to Canada on completion of their engagement, left their several stations for Pretoria, and there entrained on the 26th for Cape Town.

Previous to their departure, Lord Roberts inspected them, and expressed his great satisfaction with the services they had rendered during the past ten months.

These details, numbering 16 officers and 413 N.C.O's and men, sailed from Cape Town for Halifax under Major Pelletier on the ss. Idaho on the 1st October, 1900.

There now remained only 12 officers and 250 men of the regiment in South Africa doing regimental duty, composing ' A and B ' Companies, N.C.O's and men of the permanent corps and of the draft, together with some few men of various companies who had elected to remain. Of the three latter classes, I formed a third, or Provisional Company termed ' I,' and placed it under the command of Capt. A. H. Macdonell.

Having on the departure of the time-expired details, received orders to furnish garrisons for Eerste Fabricken and Silverton only ; I sent ' I ' Company to the latter station, placing the station under the command of Capt. Weeks, while I retained ' A ' and ' B ' Companies at the former station. On October 6, three companies, King's Own Scottish Borderers, relieved us at Eerste Fabricken, the two companies there, with myself, being ordered to Silverton, and to which place we marched on the 8th instant. I assumed command of that station on the same day, and we remained there until October 24, without any incident of importance.

On October 24, the Royal Canadians were relieved at Silverton by the volunteer company of the West Riding Regiment, and marched into Pretoria to take part in the annexation ceremony of the 25th, going into camp at Arcadia. On the 25th, the celebration of the annexation of the Transvaal took place, and for the purpose representative units of the army, such as the Composite Regiment of Household Cavalry, 'A' Battery, R.H.A.; Grenadier Guards Coldstream Guards, 2nd Gordon Highlanders, Royal Irish Regiment, King's Royal Rifles, Australian Mounted Infantry, two battalions of English volunteers, Brabant's Horse and Royal Canadian Regiment, joined the Pretoria garrison.

The ceremonies consisted of reading the Proclamation of Annexation and a march past before the Field Marshal, Commander-in-Chief, Lord Roberts. In the march past I am glad to be able to report the Battalion as having done remarkably well, and to have fully held its own with the best regiments present. For the next few days the Battalion remained idle in the camp, and on October 30 received orders to entrain that night and the following morning in three parties, for the purpose of moving to Cape Town and there embarking for home via England.

By 1 p.m of the 31st instant the last of the Battalion ('I' Company and Headquarters) had left Pretoria.

The journey to Cape Town was a most uncomfortable and tedious one; the non-commissioned officers and men being closely packed in open cattle trucks, while the trains were only permitted to run through by daylight, owing to the danger of the line being broken, until we reached Cape Colony. During the first three nights of the journey it rained heavily, and all ranks were more or less cold and wet. It was not until 6 a.m. on the morning of the 7th that we reached Cape Town, and were at once transferred to the transport Hawarden Castle, the strength being 12 officers and 246 non-commissioned officers and men.

The transport sailed at 5 p.m. the same day, previous to which, however, the Mayor of Cape Town, Col. Hanbury Williams, representing the High Commissioner, and three members of the Cape Colony Government, came on board to wish us bon voyage, and express appreciation of the services rendered by the Royal Canadian Regiment during the past twelve months.

Besides the Royal Canadians, the following troops were returning to England by the Hawarden Castle :—

The Composite Regiment of Household Cavalry : Consisting of one squadron each from the 1st Life Guards : 2nd Life Guards, and Royal Horse Guards, under Lt. Col. Napier Miles.

The 'A' Battery Royal Horse Artillery, Maj. Paget, R.H.A.

The 3rd Ammunition Column—Major Findlay, R.F.A.

Before leaving Cape Town, I had been detailed to the command of the troops on board, and made the following appointments for the voyage.

Staff Officer—Capt. Ferguson, 2nd Life Guards.

Quarter Master, Lieut. Stubbs, R. H. Guards.

Principal Medical Officer, Maj. Fiset, Royal Can. Regt.

Chaplain, Capt. Knox Little, lately attached to Coldstream Guards.

The voyage to England was without any notable incident, but a most pleasant one, our association with the other troops on board being marked by the greatest possible cordiality and good feeling.

CASUALTIES.

It is with much regret that I have to refer to the casualties sustained by the battalion during its late service in South Africa. See Appendix A 7, A 8, A 9.

The large majority of these casualties occurred during the early part of what might be termed the second phase of the war, viz. :—during the months of February, March and April, 1900, and arose from the many actions at Paardeberg, and the filthy water of the river Modder which had to be used by officers and men during the nine days they were in that vicinity.

Although the majority of cases of enteric and typhoid which afterwards developed can easily be traced to the use of this water, yet the marvel is that many more were not stricken from the same cause.

Of prisoners to the enemy the battalion only had six during its service.

PROLONGATION OF SERVICE.

A very important question presented itself to me in July last, viz., that of the continuation of the service of officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the battalion, should such be asked for by the Imperial authorities.

By the terms of their enlistment, the non-commissioned officers and men were to serve for six, or, if required, for twelve months, from dates varying from the 18th to the 30th October, 1899, and as their services had been required beyond the six months (18th-30th April), the conquest of the Transvaal having still to be made, I deemed it advisable, in July, to ask our Government for instructions as to the further enlistment of the non-commissioned officers and men, at the end of the twelve months, should they agree, and the Imperial authorities desire such.

On the 13th July, I accordingly wrote you, asking for a reply, and to this I received no answer until long after the matter was settled.

Learning of the strong desire of many officers and men to return to Canada by the end of twelve months, I wrote Major General Hart, under whose command the battalion then was, on the 13th August, informing him of the terms of engagement under which officers and men were serving, and that owing to the fact of many of these having business and civil employment to attend to, it was desirable arrangements should be made for their being relieved from duty and at their homes, if possible, by the 15th October.

I also, at the same time, saw Major General Hart personally upon the subject, fully explaining the position, and asking him to forward my letter to the proper authorities at once, which he promised to do.

On the 22nd August, I again saw Major General Hart upon the subject, and learned that he had not yet forwarded my letter, so I obtained it from him and sent it on myself to the Military Secretary of the Commander-in-Chief, at the same time, telegraphing a precis of it to the same officer.

No further intimation reached me in connection with the matter until early of the morning of September 8, when I received the following telegraph from the C. in C. :—

BELFAST, September 7, 1900.

'From Lord Roberts to Col. Otter, Royal Canadian Regiment, Eerste Fabricken C 4371.—I trust that as many as possible of the Royal Canadians will prolong their service until the end of the war. They have done such gallant service, it would be a great pity for any of them to leave now that the end seems near—acknowledge.'

At this time the battalion was broken up into four distinct detachments, but I at once called those officers together who were with me at Bn. H. Qrs., read Lord Roberts' telegram and asked for their views

They were of unanimous opinion that the request of the Commander-in-Chief should be complied with and answered for their men remaining. I need scarcely say that such were my own views as well.

My reply to Lord Roberts' telegram was as follows :—

EERSTE FABRICKEN, September 8, 1900.

From Lt.-Col. Otter, Commanding Royal Canadian Regiment, To Lord Roberts, Belfast.

'Reply to your telegram C 4371 of yesterday, your wishes will gladly be complied with,—would ask permission for one or two officers and a few men whose cases are urgent to be given leave to return at once.'

Following the despatch of this last telegram I at once issued a regimental order embodying both telegrams, which was despatched without delay to the different stations occupied by the battalion, and promulgated on parade to the two companies ('A' and 'B') then at battalion headquarters.

Lord Roberts replied to mine of September 8, as follows :—

BELFAST, 11.15 a.m., September 9, 1900.

From Lord Roberts to Col. Otter, Eestre Fabricken.

'C 4437. Many thanks for your very satisfactory reply. By all means give leave to one or two officers and few men whose cases are urgent to return at once.'

About 9.30 p.m., of the same day (September 9) the following reached me from the O. C. L. of C. Pretoria-Middleburg.

MIDDLEBURG, 4.30 p.m., Sept. 9, 1900.

From Col. Barker to O. C. Royal Canadians, Eerste Fabricken.

'416 War Office wires all men of Canadian regiment engaged to serve one year' whose services expire in October, and who do not voluntarily extend their services, are to be sent to Canada as soon as possible. Please ascertain and report to me by telegraph number of officers and number of men of your regiment who wish to proceed to Canada under this order, and, secondly, the number who desire to remain for further service in South Africa. Information required under both heads for the regiment under your command now at Elandsfontein, Silverton, Eerste Fabricken and Olifants River. Repeated—Elandsfontein, Silverton, Eerste Fabricken and Olifants river.'

This last telegram you will notice was sent direct to the several stations at which the battalion was distributed, and would arrive about the same time that the regimental orders previously alluded to.

In the face of Lord Roberts' message of Sept. 7 to me, I could not understand that from the O. C. L. of C. just quoted.

At noon on Sept. 10, Lord Roberts himself arrived on his way to Pretoria and again expressed his gratification with the action of the regiment, at the same time adding that different action on its part would likely have caused other Colonial corps to withdraw.

I then showed him the telegram I had just received from the O. C. L. of C., which I feared was likely to confuse and upset his wishes.

To this he replied that the telegram should never have been sent us, and at once directed an A.D.C. to go and cancel it, which was done.

On Sept. 11, I cabled you the action I had taken in reply to Lord Roberts' request and asked if there were any orders, and to this received your reply on Sept. 18, that there was no objection to all, or part, of the battalion continuing its services.

On Sept. 11 and 12, I received strong representations from the O. C., 'C' 'E' 'F' 'G', and 'H' Companies stationed at Silverton, Olifants river, and the Armoured train, that their men were decidedly adverse to prolonging their services and claimed their discharge in Canada at the end of the period of their enlistment.

In the face of such facts there seemed nothing left for me but to withdraw my telegram of Sept. 8 to Lord Roberts, which I accordingly did on Sept. 13 as given below :—

EERSTE FABRICKEN, Sept. 13, 1900.

From Lt.-Col. Otter, Commanding Royal Canadian Regiment, to Lord Roberts, Commander-in-Chief, Machadadorp

"Referring to your C 4371 of 7th inst., regret to inform you that owing to fear of loss of employment, or business, the large majority of officers and men of Royal Canadian Regiment feel they cannot, with justice to themselves or families, re-engage for further service in this country, and desire their discharge in Canada on Oct. 15 next, in accordance with terms of engagement, and I must therefore ask that such may be done if possible. In replying to your request on 8th inst., I fear my own zeal led me to judge too hurriedly of that of my officers and men under the peculiar circumstances of their cases, and I deeply regret having misled you."

On the same day I received the following:—

MACHADADORP, 9.50 p.m., Sept. 13, 1900.

From Lord Roberts to Lt.-Col. Otter, Commanding R. C. Regiment.

"C 4593. I much regret the decision which the officers and men of the R. C. Regt. have come to. It is unlikely that their services would be required much longer, and their going away now will prevent them taking part in the annexation ceremony I hope to hold at Pretoria, and being present at the parade I understand Her Majesty contemplates honouring by her presence on the return of the troops that have taken part in this war. If on receipt of this you inform me that the officers and men still wish to return to Canada, the necessary transport arrangements will be made."

This telegram I at once promulgated by wire to the different stations, asking for a reply as soon as possible, and by the 15th, I had received information from the several companies of their determination, which I chronicle below:—

Eerste Fabricken	"A" Coy., Captain Burstall.	will prolong service.
	"B" " Lieut. Mason.
Olifants River	"C" " Captain Barker.	Unanimous desire to return to Canada.
" "	"E" " " Fraser.
	"F" " Lieut. Le Duc.
Armoured Train	"G" " " Jones.	Men will not enlist for longer service.
Silverton.	"D" " " Lawless.	Ten men will prolong service, remainder desire to return.
"	"H" " Captain Stairs.	Only three men will agree to prolong their service.

On September 15, I wired the Commander in Chief as under:—

"EESTRE FABRICKEN, September 15, 1900.

"From Lt.-Col. Otter Commanding Royal Canadian Regiment to Lord Roberts, Machadadorp."

"Reply to your C 4593 of 13th inst., about 300 N.C.O. and men R. C. Regiment with proportion of Officers under my command will gladly prolong service till end of war. The remainder regret that for reasons already stated must ask for return to Canada in shortest time possible."

I should in connection with this last telegram state that A. & B. Co.'s. alone did not make up 300, but I did not think it advisable to include the N.C.O. and men of the Permanent Corps, or the draft, in the list of those returning, as their term of service did not expire for some time.

I should also report that many of the Officers belonging to the Companies returning to Canada wished to remain, but this I could not allow, as their services were required with those leaving South Africa, and there were not sufficient N.C.O. and men remaining to need them.

On September 16, I received the following telegram:—

"MACHADADORP, September 16, 1900."

"From Lord Roberts to Lt.-Col. Otter, Eerste Fabricken."

"C 4693,—I am very glad to see that 300 of the R. C. Regiment under your own command will continue service to end of war. Early arrangements will be made for despatching those who have decided to return to Canada. Telegraph to D.A.G. Pretoria full particulars and numbers by ranks of those returning."

The arrangements above referred to were duly made and on October 1, 17 officers and 385 N.C.O. and men of the battalion sailed from Cape Town for Canada on ss. Idaho.

CONTRIBUTIONS.

Of the intense interest taken in the battalion by friends and the public generally, ample evidence was given from its very inception, as a large sum of money was placed in my hands for the comforts and necessaries before sailing from Quebec, and these were largely augmented from time to time during our service.

Besides money, numerous consignments of underclothing, beef tea, tobacco, &c., were continually being forwarded to us from different parts of Canada, as well as from England, Scotland and Germany. Of the donors many were known to us, yet not a few were total strangers, who desired, as they expressed it, to show their appreciation of Canada's action in sending troops to the assistance of the mother country.

All the money received was expended for the benefit of officers and men, and I attach, as appendix "A 10," an abstract of the cash statement, rendered by me to the donors on my return to Canada.

Of the articles sent, many, I regret to say, failed to reach us, through the exigencies of war, but those that fortunately came into our hands, were at once distributed, gratefully received, and fully appreciated.

I attach as appendix "A 11," a list of the donors, whose consignments I was apprised of as having been despatched to us.

POSTAL AND TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNICATION.

Considerable difficulty and inconvenience was experienced throughout the campaign in connection with the postal and telegraphic services, but to anyone on the spot with a knowledge of the difficulties that arose in keeping open the long lines of communication, surprise at the inefficiency of these services does not present itself.

One heard of confusion in the general post office at Cape Town, but such did not in any way affect Canadians, as owing to the very efficient staff sent to South Africa by the Post Office Department of Canada under Capt. Ecclestone, all mail matter for the Royal Canadian Regiment was at once got together at Cape Town by this staff, sorted into companies, and sent up the country specially labelled, and rendered easy of distribution.

Efficient clerks from this same staff were located at Bloemfontein, Pretoria, and other points, having local knowledge of the distribution of the battalion, and thus ensuring as early and accurate delivery as was possible.

BASE STOREHOUSE.

The want of a proper storehouse at the base was very much felt, and though late in the campaign, we were enabled to arrange for such at Bloemfontein and Cape Town, yet it was a case of "shutting the door after the steed was stolen," as by that time both officers and men had lost many articles of value from the places named.

On landing at Cape Town, the battalion had to leave the second day following its arrival, and therefore the officers' baggage, and valises and kit-bags of N.C.O.'s and men, which were ordered to be left there, had to be placed in one large storehouse with those of other corps, and to which almost indiscriminate admission appears to have been given with the result already stated.

STAFF EMPLOY OF OFFICERS.

It may be interesting to record in connection with the services of the battalion in South Africa, the fact that many of its officers were selected for staff employment, which is evidence of the intelligence and capability possessed by them. Below I submit a tabulated list of those obtaining such appointments :—

Lt.-Col. Lawrence Buchan Commandant of Convalescents, at Elandsfontein for three months, from August 1 to October 31.

COMMISSIONS IN IMPERIAL ARMY.

During the month of April, 1900, it was notified through Army Orders that a number of Commissions in the Imperial Army would be granted to officers, N. C. officers and men of Colonial Corps, upon the recommendation of Field Marshal Lord Roberts, and officers commanding were asked to forward applications for such, at once.

Many applications were made from the Royal Canadians, some of which were ultimately withdrawn, but the following have been actually notified to me as appointed, with instructions to join the corps named.

There are I believe, one or two others, but official notice of their appointment never reached me.

All have been called upon for extraordinary exertion, and have had to undergo forced marches, short rations, great wettings, lack of water and sleep, as well as severe and trying fighting, concluding with an extremely arduous flank march yesterday of some twenty miles.

"It will be gratifying to them to know that yesterday's march turned the Boer positions, enables the Highland Brigade to advance direct on the enemy's trenches without opposition, and further caused the retirement of a large force of mounted men and guns from the Black Kopje which force had held the Mounted Infantry at bay on the left flank of the Brigade in check throughout the morning.

"It will be gratifying to all to know that, thanks to the untiring energy shown by every one, the 19th Brigade has established a high name for itself, which the Major General feels sure, all will do their utmost to maintain.

Wish them from me great good luck, and tell them I feel any credit I may have gained in this war, I shall owe largely to the splendid way the Royal Canadians served me.

From F. M. Lord Roberts, C. in C., Johannesburg.

I wish I could be in London to join you in the warm welcome I am sure the regiment will receive from the grateful English nation."

VISIT TO ENGLAND.

On Nov. 29 we reached Southampton at 9.30 a.m., some 24 hours later than expected. At 11.30 a.m. the same day the battalion disembarked, and was met by Maj.-Gen. Stewart, commanding the southern district, who welcomed us in a very spirited and stirring speech, after which we entrained at the dock, and were steaming out of the station for London by noon. A quick run of two hours brought us to the Addison Road Station, Kensington at 2 p.m., and we found there waiting us His Grace the Duke of Abercorn, and Earl Grey, chairman and vice-chairman respectively of the Colonial Entertainment Committee, Lord Onslow, Under Secretary of State for the Colonies; Lord Strathcona, High Commissioner for Canada; J. G. Colmer, Esq., C. M. G., Secretary to High Commissioner for Canada; Colonel Lake, late Quarter Master General, Canada, Major General Trotter, commanding Home district, and many others who extended to us the most kindly and hearty welcome. His Grace then informed me that we were to be the guests of the Colonial Troops Entertainment Committee, the non-commissioned officers and men being provided for at the Kensington Barracks, which had been vacated for the time by the Coldstream Guards, and the officers at the Royal Palace Hotel, Kensington, closely adjoining. He also gave me a schedule of the proposed inspections and entertainments, which had been arranged for the ten days of our stay in London, a copy of which I beg to attach. The battalion having detrained, marched to the Kensington Barracks, accompanied by an escort of the Royal Horse Guards, and headed by the band of the Coldstream Guards. The streets through which we passed were packed with people, who cheered us in the most enthusiastic manner.

Arriving at the barracks, Major General Trotter officially welcomed us to his command, and referred in the kindest terms to the services of the regiment.

The men were then told off to their rooms, and we found that every care had been taken for our comfort, even to the provision of a staff of cooks and waiters, etc., leaving us with no duties to perform, save that of a small regimental guard. That evening, the non-commissioned officers and men were kept in barracks, in order that they might clean their things ready for next day's parade, of which I had been given notice.

A decided change in the weather from cloud and rain to a bright sun took place on Friday, the 30th November, when the battalion paraded at 9.30 a.m., and marched to Addison Road Station, where it entrained for Windsor, arriving there at 11 a.m We were met by the Mayor and corporation of the borough at the station, and heartily welcomed. Headed by the band of the Grenadier Guards, we marched to Windsor Castle, amid the hearty cheers of the citizens, and at 11.45 a.m. we received Her Majesty in the quadrangle with a royal salute. I was then sent for by Her Majesty, who in a few words expressed her pleasure at seeing us, and asked most kindly after the sick and wounded. The battalion then marched past in fours, and formed quarter column in front of the royal carriage with the officers in review order. Her Majesty then spoke to the battalion, expressing her thanks for their services in South Africa, and regret for the losses sustained in that campaign. I replied in a few words expressive of our delight at being permitted to serve the Empire in such a way, and then called for "three cheers" for Her Majesty the Queen, which you can easily imagine were given in the most hearty and enthusiastic manner possible. I then took the opportunity, at Her Majesty's request, of presenting the officers of the battalion and Private Armstrong, Royal Canadian Dragoons, who had lost his leg in action, and who had accompanied us to Windsor. Her Majesty then drove to the entrance gate of the quadrangle, and witnessed the battalion again march past in fours, on their way to the Riding School, where arms were piled. All ranks were then taken through the State apartments by Lord Edward Clinton, Comptroller of the Household, and Lieutenant-Colonel Legge, the Equerry in Waiting. A photograph was then taken of the officers and men on the east terrace. At 1.30 the non-commissioned officers and men were given dinner in the Riding School, while the officers were entertained to luncheon in the Castle, at which Lord Edward Clinton, Lady Downe, lady-in-waiting, Lieutenant-Colonel Legge and several ladies of the household were present. I should also mention that Her Majesty gave permission for us to visit the Mausoleum at Frogmore, but unfortunately time did not admit of our taking advantage of this, which was a special privilege. At 3 p.m. the Guards band played the battalion to the station through even more enthusiastic crowds of people than had received us, and we returned by train to London, and marched into the barracks. In the evening brakes were provided, which took officers and men to and from various theatres, and myself, with Lieutenant Colonel Buchan and Captain Macdonell, Acting Adjutant, had the honour of dining with Her Majesty at Windsor Castle.

I do not propose to give in detail our movements each day during the remainder of our visit to England, as you will find that specified in my diary, and the programme which accompanies this report, but will simply refer to a few of the more important events.

On Saturday, December 1, amongst the many other things provided for us was an official reception by the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of London at the Guild-Hall in state, when the former delivered an address to us embodying his pleasure, as Chief Magistrate of the city, in giving us welcome, and referring at length to our services in conjunction with the other colonies during the late campaign. To this I replied, and the proceedings ended.

On Sunday, December 4, the battalion was taken to the morning service at Westminster Abbey, where Canon Wilberforce preached a most eloquent and patriotic sermon in connection with the services rendered by the colonies in South Africa.

The special feature on Monday, December 3, was the inspection of the battalion by H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, at Albany Street Barracks, in conjunction with the service squadrons of the Household Cavalry. At this inspection were present H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, their R. H. the Duke and Duchess of York, H. R. H. Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, H. R. H. the Duke of Cambridge, Field Marshal Lord Wolseley, General Sir Evelyn Wood, General Lord Chelmsford, the Secretary of State for War, General Sir Richard Harrison, and many other prominent people. His Royal Highness first inspected the Household Cavalry, and then the Royal Canadian Regiment. The latter he addressed after his inspection in a most kind and hearty manner, giving them a cordial welcome to England, and expressing the appreciation of the nation with their services. Previous to the inspection, the officers of the corps were presented to His Royal Highness, and had luncheon with him at the invitation of Lt.-Col. Sir A. Neeld, and officers of the 2nd Life Guards.

On Tuesday, December 5, the battalion went to Portsmouth under Lieut.-Col. Buchan, and there received a most hearty welcome from the Mayor and corporation of that place, as well as by Admiral Sir A. Hotham, K.C.B., commanding the station, and many officers of the Royal Navy.

A tour was made through the dockyard, and over one of each of the several classes of war vessels lying in the harbour. A visit was also made to the Whale Island, where the sailors and marines there quartered, turned out for inspection, and cheered us enthusiastically.

On Wednesday, the 6th, the Houses of the Parliament were visited, and addresses of welcome and appreciation made by the Marquis of Lansdowne, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, formerly Governor General of Canada; the Earl of Aberdeen, also a former Governor General; the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, and Colonel Sir Howard Vincent, M.P., and to which I felt it incumbent to make short replies. Officers and men were conducted through both Houses. In the House of Peers, Lord Lansdowne, acting as guide, while in the Commons, Mr. Chamberlain performed a similar duty.

Proceeding from the Houses of Parliament, the officers and men were taken to Kensington Palace, and there entertained by Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise and the Duke of Argyll, to luncheon. All sat down to table in the Banqueting Hall of this old palace, and after luncheon the Duke of Argyll addressed the battalion, expressing the delight of Her Royal Highness and himself at seeing the officers and men present. He also referred with great pleasure to his former connections with Canada. I made a short reply, and called for "three cheers" for our hosts, which were loyally given. The Duke expressing his desire to hear a Canadian song, Sergeant McHarg of "A" Company sang "The Land of the Maple," in capital form, the remainder of us giving a hearty chorus. We were then taken over the palace, Her Royal Highness taking great pains in showing us its many objects of interest. In the evening the officers were entertained at dinner by the Canada Club, which was presided over by Lord Strathcona. This dinner was a most pleasant one, being attended by most of the Canadians in London, and many others having connection with Canada. Lord Strathcona, after dinner, proposed the health of the Royal Canadian Regiment in a most full and comprehensive manner; this was most enthusiastically toasted, and I replied.

On Thursday a few went to Brighton on invitation, and Friday, the 7th, a large proportion of officers and men were taken to Woolwich, and there shown over the Arsenal. The band of the Royal Artillery heading the battalion in its march to and from that place. Luncheon was served to those taking advantage of the trip. In the evening a dinner was given to officers and men by the Mayor and Corporation of the Borough of Kensington in its town hall, after which followed a most enjoyable "sing-song." The special feature of this entertainment was the interest shown in the battalion, not only by our hosts, but also by the Major-General Trotter, and the officers of the first Grenadier Guards who attended it in a body.

On Saturday, 8th inst., two very interesting and pleasant functions fell to our lot. The first an "At Home" given by Lord and Lady Strathcona at the Imperial Institute, and to which the officers and men of the battalion were invited, together with Canadians from all parts of the Kingdom. Fully a thousand people were present, and the afternoon was spent most pleasantly amongst our own particular people. Our astonishment was great in finding so many Canadians present, many of whom were known to us, either in person or by name, while our pleasure was increased by learning of the satisfaction with which they, as Canadians, one and all, looked upon the services that we have been able to render the Empire in South Africa. Lord Strathcona, himself, addressed those present, expressing his delight at being able to bring about such a happy re-union, to which I replied.

The second—a dinner given to the officers by the Earl and Countess of Aberdeen, at which nothing could exceed the kindness and attention of our hosts on this occasion.

On Sunday, the 9th, the officers and a number of the men were taken to St. Paul's Cathedral, after which officers and men paraded at the barracks, at the request of the Earl and Countess of Aberdeen in order that they might personally see and speak to us. Lord Aberdeen expressed his great delight with the course taken by Canada in the South African war, and his appreciation of the services rendered by the corps. He also referred to his happy period of administration in Canada, and fervently wished us "God speed," and a happy return to that country.

On Monday, 10th, the battalion paraded at 7 a.m., marched to the Addison Road Station and entrained for Liverpool, leaving at 8.10 a.m. Lord Strathcona, Mr. Colmer and many other Canadians seeing us off. Having many matters to attend to in connection with the pay, clothing, etc., of the men, I was unable to leave London with the battalion, which went under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Buchan. That officer informs me that the reception received in the streets of Liverpool was simply marvellous in its enthusiasm and expression of good feeling. The Court of Assize adjourned in order to welcome the battalion as it passed St. George's Hall. The Lord Mayor and Aldermen officially received it at the town hall. It was entertained at a banquet at which the Lord Mayor presided at the city hall, and the climax was reached in the "Exchange," where the members of which seemed to have gone wild with enthusiasm.

The steamer "Lake Champlain," having arrived late from Canada was not ready to receive the battalion, and consequently it was embarked on "The Ems," another vessel of the same line for the night and following day.

Leaving London on the 11th, I arrived at Liverpool early on the morning of the 12th, and finding the "Lake Champlain" now ready, the battalion was transferred to her from the "Ems" at 10 a.m. The Lord Mayor and Lord Bishop of Liverpool, with numbers of our friends came down to the steamer at 11 a.m., when the two former addressed the officers and men, expressive of their pleasure at having been able to demonstrate the feeling of the city of Liverpool towards Canada and Canadians, and wishing them a safe and happy return to their homes. Cheers were given by us for all our friends in Liverpool, and at 12 noon the steamer left the landing stage. Thousands of people filled the stages and lined the docks, cheering vociferously as the steamer moved down the river.

In connection with our visit to England, I should like to add a few more words. First, to enlarge upon the extreme kindness, in fact, I might say, heartfelt gratitude and pleasure exhibited by all people in the United Kingdom, with whom we came in contact. Words cannot express the kindness and enthusiasm with which we were everywhere received. Her Majesty, and the members of the Royal Family were profuse in their acknowledgments of the stand taken by Canada in support of the Empire, while the President and members of the 'Colonial Troops Entertainment Committee,' the Lord Mayors of London and Liverpool, the Mayors of Kensington, Portsmouth and Brighton, with their respective Corporations, together with all the individuals we met, were lavish in their desire to do us honour, and make our visit pleasant and profitable.

Similar were the efforts of the Parliamentary and Military Authorities, the Duke of Argyll, the Marquis of Lansdowne and the Earl and Countess of Aberdeen. The Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, M.P., Earl Grey, Lord Onslow, Lord Tweedmouth, Col. Sir Howard Vincent, M.P., Gilbert Parker, Esq., M.P., Lt.-Col. Lee, M.P., Col. Mackinnon, late Grenadier Guards, and C.I.V.; while the High Commissioner for Canada, Lord Strathcona, the Secretary, Mr. Colmer, Mr. Duff-Miller, Agent-General for New Brunswick, and hosts of other Canadian friends were in constant association with us in their endeavour to supply our wants, and assist in our enjoyment.

Secondly, I should like to bear testimony to the conduct of the Officers, N.C.O.'s. and men of the Battalion, upon which must have been the most trying moment of their lives. Amid the hundreds of temptations that were thrust upon us by our enthusiastically kind friends, it became a most difficult matter to refuse without offence the invitations to conviviality, which naturally seemed a part of such demonstrations. I am glad to record, however, that with one or two exceptions, all ranks had the strength of mind to resist - remembering that they were representatives of Canada, and as such, had a reputation at stake. The consensus of opinion many times expressed to me by those who saw a great deal of us, was that the appearance and behaviour of all ranks in public, was most creditable.

VOYAGE TO CANADA.

The SS. Lake Champlain, of the Beaver line, left Liverpool at noon of the 12th December, and soon after officers and men had settled into their quarters. These were found to be most comfortable, the officers having first class, and the N. C. O.'s and men second class accommodation, while in the matter of food nothing was left to be desired. The passage out was rather slow, owing to head winds and a heavy sea, and it was not till the morning of the 23rd that we reached Halifax.

The N. C. O.'s and men were at once paid off, received their discharges, and entrained for their respective homes.

CONCLUDING REMARKS.

In closing this report, I should like to refer briefly to two more subjects, viz:—1st Our relations with other corps. 2nd. The services of officers, N. C. officers and men.

During our many months of service we naturally came into contact, and often close relations, with many corps, both of the regular army, and Colonial units like ourselves, and such associations, I am glad to say, were always of the most pleasant description.

Of our comrades in the 19th brigade every one of us retain the most affectionate remembrance, and it is a curious fact that the first three battalions that we met during our initial week at the front were destined to become closely and intimately connected with us for months afterwards.

On reaching DeAar, on December 3, we there found the Cornwalls, who at once placed their transport at our disposal, and assisted us to make our first camp.

At Orange River, a few days afterwards, we came upon the Shropshires, who were equally kind to us during our stay there, and very soon we met the Gordons, with whom a friendship began that is not likely ever to be forgotten.

For months the Gordons and Royal Canadians lay night after night in adjoining bivouacs, and day after day trudged over the veldt next one another, the result of which was a mutual bond of confidence and sympathy.

In my special reports of battles I have referred by name to officers, N. C. O.'s and men, who at the time came prominently under my own notice, or were specially reported to me for conspicuous conduct, but it must not be thought that such only rendered good and gallant service to the battalion or to the Empire. These were only the lucky ones who happened to be in prominent places, while hundreds of others, not so fortunate, did their duty, and often more, silently and quietly, but none the less efficiently and courageously. Numberless cases of this description are personally known to me, such as the indomitable pluck of Lieut. Mason, who, still suffering from a severe wound, forced his way to the front and took part in the battalion's last series of marches; Lieut. Lafferty, in the dull drudgery of transport officer, who, through his untiring energy and intelligence, coupled with the good care of his mules, always had his wagons into bivouac before any others; and No. 7552, Private R. R. Thompson, whose bravery on February 18 and 27, earned him the distinction of receiving one of the four Queen's scarfs, presented by Her Majesty to Colonial corps.

To add more would entail a list so long as to render the distinction commonplace, so I refrain, yet desire to emphasize in the strongest possible manner, the courage, enthusiasm and endurance displayed by those under my command throughout the campaign, feeling assured that my humble opinion will be fully endorsed by all under whom, or with whom, the Second Royal Canadian Regiment served in South Africa.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

W. D. OTTER, Colonel,

Late Commanding 2nd Royal Canadian Regiment.

APPENDIX A 1.

From the Officer commanding the 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, to the Chief Staff Officer of Militia, Canada.

PAARDEBERG DRIFT, February 26, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to report upon the part taken by the battalion under my command in the engagement at Paardeberg on the 18th inst.

The battalion arrived near Paardeberg drift with the 19th brigade at 6 a.m. of the 18th inst., having formed the rear guard to the brigade in its march during the night from Klip drift, a distance of 22 miles.

Within half an hour of the arrival of the battalion orders were received to be ready to parade at 7 a.m., and at 7.20 am. the battalion moved out to support the artillery, about a mile away. The men in the meantime had had a biscuit and a cup of tea. Hardly had the battalion reached the place designated than it was ordered to move to the drift and cross the river. This was done, and the crossing began at about 8.30 a.m. The current ran 9 miles an hour, while the water was sufficiently deep to reach up to the men's arm-pits. Two crossings were used about 50 yards apart, over one of which a rope stretched, by which the men passed across by holding on to it, and at the other the men passed over in fours with linked arms. The companies as they crossed were pushed forward, and at 10 a.m., 'A' and 'C' Cos., under Captains Arnold and Barker, were in the firing line at about 1800 yards from the enemy, who occupied the woods along the near edge of the river, but were totally hidden from view. They also occupied a series of dongas enfilading our left flank, but this was not discovered until the afternoon, when they disclosed themselves, although they were quietly 'sniping' from that direction all day. 'D' and 'E' Companies, under Captains Rogers and Fraser, formed the support, while as 'B' 'F' 'G' and 'H,' commanded respectively by Lt. Ross, Capt. Peltier, Lt. Macdonell and Capt. Stairs, came up, they formed the reserve.

The remainder of the brigade was disposed of as under: the Duke of Cornwalls L. I. on our right, but over the river; the Shropshires and Gordons on our left in the order named; but on the other side of the hill, with a battery of artillery behind them. The battalion, however, was practically alone, and during the whole day received no orders or instructions from anyone until about 4 p.m. as noted later on. In addition to the 19th Brigade, the 3rd (Highland) Brigade was engaged on the south side of the river, and with it were the Cornwalls up to about 2 p.m.

Firing began about 9.30 a.m. from the enemy's left at very long ranges, and continued along their front towards the centre. The advance of the battalion took place over perfectly open ground, somewhat undulating, and with no cover, save the inequalities of the ground and a few ant hills.

The firing line attained a position from the enemy, varying from 400 yards on the right to 800 yards on the left, where it remained until late in the afternoon. After the establishment of the firing line, the enemy's fire was for some time very severe, and Capt. Arnold, who had been doing most excellent service, was mortally wounded, and many others hit.

During this time, three or four men in reserve ('H' Company) were wounded at a distance of over sixteen hundred yards (1,600.) At noon 'D' Company reinforced the firing line, and shortly afterwards 'E' and part of 'B' Company also reinforced, the remainder of 'B'., 'F' and 'G' Companies becoming supports with 'H' still in reserve.

Only one Maxim gun could be crossed, and that was soon got into position by Capt. Bell on the rising ground to the left at a distance of some 1,000 yards, where it did most excellent service during the day, being in a position to keep down the fire of the enemy, who occupied the dongas on our left. A battery of field artillery occupied the hill on our left rear, and shelled the enemy's line at intervals during the day. The fire discipline of the several companies engaged was excellent, and perfect coolness as well as accurate shooting was maintained.

Throughout the day, the fire was maintained, at times being comparatively slack and then severe, the enemy evidently had the ranges marked, as their fire at certain prominent places was so accurate as to render them almost untenable by us. Interruption to our fire was occasioned several times during the day by the cry from beyond the right of our line to 'stop firing from the left,' as men in the part were being hit by the fire from our left. The fire complained of was, I am satisfied, from the dongas occupied by the enemy on our left, and not from our own men.

At about 4 p.m., three companies of the Duke of Cornwall's L I. under Lt. Col. Aldworth came up, and this officer informed me that 'he had been sent to finish this business, and proposed doing so with the bayonet.' He then asked for information respecting our own position, and that of the enemy, which I gave him.

One company of the Cornwalls was at once sent into the firing line, followed in twenty minutes by the other two. These reinforcements being received by a very heavy fire from the whole length of the enemy's front.

At 5 p.m., Lt.-Col. Aldworth notified me that a general advance would take place, and at about 5.15 p.m. the whole line, with the exception of part of 'G' and 'H' Companies, which were held in reserve, went forward with a rush. The fire of the enemy became intense, and after an advance of about 200 yards, effectually stopped our men, and no further progress could be made. The loss to both the corps taking part in the charge was very severe., Lt. Col. Aldworth and his Adjutant being killed, while Lieut. Mason of ours was wounded severely.

The position gained was, however, held, and a continuous heavy fire maintained until darkness set in about 7 p.m., when I gave the order to collect the dead and wounded and withdraw to the bivouac at the drift. The enemy also withdrew from their position at the same time to the Boer laager, some two miles up the river, leaving a few men in the dongas on our left, who continued 'sniping' our collecting parties until about 10 p.m. Many instances of individual bravery were displayed during the day, as for example the case of No. 8110, Pt. Kennedy, who led one of the ammunition mules right up to the firing line where it was instantly killed. The company stretcher bearers exhibited great pluck, and five of them were among the wounded; three were wounded in carrying Capt. Arnold from the firing line, the stretcher upon which he was, being made a special object of attention by the Boer marksmen. In connection with this incident, I must note the courage displayed by Surg. Capt. Fiset, who when the stretcher upon which Capt. Arnold was being brought to the rear was stopped a short distance from the firing line by the wounding of one of the bearers, went forward and attended to Capt. Arnold, and subsequently assisted as a bearer in bringing him to the rear. Capt. Fiset also attended to many of the wounded under fire during the day.

Lt. Col. Buchan was in charge of the firing line, which he directed, and controlled in the coolest and most effective manner, while my Acting Adjutant, Lt. Ogilvy, rendered excellent service in carrying my orders about the field. The following N.C.O.'s. and men distinguished themselves during the day, viz.:—

No. 6559—Sgt. F. W. Utton.
No. 7017—Pte. H. Andrews.
No. 7040—Pte. J. H. Dickson.
No. 7043—Pte. C. W. Duncafe.
No. 7360—Pte. W. L. McGivern.
No. 7376—Pte. F. Page.
No. 7552—Pte. R. R. Thompson.
No. 7806—Pte. J. Curphey.

The collection of the dead and wounded of both our own battalion, and those of the Duke of Cornwall's L. I., was made by parties of the Royal Canadians and continued all night. The duty was a most onerous one, and too much credit cannot be given to those who were engaged in it By 7 a.m. of the 19th inst., all the dead of the Battalion were buried, beside many of those of the D. C. L. I., and the wounded sent to the rear. I must here place on record the great services rendered by the R. C. Chaplain of the Battalion, the Rev. Father O'Leary, who was present in the field all day and towards the end in the firing line, while during the night he was prominent in the search for the wounded, as well as officiating in the burial of the dead. Several of the officers accompanied these parties up to midnight while, No. 685 Q. M. Sergt. E. Reading, No. 7304 Sergt. J. H. Ramage, No. 7302 Sergt. H. Middleton, and No. 7253 Pte R. D. Whigham, were out all night on this duty.

Another incident of coolness and pluck was that of No. 7347 Pte. J. L. Hornibrook, who at daylight in the morning of the 19th inst. was down into the extreme right of the lines occupied by the enemy the previous day. He was unarmed, and came suddenly upon an armed Boer, looking for a stray horse. With great presence of mind, Hornibrook pretended to be armed with a revolver, and called upon imaginary assistance, at the same time demanding the man's surrender. The Boer at once submitted, and on being brought in proved to be one of General Cronje's Adjutants, and a most important officer.

I beg to attach a sketch of the ground occupied during the action.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

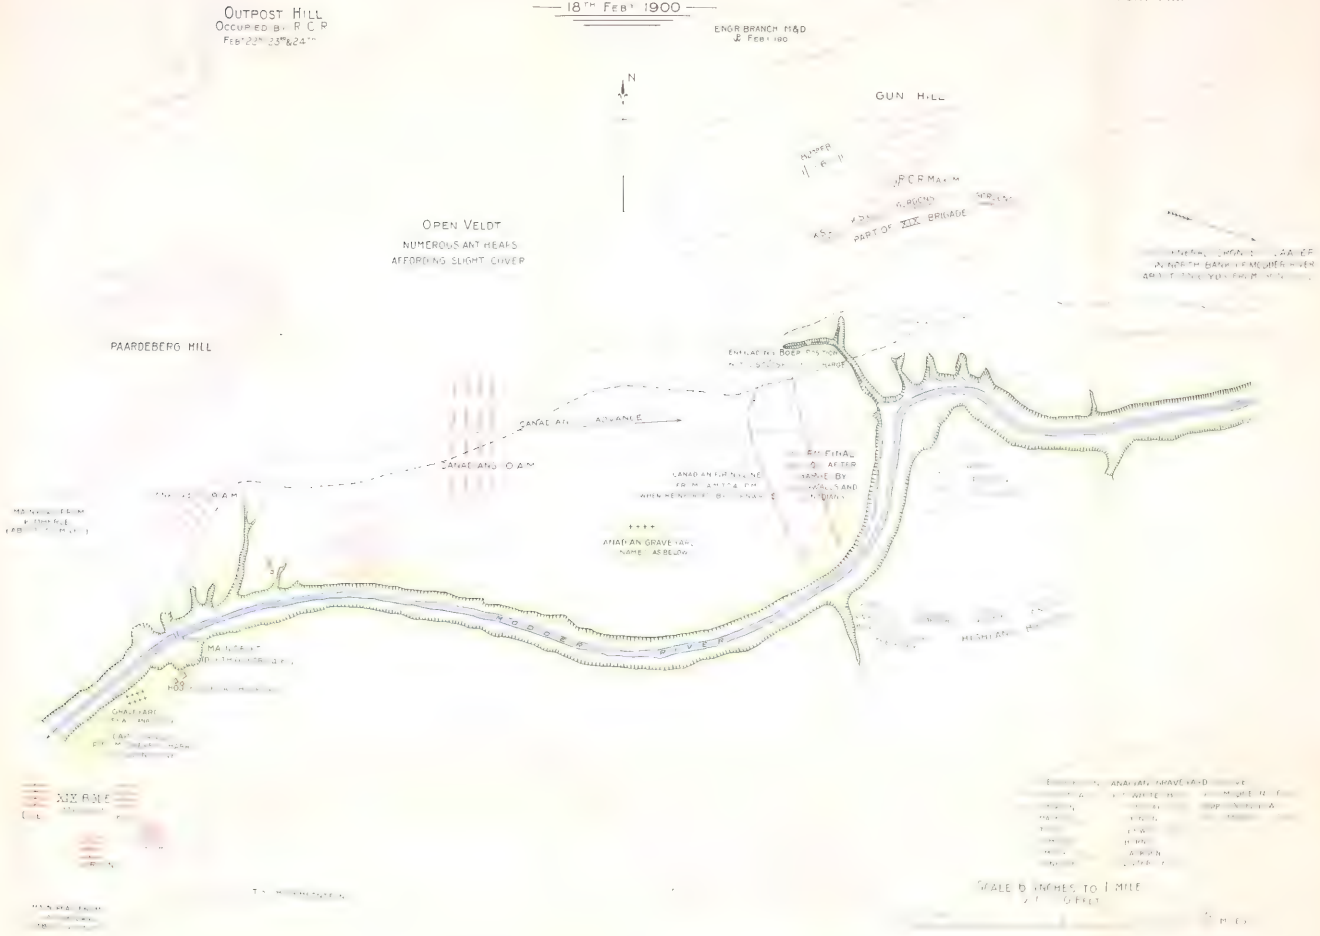
APPENDIX TO COL OTTER'S REPORT A.I.



APPENDIX A 2.

From the Officer Commanding 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, to the Chief Staff Officer of Militia, Ottawa, Canada.

PAARDEBERG, February 27, 1900.

SIR, —I have the honour to report upon the operations upon which the battalion under my command was engaged on the 20th inst., on which occasion four men of the corps were wounded.

Following the retirement of the enemy from the position, which he withdrew from on the evening of the 18th inst., the battalion was at 6 A.M. of the 20th inst. detached from the outpost line, and advanced to within 1,000 yards of the trenches in front of the Boer laager, the Shropshire Light Infantry being on our right, the Gordon Highlanders on our left.

The ground occupied by the battalion was quite open, and slightly rolling, but fairly covered with ant hills.

The men were served with tea and biscuits about 10 A.M.; the cook wagon and water cart being brought up to within 200 yards in rear of reserve.

An intermittent rifle fire was kept up all day until about 4 p m., when that of the enemy increased, and their celebrated Vickers-Maxim gun (Pom-pom) was turned upon us no less than five different times, but fortunately without loss to us. The moral effect of the gun, however, is very great and infinitely more disastrous in that direction than any other arm we have experienced.

The wounds received were entirely among men in the reserve, and from long range rifle fire—about 1,700 yards.

The day was a trying one, being very hot, while owing to the enemy's fire it was almost impossible to get water forward to the men. It was the attempt to bring the water cart forward that first brought the 'pom-pom' to bear upon us.

At 6 p.m. the battalion was withdrawn to its bivouac thoroughly done out. The position occupied I have denoted on the sketch accompanying this report, and a list of the wounded included in the general list.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

W. D. OTTER, Lt.-Col.,

Commanding 2nd. Batt., Royal Canadian Regiment.

APPENDIX A 3.

From the Officer Commanding 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, to the Chief Staff Officer of Militia, Ottawa, Canada.

OSSFONTEIN, S. A., March 2, 1900.

SIR.—I have the honour to report on the action of the 27th ult., in which the battalion, under my command, was engaged.

In accordance with instructions received from the General Officer Commanding the 19th Brigade, 9th Division, on the previous evening, the following disposition of the battalion was made by 10 p.m. of the 26th inst.

In the main trench running north and south from the river, and beginning on the left, were placed "C," "D," "E," "F," "G," and "H" Companies, under the following officers, viz.:—Capt. Barker, Capt. Rogers, Capt. Fraser, Lt. LeDuc, Lt. Macdonnell, and Capt. Stairs, respectively; while on the extreme right was a party of 30 Engineers. This trench was about 350 yards long, the right of it resting within 25 yards of the river, and 550 yards from the nearest Boer trench. The force placed in this trench numbered 500 officers and men of the battalion: "A" Company, under Lieut. Blanchard, remained on the south side of the river, where it had been detailed for special duty on the morning of the 26th and was posted just opposite the line of the main trench continued southwards, while "B" Company, under Lieut Ross, and a few details formed a reserve at the bivouac, some 300 yards to the rear, and the wagons were fully 1000 yds. to the rear again.

The continuation of the main trench from where it turned to the north-east was occupied by 200 of the Gordon Highlanders, and about 1500 yds on our left was the Shropshire Light Infantry.

The plan of attack was, that our six companies in the main trench should advance on the Boer trenches at 2 a.m.; the front rank of each company to move with fixed bayonets, and orders not to fire until fired upon by the enemy, while the rear rank carried shovels and picks with which to entrench. When the advance could go no further, the engineers on the right were to give a base and trench from the cover of the wood on the river.

At 2.15 a.m. the six companies with the engineers moved forward; a distance of 15 paces being placed between the ranks, and an interval of one pace between men.

The Brigadier was on the right, Lt.-Col. Buchan and Major Pelletier in charge of the attacking line, the former on the left, the latter on the right: the O.C. in rear of the attack on the left.

The line advanced without interruption for about 450 yards, when it was met by a terrific fire from the enemy. The premature discharge of a couple of shots just before the general fusiliade served as a warning to many of our men, who instantly threw themselves on the ground, but the effect of the fire was disastrous to us; 'H' company being in the wood on the river bank did not suffer, but 'G' and 'F' companies, being in the open, lost heavily, the former having 4 killed and 12 wounded, the latter 2 killed and 9 wounded. 'G' company was within 65 yards (actual measurement) of the advanced trench of the enemy when fire was opened on them. The companies on the left, 'E,' 'D' and 'C' being from 75 to 100 yards distant from a subsidiary trench in prolongation of the enemy's line.

On receiving the enemy's fire the line at once laid down and returned it, while the rear rank generally began to entrench; the time was about 3 a.m.

The trench on the right, begun by the party of the R.E., was 100 yards from the enemy's trench, and covered by 'G' and 'H' companies, made rapid progress, but those b.gun by the other companies did not advance very rapidly, and after the battalion had been for some minutes under fire, someone unknown, called in an authorative tone, 'to retire and bring back your wounded,' in consequence of which the companies on the left failed to establish themselves in the new trenches, and retired to the main trench they had recently occupied, leaving 'G' and 'H' holding the ground on the right, Lt.-Col. Buchan being the last to retire, which he did by the right.

Daylight found "G" and "H" Companies well entrenched, with the R. E. still pushing the work on.

Firing continued on the right until about 5.15 a.m., when the enemy in their advanced trench made proposals to surrender. Our men being doubtful of the genuineness of the proposition, continued their work and firing for nearly an hour. At about 6 a.m. one of the enemy advanced with a white flag, when firing ceased, and the enemy began to come in by batches to the number of 200.

General Sir Hy. Colville, commanding the division, had come up about 6.15 and directed the disposal of the prisoners, sending forward an officer into the nearest part of the Boer laager to make terms of surrender, the result of which was the unconditional capitulation of General Cronje and his whole force, numbering upwards of 4,000.

Capt. Stairs and Lieut Macdonell, with their companies, deserve the greatest credit for their pertinacity in holding on as they did, the result of which undoubtedly had a material effect in hastening the final result achieved.

The supporting companies of the Gordon Highlanders were not engaged, although the trench which protected them was subjected to a fairly heavy fire from the enemy.

The battalion of the Shropshire Light Infantry, on our left, fired volleys at long ranges for some time after our attack developed, and materially assisted us.

All the wounded were brought in before daylight and sent back to the collecting station by our men, and the Bearers of the N. S. W. Company, and Naval Brigade (H. M. S. Barrossa), who rendered us every assistance possible in the arduous service.

The dead were buried close to where they fell at 7 a.m. by the Rev. Father O'Leary, R. C. chaplain to the battalion.

That the duty entailed on the Royal Canadian Regiment was most difficult and dangerous no one will deny, and though the advance was not so successful at all points as was hoped for, yet the final result was a complete success, and credit can fairly be claimed by the battalion for such, as it was practically acting alone.

I attach a sketch of the positions occupied, and a list of those killed and wounded in the day's operations. The night was starlight, with the moon in the last quarter at 4 a.m.

The various actions beginning on 18th, and concluding on 27th February have been denominated Paardeberg.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

W. D. OTTER, Lt.-Col.

Commanding 2nd Battalion Royal Canadian Regiment.

From the Officer Commanding 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, to Chief Staff Officer, Ottawa, Canada.

BLOEMFONTEIN, April, 28, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to report upon the action at Israels Poort on Wednesday, April 25, in which the battalion took part, in conjunction with a brigade of mounted infantry and the 19th brigade, under Gen. Smith-Dorrien, the whole force being under the immediate command of Gen. Ian Hamilton.

Leaving Momema Kopje, which is two miles to the east of the Bloemfontein waterworks, on the Modder River, at 9 a.m., of the 25th, the battalion formed the advance guard to the 19th brigade. After moving about six miles the progress of the infantry was stopped for over two hours, while the mounted infantry and artillery reconnoitered and shelled several kopjes on our front and flanks occupied by the enemy. At about 2:30 p.m. instructions were given me for the battalion to move forward, with an extended front of about 1,200 yards, and obtain possession, if possible, of a small kopje and the lower slopes of two others on either side of it, which lay immediately to our front, while the mounted infantry and the remainder of the 19th brigade were to make a detour to our left and threaten the right flank of the enemy, who it was found were occupying all the kopjes in the neighbourhood.

Forming the battalion into four double companies in extended order, with intervals of twelve paces, and 159 yards distance between double companies, the advance was made at 3 p.m.

2nd	"	E Co., Capt. Fraser	"	F Co., Lieut. LeDuc.
3rd	"	C Co., Capt. Barker	"	D Co., Capt. Rogers
4th	"	D Co., Capt. Burstall	"	A Co., Lieut. Blanchard.

The first line was in charge of Major Pelletier, I being with him ; the 3rd and 4th lines under supervision of Lt.-Col. Buchan.

After advancing about a mile, and just as we reached a wire fence extending across our front, about 600 yards from the centre kopje, a hot fire was opened upon us, and everyone took the best cover available at hand. A ditch running near to the fence for a short distance gave good cover to a part of the first line, while the rest of it was on the open veldt.

In directing the disposition of the first line I was obliged to remain standing for a few seconds, and immediately on sitting down I was struck with a bullet on the right side of my chin, which also passed through the right side of my neck, causing a slight flesh wound, while another passed through the badge on my right shoulder, but the wound was not sufficiently severe to prevent my remaining in command for the rest of the day.

I regret to announce three other casualties, which occurred about the same time, of a more serious nature, viz :—

No. 8,074, Private J. Defoe, H. Co., killed, being shot through the head.

No. 7,835, Private Culver, (enlisted as 'Raymond,' as already reported) F. Co., wounded severely in the leg.

No. 7,454, Lance-Corp. Burns, D. Co., wounded slightly in the arm.

All of which casualties I reported by cable on my arrival here yesterday.

For three quarters of an hour the battalion lay thus, under fire, to which its first line kept up a well controlled response. Finding the enemy's fire abating, and hearing the remainder of the brigade engaged on our left, I determined to advance, so reinforcing the first line, we moved forward, under a spluttering and weak attempt of the enemy to check us and which soon ceased, until we occupied the ground originally designated, and where the battalion ultimately went into bivouac for the night.

In connection with this small engagement, which did not occupy more than three hours from first to last, I am glad to report the excellent conduct of all ranks, and would specially beg to bring before your notice, the great assistance rendered me by Lieut. J. H. C. Ogilvy, my acting adjutant, whose energy and coolness was most conspicuous.

I am also glad to report that during the evening Major General Smith-Dorrien came to our bivouac, and expressed his entire approval and great satisfaction with the manner in which his instructions had been carried out; while on the following morning previous to my being sent back here, General Ian Hamilton visited me at the field hospital, and reiterated and confirmed the expressions made by Major General Smith-Dorrien the previous evening.

APPENDIX A 5.

REPORT OF COLONEL OTTER, COMMANDING ROYAL CANADIAN REGIMENT OF INFANTRY, (2ND BATTALION).

Extracts from Diary of Lt. Col. Buchan, April 26–May 25, 1900.

On the 26th April the battalion reached Thabanchu Village, a march of six miles, and was detailed to hold Thaba Mountain, some three miles to the south, with one section of R.H.A. and a company of Mounted Infantry. This latter force entrenched itself strongly for the night.

Returning to the village the next afternoon, two companies, ('B' and 'D') had to be detailed for special duty with the Gordon Highlanders to rescue a body of Kitchener's Horse which was reported as being surrounded on a kopje about five miles N.E. while, the remainder of the brigade was ordered to be ready to move out to the support of this force if necessary.

On the 28th April, the battalion (6 Companies), marched N.E. in the dark at 5 a.m., joining the Cornwalls and Shropshires with artillery and mounted infantry.

After marching about six miles, reached a very large kopje and were met with a good deal of firing.

Gradually advanced with remainder of force and cleared the kopje about 10 a.m. The enemy were in large force all about the neighbouring hills on Eden Mountain where they had large guns playing on our force.

At 4 p.m. the battalion was ordered to scale the Eden Mountain and hold it against a force of 3,000 Boers, who were reported on the far side of it.

Two companies of Cornwalls did likewise on our left.

At 5.40 p.m. reached, after very hard climbing, a sort of plateau about half way up to the top. It was by that time dark but proceeded to build 'scances' and prepare to hold the position on a front of about half a mile. Whilst doing this it became dark and very cold. At about 7 p.m. received orders to gradually withdraw quietly and return to Thabanchu. This was a very difficult operation owing to complete darkness, and exceedingly precipitous and rugged character of the mountain.

About 8.30 p.m. all were collected and formed up at the foot, and after a long and circuitous march, in the darkness, the battalion (6 companies) reached bivouac at Thabanchu at 11 p.m.

In arranging for and in effecting the descent of the mountain and in collecting the several companies and finding the way back to Thabanchu in the dark, I was very ably and successfully assisted by Lieuts. Hodgins and Ogilvy, and so reported to the G. O. C. Brigade.

On return to bivouac found 'B' and 'D' Companies, they having, with the Gordons, been led in the wrong direction the previous night and returned to Thabanchu during the day.

The day following was one of rest.

On Monday 30th April the battalion marched at 6 a.m. for Hout Nek being third battalion in the brigade. Our mounted screen was stopped by the enemy about ten miles out at the Nek.

Detailed 'E' and 'F' Companies as escort for guns (field). The Gordons were sent to take Thaba Mountain on our left front. The Shropshires to hill on right front. Very heavy firing all round. At about 1 p.m. the Boer shells reached transport, which was laagered about two miles in our rear, and as it moved off the shell fire was directed at the battalion and the first line transport and the battery where we lay.

All had to shift at once and whilst doing so the Gordons were reported as requiring assistance in their attack on Thaba. 'A' and 'C' Companies were detailed to support the Gordons, and 'B' Company to cover our right flank, from which direction the Boer shell fire was coming.

Shortly after, two more companies were required to help in the attack on Thaba, and 'G' and 'H' Companies were sent. Again two more companies were required and 'E' and 'F' were withdrawn from gun escort and sent.

About 4 p.m. two more companies were required in this attack, and I proceeded with 'B' and 'D' Companies, the only two left, which had been held in reserve.

On approaching the Thaba Mountain, which is from 300 to 400 feet high, all the companies had to pass through a zone of about 600 yards in width which was swept by a directly enfilading shell fire from a heavy Boer gun about three quarters of a mile to our right, as well as a rifle fire from the mountain to our front.

This was a very trying experience for all, but fortunately the Boers were using segment shells, apparently with mostly percussion fuse, and the effect of the burst was almost entirely lost. It was in the advance of 'D' Company across this zone that Pte. Cotton was killed, as previously reported by cable.

The shell fire swept the face of the mountain we had to climb, but the nature of the ground there gave opportunities for cover the plain had not afforded. On reaching the crest of the mountain, the rifle fire from the far side of the sort of table land top was very heavy but the cover was good.

We found the Gordons and some few Shropshires hanging on to the crest. I at once set about getting our companies sorted out and building 'scances' and by dark, about 6 p.m., had them fairly well arranged, orders being to hold the mountain at any cost.

Rifle fire kept up till late in the night, and finally all settled down to pass the night as best we could without food, water or blankets or coats in the bitter cold. We lay with magazines charged and bayonets fixed till morning.

At sunrise of the 1st May, having arranged our companies on the left of the Gordons, I advanced our line to clear the top of the mountain towards the south-western extremity, a company of the Gordons advancing about 200 yards to their front.

By about 9.30 a.m. we had cleared the mountain, with furthest extremity about three quarters of a mile distant.

'B' Company, under Captain Burstall, receiving the heaviest fire and doing the hardest fighting. It was in this work that Lt. Ross and five men were wounded, as reported by cable. At 2.30 p.m. received orders to join the force on the plain, and having done so, marched into bivouac at Jacobrust, about five miles, reaching there at 6.15 p.m., where all ranks got their first meal since 4 a.m. previous day. Specially mentioned Captain Burstall for his plucky conduct on this occasion in my report to G. O. C. Brigade.

The 2nd of May was a day of rest and on it a change was made in the formation and name of the force with which the battalion was operating. This force was still to remain under the command of Major General Ian Hamilton, but to be augmented and named the Winburg Column. Its composition as such became as follows:—

Two Batteries of Horse Artillery. 2nd Cavalry Brigade. Four Corps of Mounted Infantry. Five Batteries of Field Artillery. Two five-inch guns. 19th Brigade. 21st Brigade.

On the 3rd of May we marched fifteen miles, and on the day following continued our march at 8 a.m.

At 10 a.m. of this day the enemy was met and an artillery duel of some four hours was fought. In this engagement the infantry took no part, save that it was kept moving about while it lasted. The march was resumed in the afternoon and bivouac was made at Welkom, some twelve miles from the point of starting in the morning.

Winburg was reached about 4 p.m. of the 5th, and on the day following a further march of 8 miles brought the battalion to Taailboschkoil, where the draft of 100 men which left Bloemfontein on the 1st of May, joined.

For the next two days the battalion rested, moving on to Bloemplaats, 11 miles, on the 9th May.

Here we heard a good deal of artillery firing going on in the direction of Zand River, some 3 miles to the front of us, and orders were received for an attack the next morning. 'A' and 'H' Companies were detailed as escort to 5-in. guns.

On the 10th May four companies (B, D, E, F) paraded at 5.45 a.m. as advanced guard to brigade, and were sent off to hold extreme right flank of position at Zand River.

Getting to top of rise about half a mile from river met by heavy fire from river bushes and dongas. Sent Captain Burstall forward with half of 'B' Company to scout and feel the way, remainder following slowly.

About 250 yards from river Captain Burstall was forced to stop by the very heavy fire. The remaining half of his company was at once sent to reinforce his line, and 'D' Company, under Lt Lawless, was sent to prolong his line to the right, the other two companies being held in support.

All the remainder of the brigade was by this time one and a half miles to our left assisting the 21st Brigade in the main attack. The firing at us from the river bed grew rapidly in strength, and it was only by the pluck and determination of our men that we were able to hold on to our position and keep down the enemy's fire as much as possible. The moment anyone, an officer, a stretcher bearer or an ammunition carrier, showed himself above the ground the enemy's fire developed in great strength.

About noon 'C' and 'G' Companies came up from escort duty with the guns, and were held in reserve. At about 1.30 p.m. I went over to Major General Smith Dorrien, who, I heard, was near by, and explained our situation and asked for a section of a battery to be sent to shell the river bed and bushes and dongas. In about an hour these were sent from a position they had been to our right rear, where they had been firing since about 2 p.m., assisting some mounted infantry. The battery fire, with that of our men, soon cleared the river in our front, and about 4 p.m. we were enabled to remove our wounded and bury the one man killed, Pte. Lloyd (cabled from Kroonstadt about 12th May). The six companies were marched into the drift about dusk, two of them, 'C' and 'F,' having meantime and until then been on river picquet.

We bivouacked at the drift that night. 'A' and 'H' Companies have gone on with the 5-in. guns to Petersburg.

Specially mentioned Captain Burstall and Lieut. Lawless in my report to the G. O. C. Brigade (19th) for their gallant and determined conduct in action.

The G. O. C. subsequently informed me that we had over 800 Boers opposed to us all day. We had only 100 men in our firing line.

On the 11th of May we had a long march of 22 miles, reaching our bivouac at Tevistriet at 8.30 p.m., and on the following day did 21 miles, which brought us to Kroonspuit, within 4 miles of Kroonstadt, where the main army under Lord Roberts lay.

On the 14th and 15th of May we remained at Kroonspuit. Lord Roberts, the Commander-in-Chief, inspecting the battalion on the latter day.

Our march was resumed on the 15th in the direction of Lindley, and a bad drift over the Valsch River detained us so long as to keep our march down to 6 miles for that day.

On the 16th we made 12 miles and on the 17th 16 miles. On the 18th of May the 21st Brigade went on to Lindley, while the 19th Brigade stopped short of it, and I was ordered, with a half battalion of Royal Canadians, two guns and some mounted infantry, to attack a farmhouse near by, from which there had been some 'sniping.'

On our approach the enemy fled, but large quantities of food and fodder were collected from the farm.

The march on the 19th was 9 miles to Quagga Spruit, in the vicinity of which the enemy was seen in the hills. This march was made by the 19th Brigade alone.

Sunday, the 20th was a fatiguing day, as we chased the enemy all day and did not get into bivouac until dark at Boschran. Here the 21st Brigade joined us.

On the 21st May we marched 11 miles to Witpoort.

We began our march on 22nd May at 6.30 a.m., the battalion being advanced guard, and reached the neighbourhood of Heilbron about 10 a.m. Firing began in front and the battalion formed for attack, advancing toward the town. The enemy retired west followed by the mounted troops, and the battalion entered the town unopposed. Picquets and guards were at once placed upon the town hall, post office and stores, and General Hamilton entered and took formal possession. At 9.30 a.m. of the 23rd the column left the town, the enemy at once taking possession of it again and capturing Surgeon Captain Fiset and servant, who had been left ill in the German hospital. Brigade halted at Elands Spruit for the night, having marched 11 miles.

On the 24th (Queen's birthday) we met the main army under Lord Roberts near Prospect, on the railway, and then, turning north, moved to Vredeport Station where we went into bivouac at 1 p.m., having marched 14 miles.

A ration of rum was issued to the troops and with it the battalion drank Her Majesty's health, gave three cheers and sang the National Anthem.

The 25th found us again on the march, and after crossing the railway track we stopped to wait for a supply convoy. In the afternoon we moved on again in a N.W. direction and went into bivouac at Zwartbank at 7.30 p.m., having done only 9 miles.

On the 26th May Lt.-Col. Otter rejoined the battalion and I handed it over to him.

APPENDIX A 6.

From Officer Commanding 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, to Chief Staff Officer, Militia Department, Ottawa, Canada.

FLORIDA, JOHANNESBURG, May 31, 1900.

SIR,—I have the honour to report upon the action at Doornkop, which took place on the 29th inst., and in which the battalion took part.

Leaving the bivouac at Cyferfontein at 7.15 a.m. on the morning of the 29th inst., the 19th Brigade followed the 21st Brigade in the order named, viz. :—

Gordon Highlanders.
Royal Canadians.
Duke of Cornwall's L. I.
King's Shropshire L. I., Rear Guard.

Moving northward for nearly four hours, and then somewhat to the east, the whole infantry force was halted about noon at Klipriversberg, the enemy being found strongly posted on a line of heights, and holding the cavalry of General French from a further advance on the west side of Johannesburg. At 1.45 p.m. orders were received for the battalion to form a line of attack in conjunction with the Gordon Highlanders, on that part of the ridge occupied by the left flank of the enemy, while the 21st Brigade moved against his right. At 2.30 p.m., the battalion moved forward in four lines, with intervals of 25 paces between men, and 150 yards distance between lines : the Gordon Highlanders being in a similar formation on our left. Our first two lines were placed under charge of Lt.-Col. Buchan, while Major Pelletier had immediate supervision of the third and fourth lines. Our advance began at a distance of about 3000 yards from the enemy's position, and was made over rolling ground, the entire part of which nearest the enemy had already been burned over, and was quite black : while that part nearest us was still on fire and burning fiercely towards us. The effect of this burnt grass was, of course, to render our Khaki uniform particularly distinct and an easy mark.

We had no sooner begun to move forward than fire was opened upon us by the enemy from two 5-inch guns, and though their projectiles went over our heads, the effect in the transport wagons, amongst which they fell, was very demoralizing. This fire was returned by two similar guns on our side, as well as by the guns of one of our field batteries, while we continued our movement forward.

At about 2,000 yards the enemy opened upon us with rifle fire, and one of our men in the third line was severely wounded. Continuing the advance, the fire became hotter, particularly as we entered the 'burnt zone,' in doing which most of the men were scorched from the blazing grass, but fortunately escaped further injury from bullets, until the foot of the ridge, which gradually ascended for fully 1,000 yards to the summit occupied by the Boers, was reached. A Kaffir hut surrounded by a stone wall on the face of the hill, offered good cover for our men, and a rush was made by fully one-third of the battalion for its occupation, which was effected, though, with a loss of three or four men wounded from a heavy frontal, as well as enfilading fire which was concentrated upon them. Here, however, they were comparatively safe, and made good use of the cover thus obtained. It now became apparent that an attempt was being made to outflank us on our right, and I detailed one of the Maxim guns to open in this direction. This was most effectively done under Lieutenant Hodgins' supervision, and in half an hour our flank was safe.

The Gordon Highlanders on our left evidently came into contact at the strongest part of the enemy's position, and met with a most stubborn resistance, as their very heavy losses testify, but finally succeeding, they moved to the crest of a hill, and simultaneously we also went forward, clearing the enemy from their position just before 5 p. m., and the battalion being concentrated occupied the ridge for the night.

I regret to report the following casualties, although when compared with those of the Gordon Highlanders, sincerely congratulate myself that they were not very much worse.

The enemy evidently considered the retention of this point as most important, and made every preparation to hold it ; while its possession by our forces, no doubt, cleared the way for the peaceful entry of Johannesburg by Lord Roberts on the following day with the main army.

I cannot speak too highly of the conduct of all ranks of the battalion at this engagement, it being most quiet, steady and intelligent. Very little time was occupied, it taking less than three hours from beginning to end, owing to the spirited and determined way in which the attack was carried out.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

W. D. OTTER, Lieutenant-Colonel,

Commanding Second Royal Canadian Regiment.

REPORT B.

OTTAWA, CANADA, January 17, 1901.

SIR,—In compliance with your request to me as senior of the four nursing sisters sent with the First Contingent to South Africa, I have the honour to submit the following report of the work performed by us.

Upon our arrival in Cape Town, on the 30th November, 1899, we were welcomed by a committee of the Red Cross, and the Surgeon-in-Chief of the New Somerset Hospital of Cape Town. The latter brought us an invitation from the matron (Sister Agatha) to go there as her guests pending orders for duty from the P. M. O. This we gladly accepted as all the hotels were overcrowded. We also received a letter of congratulation upon what he was pleased to call 'our splendid patriotism,' from Mr. Frederick Treves, consulting surgeon to the troops, who, with his two private nurses, had just arrived by the 'Dunvegan Castle,' and was about to proceed to Natal viâ Durban.

We disembarked on December 1, and upon finding that our troops had orders to proceed up country immediately, made every effort to be allowed to accompany them to the front. This we were told was impossible as no nursing sisters can be accommodated in the field hospitals. So with very sad feelings we saw our countrymen entrain without us on December 3rd, and realized at that early date what served us in good stead later, viz, that we too were soldiers to do as we were told and go where we were sent. Later in the same day we received orders to proceed to Wynberg for duty in the large base hospital there called No. 1 General. We found our services were greatly needed here, the wounded from Graspan and Belmont, &c., having been brought down recently, and the number of sisters very small. I might here add that the total number of sisters sent from home at this early date was 40, while a year later, including ourselves and other colonials, we numbered 1,000.

At No. 1 General, we nursed in huts, finding the work at times very heavy, oftentimes having our dinner between 9 and 10 p.m. We received our first convoy of wounded a few days after the battles of Magersfontein and Modder River, when our beds were filled with the men of the Highland Brigade who suffered so severely at the former place. We remained at Wynberg for nearly a month when No. 3 General Hospital of 600 beds was pitched under canvas at Rondebosch, a few miles away, under charge of Lt.-Col. Wood, R A.M.C., and we with three English army sisters (one of whom was Superintendent) formed the nursing staff there. Here we arrived on Christmas day and remained almost six months, having at times very active service, sometimes covered with sand during a 'Cape south-easter,' at others deluged with a forerunner of the coming rainy season, and at all times in terror of scorpions and snakes as bed fellows.

In February, some of our men began to come down, and as each new convoy arrived we eagerly searched for wearers of the maple leaf badge, and deemed it a great privilege to find them our own special patients. Many of the men came, but the officers were taken to No. 1, Wynberg, as we had no officers hospital, though, when our duties allowed, we made several visits to see any of our countrymen in hospital there. In May orders came for half our hospital equipment and nursing staff to proceed to Springfontein, O. R. C., to go under canvas there with Lieut.-Col. Keogh, our second in command, as P.M.O. Superintending Sister Browne, with half of our staff (which had of late greatly increased in numbers), including Sisters Affleck and Russell, went with Col. Keogh, Col. Wood, our P. M. O., preferring that Sister Forbes and myself should remain behind, as we were nursing in the enteric tents, which were isolated from the main camp, and had been under my charge since February. A fortnight later our half of the hospital suddenly received orders to go to Kroonstadt, O. R. C., the sisters to proceed without delay. Four hours later, Sister Forbes, eight English Reserve Sisters and myself (I carrying the orders as acting Superintendent), left for Kroonstadt. After two days journey we reached Springfontein, where we spent an hour with our sisters there, who were cheerfully bearing great hardships, sister Affleck who was doing night duty telling me that the cold at night was so intense that the medicine froze in the glasses as she carried them to the different patients.

At Bloemfontein we were delayed two days, traffic being so great and accommodation for passengers limited. We were billeted at "Dames Institute" and "Grey College," two buildings used as hospitals by No. 10 General, where two of our Sisters of the Second Contingent were nursing, and the other two lying very seriously ill at the time.

After a week of most uncomfortable travelling we arrived in Kroonstadt early in the morning of the Queen's birthday. At Bloemfontein we had been further reinforced by five New South Wales Sisters. This accession was most opportune, as there was great need for us all.—Lord Roberts and Lord Methuen's forces had recently passed through, leaving sick and wounded in large numbers, and hotels, the Dutch church, Stuat Huis, etc., were quickly converted into hospitals. We divided ourselves among these places, making our patients as comfortable as we could with the small equipment at our disposal. The nursing of the Kroonstadt hotel hospital was placed under my charge, where I was ably assisted by Sister Forbes and five of the English Reserve Sisters. We had here 30 officers and over 200 men, nearly all suffering from enteric fever. In this place so recently occupied by the English, during the unavoidable delay in receiving our hospital stores, we were greatly aided by Lieutenant-Colonel Ryerson and his Red Cross supplies. Suits of pyjamas, tins of condensed milk, beef essence, good whisky and many other medical comforts were given us by the Colonel, who very kindly looked out for our personal comfort as well. For over a month we remained at this hotel, then, as soon as the patients were able to be moved, went back to No. 5 General Hospital, which, with the Scottish National Hospital, had in the meantime arrived and been pitched on the outskirts of the town. Here under canvas in June, like our Sisters at Springfontein, we suffered acutely from cold, each morning the hoar frost being thick both inside and out, of our single bell tents. We were very short of water and lived on rations which an orderly cooked for us on a fire on the veldt, dinner being a very uncertain feast on a rainy day. Around our camps within 50 yards were several six-inch guns, while we had prepared in a donga, a place of safety for helpless patients, and a bomb proof shelter for all the hospital staff in case of attack, which for some time threatened us daily. Hanging in our mess was a copy of orders to be observed when attacked, etc. Several mornings we wakened to hear the boom of guns, which, however, were never near enough to necessitate our using the shelters.

Early in July, we were surprised and pleased to receive orders to proceed to Pretoria. These orders came from Lord Roberts direct, who happening to hear that we hoped to see Pretoria before leaving the country, with that great kindness which always characterizes his actions, requested the P. M. O. to transfer us for duty there at once. We waited for Sisters Affleck and Russell to join us, and two days later, in a carriage attached to Lady Roberts' train, preceded by an armoured train, we made the journey to Pretoria in 12 hours. Lord Roberts and his staff, including Major Denison, A.D.C., were at the station to meet Lady Roberts and her daughters, and Major Denison introduced us to the Field Marshal, which gave us the pleasure of thanking him personally for his kindness. In Pretoria we were attached to the Palace of Justice hospital, which included the Irish hospital, send out by Lord Iveagh, and where we nursed for Dr. George Stoker, a London specialist, who was second in command of the Irish hospital, and from whom we received many courtesies. A week or so later we were joined by three sisters of the Second Contingent, the fourth, Sister Horne, having been invalided home. Here we remained until November, when we received orders for Wynberg, pending embarkation for Canada. After completing a year's service, Col. Gubbins, P. M. O., of Pretoria, gave us 10 days leave of absence, which we spent in visiting Natal, stopping at Ladysmith, Spion Kop, Colenzo, Chievley, Pietermaritzburg and Durban, but being unfortunately delayed in reaching Pretoria by the line having been cut, we arrived back there too late to join the Royal Canadians, with whom we were to have returned home via England.

During our service in Pretoria, Major Denison was most kind in looking after our comfort, while after being eight months under canvas on the veldt, a roof over our heads and plenty of water seemed great luxuries.

I should like also to mention the kindness and courtesy with which we were invariably treated by the Royal Army Medical Corps. Surgeon General Wilson, the P.M.O. of the army in South Africa, with whom we frequently came in contact, was unfailing in his courtesy to us. While Col. Gubbins, P.M.O., Pretoria, Lt.-Col. Wood, P.M.O., Kroonstadt (with whom Sister Forbes and I served eight months), Lt.-Col. Keogh, P.M.O., Springfontein, Lt.-Col. Grier, P.M.O. No. 1, General Hospital, Wynberg, were equally kind and courteous to us on all occasions. Also Superintending Sister Browne, of No. 3, General, and Superintending Sister Garrioch, of No. 1, Wynberg, were most kind and appreciative of our work. We found in Lt.-Col. Biggar a firm friend for our interests at the base, and are indebted to him for many kindnesses. Of my fellow-sisters I have much pleasure in reporting: as good nurses, popular with their patients, untiring in their zeal, cheerfully bearing oftentimes great hardships. I feel I cannot say too much of them, and it is with deep regret I lose their pleasant and constant companionship.

We found 'Tommy Atkins' a very good patient and a fine fellow, always grateful, generally cheerful, bearing loss of limb, loss of health and many minor discomforts with a fortitude that satisfied our best ideas of British pluck, while his consideration for the presence of 'the Sister' was at times quite touching.

On December 13, we embarked on board the 'Roslin Castle' with the Second Contingent, which had orders to sail direct to Halifax. This was to us a great disappointment as we had looked forward with much pleasure to visiting London. After a week at sea several cases of enteric fever developed and we offered our services to Surgeon Major Duff to aid in the nursing. From Cape Verde the weather was very rough and nursing became very difficult. We were greatly saddened by the death at sea of two of our patients, Sergt. Inglis, R.C.D., who died on New Year's Day, and Lieut. Sutton, R.C.D., on January 6, when we were only two days out from Halifax. On the afternoon of January 8, we sighted the coast of Chibucto, and later in the evening, with feelings of great happiness, found ourselves back in the much loved land of 'Our Lady of the Snows.'

I cannot close this report without saying that it has been to me and my sisters a great privilege to serve the Empire in assisting in caring for the sick and wounded in far away South Africa, and if we have lessened their sufferings as we endeavoured to do, we are amply repaid for the hardships which are necessarily encountered in such a campaign.

I have the honour to be, sir, your obedient servant,

GEORGINA FANE POPE,
Supt. 1st Contingent of Canadian Nursing Sisters to South Africa.

Colonel J. L. H. Neilson, C.G.H.S.,
Director General Medical Services,
Ottawa, Canada.

THE 2ND CONTINGENT

On November 2, 1899, His Excellency sent a cablegram to Mr. Chamberlain, conveying an offer of a second contingent from Canada. The offer was worded as follows:—

"Deep emotion has been caused in Canada by reports of reverses in South Africa, but a strong hope is felt everywhere that no cause exists for alarm. My Ministers are, however, prepared to act on your previous despatch and send another Contingent at once if Her Majesty's Government deem it advisable."

An acknowledgment was sent the same day, which read:—

"I have communicated to the Secretary of State for War the generous and patriotic offer of your Government to send further Contingent. His reply will be telegraphed as soon as possible; in the meantime I desire to express my gratitude."

And on November 7 the offer was declined, the decision being conveyed in the following words:—

"Your Ministers' generous offer to send without delay second Contingent for service in South Africa has received the attentive consideration of Secretary of State for War and his military advisers, but they regret that under existing circumstances they are unable to accept it. The offer will, however, certainly be borne in mind, and Her Majesty's Government will have no hesitation in availing themselves of it should future events make it desirable to do so. Her Majesty's Government attach great importance to this fresh proof of Canadian sympathy and good will, and desire to express their grateful appreciation of it."

THE OFFER ACCEPTED.

On December 16 Mr. Chamberlain telegraphed His Excellency as follows:—

"Referring to my telegram of November 7 following telegram received from New South Wales begins: does Her Majesty's Government desire Colonies send more troops South Africa ends Following sent in reply begins: willing to entertain favourably further offer from Colonies. Should such offer be made they will probably give preference to mounted troops men should be trained and good shots and they should bring own horses, communicate this to your Ministers, for guidance with reference to their offer second contingent, which Her Majesty's Government now gladly accept."

This telegram was followed, on December 19, by another from Mr. Chamberlain, which read:—

"With reference to expression 'trained men' in my telegram of December 16 Secretary of State for War explains that volunteers must be good shots and competent riders, but need not be members of any regularly drilled force."

On December 21 His Excellency replied to Mr. Chamberlain by telegram as follows:—

"Referring to your telegram of the 16th instant, for contingent, my Ministers propose following composition:—Three squadrons mounted rifles carefully chosen for shooting and riding, and a fourth squadron of specially selected scouts from the North-west Territories.

"Strength of squadrons, 160. Also field artillery, three batteries—approximately 1,230—all ranks, 18 guns and 1,124 horses. Could you inform me whether you approve above composition when it will be proceeded with at once?"

Provisional orders were issued, bearing date December 20, for the organization of a regiment of mounted rifles of three squadrons, in accordance with the army establishment for a cavalry regiment, 1898, of a total strength of 25 officers, 417 other ranks, and 536 horses, and a brigade division of field artillery of three batteries. Orders were also being prepared for the organization of a squadron of specially selected scouts.

On December 22, Mr. Chamberlain replied as follows :—

"Referring to your telegram of December 21. Her Majesty's Government very highly appreciate offer from your Ministers of further military assistance which they have great pleasure in accepting. They would, however, suggest for consideration of your Government whether substitution of more mounted troops of the same class as the North-west mounted troops for part of contingent of artillery proposed would not be improvement in composition of force in view of special requirements of the moment."

Mr. Chamberlain also telegraphed His Excellency on December 24, as follows :—

I. "Referring to my telegram of December 22, after due consideration H. M. Government will be glad if your Ministers will send batteries as they proposed. They should be complete in every respect, with horses, 500 rounds of ammunition per gun if possible, and full transport.

II. "H. M. Government would also be glad to accept offer of trained post office men received through High Commissioner, October 20.

III. "Mounted troops should be organized in units of 125 non-commissioned officers and men, one captain and four subalterns, with good proportion of farriers, shoeing smiths and saddlers. They should be fully equipped, bringing, if possible, 500 rounds 'mark two' service ammunition, personal and regimental equipment, including camp equipment, saddlery, stable and picketing gear, nose bags, grooming kits, horse shoes for three months, farriers' tools and regimental and other transport.

IV. "Telegraph as soon as possible date of departure of contingent and probable date of arrival in South Africa with full details as to strength, composition of armament, quality of ammunition, and any unavoidable deficiency in equipment. Send nominal rolls also by earliest opportunity. H. M. Government cordially recognize great moral and material value of assistance so readily offered by your Ministers and patriotic enthusiasm of people of Canada."

On December 27, the Major General Commanding, to whom Mr. Chamberlain's telegram of the 24th had been referred, reported as follows :—

"With reference to the cablegram of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, dated 24th instant, a copy of which is attached and paragraphed, I have the honour to state as follows :—

"I. The Brigade Division, Field Artillery, consisting of 3 Batteries of 12-pr. B. L. guns is in process of organization. They shall be complete in every respect with horses, 500 rounds of ammunition per gun and full transport.

"II. I understand that you have arranged for the Post Office officials.

"III. The organization of a Regiment of Mounted Rifles had already been carried into effect with Establishment laid down for Regimental Staff, and three Service Squadrons in War Establishment, before the arrival of the cablegram in question. Arrangements had further been made to supplement this Regiment by a Corps of Scouts, in accordance with the request of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, dated 22nd, with the strength of a Service Squadron.

"Owing to unforeseen difficulties as regards recruiting in the North-west Territories, the Mounted Force above mentioned has been organized into two distinct Battalions of Mounted Rifles, each consisting of Regimental Staff and 2 Squadrons.

"It would now cause great confusion and delay if this organization were altered again to meet the strength of the units indicated in the cablegram of the Secretary of State for the Colonies. I most strongly urge that representation be made that the present formation be accepted as final. Vide Schedule attached.—Schedule not printed herein—practically the same as establishment subsequently authorized.

"The two Battalions of Mounted Rifles shall be fully equipped with 500 rounds Mark (II) S.A.A., personnel and regimental equipment, including camp equipment, saddlery, stable and picketing gear, nose bags, grooming kit, horse shoes for three months, farrier's tools, and regimental transport.

"IV. The probable date of departure shall be communicated later."

On December 28, a recommendation was submitted for the consideration of His Excellency in Council, in accordance with the foregoing, and on December 30 His Excellency approved it. The following is the report of the Committee of Council, approved by His Excellency :—

"The Committee of the Privy Council have had under consideration two telegraphic despatches, hereto annexed, dated December 22 and 24, 1899, respectively, from the Right Honourable Mr. Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, relative to the formation of the 2nd military contingent for service in South Africa.

"The Minister of Militia and Defence, to whom the said despatches were referred, submits that they have been carefully considered, and the opinion of the Major General Commanding obtained, as will be seen by the accompanying report from that officer, dated December 27, 1899, by which it is shown that the organization of the corps in question was nearly completed when the above mentioned cablegrams were received; and as the Minister agrees with the Major General Commanding upon the advisability of keeping the contingent in its present state, he the Minister, therefore recommends that Your Excellency may be pleased to cable the Home Authorities in order to have the present formation accepted as final.

"The Committee advise further that Your Excellency may also be moved to transmit a certified copy of this Minute, and the annexed report, to the Right Honourable Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies.

All which is respectfully submitted for Your Excellency's approval."

(Sgd.) JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk of the Privy Council.

On December 28, the provisional orders issued on the 20th were amended, to provide for a regiment of mounted rifles of two battalions, to be designated the * 1st and † 2nd Battalion, the Canadian Mounted Rifles.

The squadrons of the 1st Battalion were designated 'A' and 'B', and those of the 2nd, 'C' and 'D.'

CONDITIONS OF SERVICE.

The conditions of service in the 2nd Contingent were similar to those of the 1st, with the exception that the pay from the date of enlistment until the date of arrival in South Africa, were the rates of pay issued to members of the North-west Mounted Police Force instead of those issued to members of the Canadian Permanent Force.

DEPARTURE FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

The purchasing of the horses, and the fitting out of three transports for the conveyance of horses in addition to troops, made the work of organizing the 2nd Contingent much greater than that of the first. The transports chartered were the Montezuma, Laurentian and Pomeranian. It was expected, and arrangements were being made to that end, that the two first named would sail January 18, and the Pomeranian, two days later, all from Halifax.

The carrying out of these arrangements could not, however, be effected, owing to rejection of the Montezuma by a medical board, in consequence of there being seven cases of typhoid fever among the crew when she arrived at Halifax. The S.S. Milwaukee was chartered to take her place. This vessel was at sea at the time, bound for New Orleans. She proceeded to Halifax as soon as possble, where she arrived February 4, at 6.20 p.m.

DEPARTURE OF 'LAURENTIAN.'

On January 20th the troops allotted to the Laurentian embarked. At 10.45 on the morning of that day, 'D' and 'E' batteries were inspected by the Major General Commanding. They were subsequently reviewed and addressed by His Honour the Lieutenant Governor of Nova Scotia, and by the Honourable the Minister of Militia and Defence.

The Batteries then proceeded, escorted by a detachment of the 1st Battalion, The Canadian Mounted Rifles, and Bands of the 1st Battalion, Leinster Regiment, the 63rd "Halifax" Rifles and the 66th "Princess Louise Fusiliers," to Her Majesty's Dock Yard, where they embarked at 2 p.m. for Capetown, and sailed at 8 a.m. the 21st.

REPORT C.

From Officer Commanding Royal Canadian Dragoons to Adjutant General, Ottawa.

TORONTO, January 21, 1901.

SIR,—In accordance with your instructions, I have the honour to submit my report concerning the regiment under my command while employed on active service in South Africa.

ORGANIZATION.

When the regiment arrived at Cape Town, South Africa, it was styled the 1st Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles and had been raised as a special service regiment for duty in South Africa, the Royal Canadian Dragoons forming a nucleus.

It was therefore placed at a disadvantage to the Canadian Permanent Artillery and Infantry, both of whom retained distinctive Royal titles.

It was felt by all that the changing of the name of the corps from that conferred by the Queen to that of 1st Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles precluded the regiment from wearing in the field the distinctive badge given them by Her Majesty, and from attaching to the regiment the honours it would strive to earn in this campaign.

The regiment desired to be allowed to feel that they were serving as members of a corps which Her Majesty had specially honoured, but which had for the first time an opportunity of showing its devotion to Her Person and Empire.

I therefore applied that the Royal title be given back to the regiment, which I am pleased to say was granted by the authorities.

ARRIVAL OF SS. "MILWAUKEE."

The ss. Milwaukee arrived in Cape Town at 4 p.m. on the 21st March, 1900, but owing to the rough weather prevailing the disembarkation of the regiment did not take place until 10 a.m. on the 26th March, 1900.

As soon as the regiment had disembarked it was ordered to camp at Green Point, Cape Town, and remained at the latter place until 1 p.m. on the 4th April, 1900.

INSPECTION, APRIL 1, 1900

The regiment was inspected by Colonel Cooper, Base Commandant, for Lieut. General Sir Forestier Walker, K.C.B., C.M.G., on the 1st April, 1900, at Green Point Common.

Colonel Cooper expressed the regret of General Forestier Walker at not being present, and stated that he was well satisfied with the efficiency and appearance of the men and horses.

MARCHING ORDERS.

The regiment received orders to march on the 4th April from Cape Town to Stellenbosch, a distance of 33 miles. The march was accomplished in one and one-half days, arriving at Stellenbosch at 5 p.m. on the 5th April.

STELLENBOSCH.

The regiment remained in camp at Stellenbosch from the 5th to the 10th April.

I received orders on the 8th April to entrain the regiment in three parts for Bloemfontein as follows :—

"B" Squadron on the 8th April.

A Squadron on the 9th April.

Details of the regiment on the 10th April.

From the 10th until the 30th April the regiment was separated. "B" Squadron entrained for Bloemfontein on the 8th April, but received orders to detrain when it reached Norval's Pont. The squadron arrived at the latter place on the 10th April and was ordered to proceed to Springfontein by route march, which was reached on the 12th April.

"A" squadron entrained on the 9th April and on arrival at Naauwpoort was ordered to Bethulie, there to detrain and proceed by route march to Springfontein.

On arrival at Bethulie, orders were given the squadron to escort 700 mules and 50 transport wagons. The distance between Bethulie and Springfontein is 26 miles. This distance was covered in one day, reaching Springfontein on the 14th April.

The details of the regiment entrained at Stellenbosch on the 10th and arrived at Springfontein on the 13th April, where they received orders to join the regiment.

On the 15th April, "B" squadron was ordered to escort a Howitzer ammunition column and a convoy for Bloemfontein. This squadron reached Bloemfontein at noon on the 21st April and was at once ordered to proceed without delay with the First Mounted Infantry Corps to Springfield, Leeuwkop and Waterworks. Here they were in action on the 22nd, 23rd and 24th April, and one day were under very heavy fire, Lieutenant Van Straubenzee having his horse shot and a few more horses being wounded. The squadron then returned with the First Mounted Infantry Corps to Fisher's Farm.

On the 16th April, "A" squadron and regimental staff were ordered to escort 2,000 mules and horses, a convoy and a battalion of the City Imperial Volunteers from Springfontein to Bloemfontein.

The above column, which was under the command of Colonel MacKinnon, City Imperial Volunteers, arrived at Bloemfontein without incident at 5.30 p.m. on the 22nd April.

On arrival at Bloemfontein I received orders to camp at Lawton Farm, six miles south of Bloemfontein. The regiment remained in camp at the above farm for one day when we received orders to proceed to Fisher's Farm, situated six miles north of Bloemfontein, to relieve the Inniskillings for outpost duties.

INSPECTION.

"A" squadron and regimental staff were inspected on the 25th April by the Field Marshal Commander in Chief, Lord Roberts, on which occasion he expressed himself as being well satisfied with the appearance of the squadron generally, and in addressing the men he referred to the behaviour of the Second (Special Service) Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, at Paardeberg, remarking that he felt sure the First Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles would sustain the reputation Canadians had already won.

On the 1st of May the regiment complete, with the 1st Mounted Infantry Corps, under the command of Lieut.-Colonel E. A. H. Alderson, left Fisher's Farm.

The 1st Corps formed part of the 1st Mounted Infantry Brigade, under command of Major General E. T. H. Hutton, A.D.C., the establishment of which I append to this report. See appendix marked C 1, page 102.

IN ACTION AT BOSCHMAN'S KOP.

The regiment came into action for the first time at 12.35 p.m. on the 3rd of May at Boschman's Kop under the following circumstances :—

The regiment was ordered to furnish the advance guard, and it was 'B' Squadron's turn to perform this duty. The advance party of the advance guard was under command of Lieut. C. T. Van Straubenzee and Lieut. F. V. Young. The enemy allowed the advance party to come close up to their position and then opened a very heavy fire on our men, which forced the advance party to retire on the main body.

The regiment was then ordered to dismount and get into position, the machine guns working on our right.

After an engagement of a couple of hours the enemy retired.

Our casualties on that day were few, only one man wounded, No. 104, Private F. Brown, slightly wounded through the leg; besides there were four horses wounded.

The 1st Mounted Infantry Corps then resumed the advance, and bivouacked that night about five miles north of Boschman's Kop.

CONSTANTIA AND BEISEBUILT KOP.

On the 4th of May, at 12.30 p.m., we again came in contact with the enemy at Constantia, and for two hours the regiment was under both artillery and rifle fire. 'B' Squadron was ordered to hold a farm, while 'A' Squadron was ordered to dismount for action.

The regiment on this occasion, the first time under shell fire, behaved as well as could be expected. The remarkable part of this engagement was that the regiment escaped without any casualties.

The enemy retired leaving behind a considerable portion of their effects, which were burnt.

We bivouacked at 5 p.m. two miles north of Beisebuilt Kop.

VETT RIVER.

The regiment came in action for the third time on the 5th of May, at 2 p.m., the enemy again occupying a strong position in and near the Vett River and the surrounding kopjes.

'A' Squadron was detailed to escort a battery, R.H.A., and 'B' Squadron acted dismounted. The latter squadron, under my command, received instructions to advance towards the river and engage the enemy. As soon as the advance party had shown itself within rifle fire the enemy at once opened fire on them, forcing them to retire. The enemy's fire could not easily be located, but we managed after a while to reach the river. On this occasion Lieutenants Borden and Turner, with five men, swam the river, and when on the opposite bank found some 40 or 50 of the enemy entrenched in a stone kraal. These men engaged the enemy, and while they were drawing their attention I ordered 'B' Squadron to mount; and, finding a narrow ford, we crossed the river under pretty sharp rifle fire. The crossing was effected in conjunction with the 1st Mounted Infantry on our right and left.

As soon as the enemy saw us in possession of their side of the river they retired.

The casualties on our side were again few, only one horse shot and two or three wounded.

For this engagement the 1st Mounted Infantry Corps received the congratulations of the Field Marshal Commander in Chief.

WELGELEGEN.

We arrived at Welgelegen at 1.30 p.m. on the 7th of May, when the General received intelligence that the enemy, about 8,000 strong, were only 8 miles further at Virginia Siding. We were at once ordered to saddle up and proceed to Zand River. Here the enemy were blowing up the railway line and bridge. We came in contact with the enemy at 4 p.m. They were occupying a strong position on the Zand River. As soon as they saw us they kept up a heavy artillery fire. Finding the enemy too strong and strongly entrenched, the General ordered a retirement on Welgelegen.

We remained at Welgelegen for one and a half days waiting for the main body to arrive. On the 9th of May the 1st Mounted Infantry Corps advanced to Du Preez Laager where it bivouacked for the night.

On the 10th May the Cavalry Division having arrived with General French in command, the 1st Mounted Infantry Corps worked in concert with them.

At 11.30 a.m., the same day, the cavalry came in touch with the enemy. Again the regiment was called upon to dismount and were under fire for several hours.

The enemy retired at about 3 p.m. There were no casualties in the regiment except a few horses grazed.

On the 11th, 12th and 13th the 1st Mounted Infantry Corps marched continually until it reached Kroonstadt at about 5 p.m. the 13th May without opposition.

The 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th May the regiment, along with the 1st Mounted Infantry Corps, remained in Kroonstadt resting and awaiting supplies.

On the 17th May, one hundred men of the 1st and 2nd Canadian Mounted Rifles took part in an expedition about 35 to 40 miles north-west of Kroonstadt to arrest some of the enemy whose presence had been reported in that vicinity.

They returned on the 19th May with one Boer commandant, nine Johannesburg police and twenty Boer prisoners.

On the 19th of May the 1st Mounted Infantry Corps received orders to be ready to march the next day (Sunday) at 8 a.m. after church service.

DOORN SPRUIT.

At 8 a.m., the 20th of May, the 1st Mounted Infantry Corps paraded mounted for church service, ready to march off. The service was held by Capt. Lane, Chaplain to the 1st Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles.

At 9 a.m. the corps marched off in the direction of Doorn Spruit, where it halted at the junction of Doorn Spruit and Klerksdorp road and bivouacked for the night. No enemy in sight.

BOSCH KOPJES.

The corps marched off at 6 a.m., the 21st, and about 3 p.m. halted at Bosch kopjes to bivouac for the night. Yet no enemy in sight.

ENGLISCHE-KUIL ESSENBOSCH.

Marched off at 6 a.m., the 22nd, from Englische Kuil and arrived at Essenbosch at about 1 p.m., the 23rd May. The regiment bivouacked here.

PARIS-VILJOEN'S DRIFT.

Marched off at 4.30 a.m., the 24th May. On arriving at Paris, the cavalry division crossed the Vaal and the 1st and 3rd Mounted Infantry Corps marched to Viljoen's Drift which they reached late in the evening, having covered nearly thirty miles during the day.

The cavalry division bivouacked on the north side of the Vaal at White Kopfontein and the mounted infantry on the south side of the Vaal.

RIET SPRUIT.

At 6 a.m., the 25th, the 1st and 3rd Mounted Infantry Corps began to cross the Vaal at Viljoen's. Here we came in contact with a force of the enemy who had evidently been taken by surprise and must have only arrived during the night. They had taken up a position on the kopjes to the north-west of Viljoen's Drift. A few shots were exchanged, but nothing serious to report.

We successfully crossed the drift and arrived at Riet Spruit at 4 p.m. the same day.

WILDEBEEST-FONTEIN.

At 6 a.m., the 26th May, the 1st Mounted Infantry Corps left Riet Spruit and arrived at Wildebeest-Fontein at 5 p.m. The regiment bivouacked here for the night, the 1st Mounted Infantry having been ordered to march some four miles further to relieve the cavalry who had successfully driven the enemy out and taken a position on the kopjes.

OLIPHANTS-VLEI (KLIP RIVER).

The 1st Mounted Infantry Corps marched off at 6 a.m., on the 27th and came in sight of Klip river at about 11 a.m.

The G.O.C. had received intelligence that the enemy were in strength at the Berg, and he ordered the Mounted Infantry to advance to some small kopjes which were under and commanded by the Berg.

The 2nd Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles were ordered to advance first and the 1st Battalion C.M.R. to support them. We had first to cross a bridge at the river and then an open plain about one mile long No sooner had we crossed the bridge than the enemy opened a pretty brisk fire, first on the 2nd Battalion and then on the 1st Battalion. The firing came from heavy guns as well as the pom poms and long range rifle fire.

The small kopjes which we were ordered to occupy and hold, were only about 1,500 yards from the enemy's position, and at the time of our advance were occupied by the enemy, but when they saw the persistent advance of the Canadian Mounted Rifles they retired on their main position.

The intention was for the mounted infantry to hold these kopjes to enable the cavalry division to make a detour towards Doornkop and turn the enemy's right, which was eventually done.

Just before dark on the afternoon of the 27th May the 1st Battalion relieved the the 2nd Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles who were in the first line, and remained there till the next afternoon. During all this time the enemy kept a pretty steady shell fire on the position we occupied.

The 2nd Battalion then took up another position to our left.

On the afternoon of the 28th May, at about 1 p.m., the turning movement having been accomplished, the 1st Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles was ordered to retire from its awkward position which we did under shell fire. This firing on the part of the enemy evidently was their last effort before they fell back on Johannesburg.

That night we bivouacked a little past Doornkop.

DRIEFONTEIN.

The 1st corps marched off at 6 a.m. on the 29th May and arrived at Driefontein at about 7 p.m. the same day.

About noon on that day our patrols reported a convoy of Boers to our right front. Our G.O.C. immediately asked permission to pursue them, which was granted by General French.

The 1st and 3rd corps set at once in pursuit and successfully ended the day by the 1st corps capturing three wagons, one of which was loaded with ammunition and the other two full of looted clothing and other stores.

The 3rd corps were more successful in capturing a gun.

Here I must specially mention Lieutenant Borden, who with his troop acted as a flank guard to the 1st corps. They were first to come in touch with the rear of the enemy's convoy and it was they who captured the wagons.

No. 431 Pte. F. S. Morrison, of 'B' squadron, was with Lieut. Borden, and while the men were dismounted, some of the led horses got loose and he had enough pluck and coolness to collect these horses and bring them under cover. This was done under rifle fire.

The same day we learned that Johannesburg was evacuated by the enemy.

KLIPFONTEIN.

At 8 a.m. the 2nd June the 1st and 3rd Mounted Infantry Corps removed their camp to Klipfontein, close to a dynamite factory.

KALK-HEUVEL.

On the 3rd June we marched to Kalk-Heuvel, the 1st and 3rd corps refusing the cavalry division's right.

At about 4 p.m. we heard some firing in front and we soon learned that the cavalry were hotly engaged. The G.O.C. sent for the 1st corps and we at once set a trot to join in the fray.

On arrival at the spot we found that the enemy had allowed the cavalry advance party to enter well in between a range of kopjes and then opened a raging fire on them, killing and wounding nearly all of the men who had been so unfortunate as to form part of this advance party.

The 1st and 2nd Battalions Canadian Mounted Rifles were at once ordered to make a detour and try to turn the enemy's right flank, which they eventually did. The 1st Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles occupied for the night the kopje which commanded the pass.

BROEDER-STROOM.

The next day, 4th June, the 1st Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles being in occupation of the main kopje, which covered the advance of the division, were ordered to form the rear guard and follow after all the troops and baggage had gone through the pass.

The Mounted Infantry Brigade bivouacked on the night of the 4th at Broeder-Stroom, with the exception of the 1st Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles, who had to bring up the rear and could not get up to the brigade camp, so had to remain another night in position, holding the kopjes commanding the pass.

There were several hills and spruits to pass, and the baggage and ammunition column had a hard time to get through this place.

ZANDFONTEIN.

During the whole of the 5th June, the 1st Battalion was again kept as a rear guard. The road which the division had now to follow was good and level, and as there was no enemy to check our advance, the transport got well up and the whole of the division bivouacked that night at Zandfontein, which was only three miles north-west of Pretoria.

On arrival at Zandfontein we learned that we were in possession of Pretoria and that Lord Roberts had entered the town the same day.

KOUDOESPOORT.

On the 6th June the Mounted Infantry Brigade marched through the streets of Pretoria on its way to Koudoespoort, which is situated about seven miles east of the town.

The 1st and 3rd Mounted Infantry corps remained in camp at Koudoespoort the 6th, 7th and 8th June.

KAMEEL-DRIFT.

On the 9th June, at 7 a.m., the brigade marched to Kameel-Drift, and remained there until the 11th June.

KAMEEL-FONTEIN.

At 6 a.m. on the 11th the cavalry division and Mounted Infantry Brigade advanced toward Kameel-Fontein. Intelligence had come in that the Boers under DeLarey and Grobler, were in strength holding kopjes N. N.-E. and E. of Kameel-Drift.

A general advance took place and the cavalry division with Mounted Infantry were to turn the enemy's right.

The cavalry division with Mounted Infantry Brigade were so weak, having lost many horses during the rapid advance to Pretoria, that we failed to accomplish our purpose. We barely managed to hold our own for two consecutive days of hard fighting, in which the 1st and 2nd Battalions were engaged in holding important kopjes, which at times were only at from 500 to 800 yards from the enemy.

The main body, under Lord Roberts, were more successful, and forced the enemy to retire, thus relieving us from a very awkward position.

The Mounted Infantry Brigade were ordered to advance to Brockenhoutskloop-Drift, where we bivouacked for the night.

DERDEPOORT.

On the 13th June, at 6.30 a.m. the Mounted Infantry Brigade returned to Derdepoort, which is situated about seven miles east of Pretoria.

On the 16th June a column of mounted infantry and artillery and a battalion of infantry, under Major General E. T. H. Hutton, marched from Derdepoort to Rustenberg.

One squadron, made up of the fit men and horses of the 1st Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles, accompanied the above expedition.

This detachment distinguished itself during the expedition, in that it captured two Boer guns.

Major General Hutton in the course of a letter addressed to the Military Secretary, Headquarters, under par. 2, says :—"I desire to bring to the favourable notice of the Commander-in-Chief, Lieutenant Young, Sergeant Ryan and Sergeant Purdon, and a detachment of the 1st Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles (now Royal Canadian Dragoons), also Sergeant Vaughan and Private Murchie, Remington's Guides, for their pluck and enterprise in cleverly surprising the enemy, and bringing away the guns, under difficult circumstances."

The above with other documents were mentioned in General Orders 84, October, 1900.

The remainder of the brigade, including what was left of the 1st Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles, remained in camp.

I must here draw your attention to the marvellous way in which we had escaped so far, having no casualties in killed and wounded. The regiment had been continually fighting with the 1st Mounted Infantry Corps, ever since it left Bloemfontein, and had often been exposed to very heavy firing, and yet the luck seemed to stay with us, as there were no casualties, except perhaps a few men grazed and a few horses killed or wounded.

I must note especially the Zand River, Klip River and Kame l Fontein fights, where every one who saw us in the middle of the fights thought our casualties would have been heavy, but were surprised on hearing that they were practically nil.

THE PYRAMIDS.

On the 30th June, at 4 p.m., a force as described below, and under my command, were ordered to occupy a position in the neighbourhood of the western end of the kopjes known as the Pyramids, at a distance of about seven miles west of the Pietersberg Railway (near Waterval).

	Men.
Regular Mounted Infantry	100
1st Battalion Canadian Mounted Rifles	50
New Zealand Mounted Rifles	50
	200

The object of the above force was to cover the approach to Pretoria from Hebron and north-west, and prevent the Boers inside Pretoria from communicating with the enemy without.

Helio communication was established with Pretoria which was about eighteen miles distant.

On the 3rd July this small force returned to Derdepoort, having accomplished the object for which it had been sent out.

RIETVLEIFONTEIN.

The regiment marched off with the 1st Mounted Infantry corps at 7 a.m., on the 4th July, and arrived at Rietvleifontein at 4 p.m. No enemy in sight.

At 8.30 p.m., on the 5th July, the 1st Mounted Infantry Corps, who had by this time joined General Mahon's force, left Rietvleifontein and after having marched about 12 miles the column was halted.

We bivouacked here, but the horses remained saddled and men slept with their arms and accoutrements.

RIETFONTEIN.

The column again resumed its march at daybreak and at about 5 p.m. arrived at Rietfontein.

During the day 'A' Squadron C. M. R., were sent as an escort to two R. H. A. guns, which were ordered to shell a ridge where a small party of Boers had been seen and had fired on our flankers.

OLIPHANTSFONTEIN.

At 8 a.m., the 1st Mounted Infantry Corps marched towards Oliphantsfontein following the Standerton road, a Boer laager being reported at the latter place.

The 1st C. M. R. were escort to the R. H A. guns.

The enemy were found in force at Oliphantsfontein, and shelling commenced on both sides. The G. O. C. finding the enemy too strong, ordered a retirement on Rietfontein.

The regiment had that day one officer, (Capt. Nelles) and seven men wounded and five horses killed and wounded.

From the 6th until 11th July inclusive, the regiment remained with 1st Mounted Infantry Corps at Rietfontein, where we were practically surrounded and worried by the enemy for six consecutive days.

The regiment during that time was employed either on outpost duty or escort to guns.

Lieut. F. V. Young was slightly wounded during one of these fights at Witklip.

WITTPOORT—KOFFYSPRUIT—OLIPHANTSFONTEIN—RIETVLEI.

At 2 p m. on the 11th July a portion of the cavalry division under General French arrived, and at daybreak next day a general advance on the Boer position took place, which covered a range of hills called Wittpoort, Koffyspruit, Oliphantsfontein.

The advance was most successful, and in a few hours the enemy were in full retreat.

The same night, General French, with cavalry division, and General Mahon, with 3rd Mounted Infantry and I. L. H., returned to Pretoria.

General Hutton established a camp for his brigade at Rietvlei and we remained at latter place until a general easterly advance on Middelberg, which took place on the 23rd July.

In the meantime a line of outposts had to be kept, in which the 1st Battalion C. M. R. took their turn of duty.

On July 16, the enemy made a strong attack on our line of outposts at Wittpoort, Dorstfontein, Koffyspruit and Oliphantsfontein.

"B" Squadron 1st C.M.R. were detailed to support the Mounted Infantry outposts and "A" Squadron 1st C.M.R., formed part of a reserve of troops remaining in camp.

This reserve, under my command, was eventually sent to the left of the position (Wittpoort) to strengthen our left flank, held by New Zealanders, which had been turned by the enemy. The 2nd Battalion C.M.R., under Col. Evans, were detailed from the reserve for this special work which they successfully did, and the Boer attack was frustrated on that flank.

"B" Squadron, 1st Battalion C.M.R., was sent to the ridge on the right of Wittpoort to support the Royal Irish Fusiliers who were holding the Poort.

It was here that, on the advance being ordered, the following casualties occurred :

Lieut. H. L. Borden, killed.
" J. F. Burch, "
No. 61, Pte. A. W. Brown, wounded.
" 175, " L. N. R. Mulloy, "

With reference to the above, the following letter was received by me from the O.C. Royal Irish Fusiliers :—

RIETVLEI, July 17, 1900.

DEAR COLONEL LESSARD,

In the few words I spoke to you to-night at the funeral of your two very gallant officers, I am afraid I failed to convey the deep gratitude my regiment owes to the 1st Canadian Mounted Rifles (now R.C.D.) for their gallantry in going so nobly and fearlessly to the succor of our beleaguered detachment at Wittpoort yesterday.

The counter attack your regiment made occurred at a most critical moment, and it doubtless saved many of the lives of our detachment.

We deplore greatly the losses you have sustained and shall ever bear in grateful memory the gallantry and self sacrifice of the 1st C. M. R. on this occasion.

I shall deem it a great favour if you will kindly convey to your officers, N.C officers and men the purport of this letter.

Yours very faithfully,

(Sgd.) JOHN REEVES, Col.,
Comdg. 2nd Battn. (Princess Victoria's) Royal Irish Fusiliers.

Copy of telegram sent by Major General E. T. H. Hutton, to Military Secretary Army Headquarters, "Please inform Commander in Chief that Lieutenant H. L. Borden, one of the officers 1st C.M.R., killed in action Rietvlei yesterday was only son of the Honourable F. W. Borden, Minister of Militia, Canada.

"Lieuts. Borden and Burch 1st C.M.R., were killed yesterday while gallantly leading their Canadians in a counter attack upon the enemy's flank at a critical juncture of their assault upon our position at Wittpoort. I have twice brought the name of Lieutenant Borden to the Commander in Chief's notice in my despatches for intrepid and gallant conduct. The funeral takes place to-night and both of these officers are buried near the farm at Riet Vlei."

On the 20th July the following telegram was received by General Hutton, commanding 1st Mounted Infantry Brigade, from Lord Roberts :—

"Secretary of State for War communicates to me Her Majesty's wish that before returning to their respective colonies, representative contingents from each colony should visit the mother country, probably to be reviewed personally by her and receive a banner to be presented to each contingent, to be held in future by the corps to which it belongs. Contingents from South Africa are naturally included in this invitation. Please communicate this to all officers commanding colonial contingents within your command, and telegraph me as speedily as possible the number of men who would wish to avail themselves of the offer, naming regiment. It will probably be necessary to limit the number, but I cannot decide on that until I know the number likely to accept. Kindly acknowledge receipt.

"(Sd.) ROBERTS."

The parade ordered to find out the number likely to avail themselves of this offer, resulted in all who were present wishing to avail themselves of this opportunity.

BOSCHPOORT.

At 6 a.m. on the 23rd July, the 1st Mounted Infantry Brigade left their old camp at Rietvlei and marched to Boschpoort, arriving at the latter place at 7 p.m., where we bivouacked for the night.

During the advance the 1st Canadian Mounted Rifles formed the advance guard, to begin with, then afterwards were flank guard. We came in touch with the enemy at 12.30 p.m., and at 4 p.m., and both times the enemy retired. No casualties to report.

VLAKFONTEIN.

On the 24th July, the column moved off at 5.45 a.m., and marched to Vlakfontein, where it halted for the night.

The brigade on this day came in touch with the enemy's rear guard at 3 p.m. Nothing unusual to report; the enemy retiring all this time.

NAAUWPOORT.

At 5.45 a.m., on the 25th July, the brigade marched off and arrived at Naauwpoort at 7.30 p.m., and bivouacked here for the night.

On this day "B" Squadron, 1st Canadian Mounted Rifles, formed a rear guard to brigade transport and 5-inch guns.

GOOD HOPE FARM.

The brigade moved at 6 a.m. on the 26th July, and arrived at Good Hope Farm at 9 p.m. Bivouacked here. Nothing to report.

MIDDELBERG.

On the 27th July, the brigade marched off at daybreak and arrived at Middelberg at 3 p.m.

From the 28th July until the 25th August, the regiment was kept on the lines of communication between Middelberg and Belfast, and was detailed to hold the following places at different times as follows:—

At Buffelskloof	31st July
Doornkop	1st August
Bankfontein from	2nd to 6th	"
Pan Station	6th to 11th	"
Nooitgedacht	11th to 13th	"
Pan Station	13th to 15th	"
Leeuwfontein	15th to 17th	"
Nooitgedacht	17th to 23rd	"
Belfast	25th	"

The regiment formed part of the reserve during the three days' fighting at Belfast-Bergundal.

From the 25th August until the 23rd November, the date on which the regiment left Belfast for Pretoria, en route for Cape Town, thence to Canada, we were employed on several detached duties, such as reconnaissances, patrolling, and also used as the mounted troops to General Smith-Dorrien's Flying Column.

As it would not be of interest to the public to relate the daily routine of the regiment, I shall give the more important events which occurred during the above mentioned dates.

On the 27th August, the following extract from Army Orders of the 21st August was published for information :—

'In view of the representation that nearly all the officers and a large proportion of the men serving in the unit known as the 1st Battalion, Canadian Mounted Rifles, belong to the Royal Canadian Dragoons, that unit will in future be designated the 'Royal Canadian Dragoons.' (Authority W.O. letter, No. 58, 2,396, 24, 7, '00.)

On the 30th August a force, as under, was ordered to parade under command of Lieut.-Colonel Lessard :—

Royal Canadian Dragoons, 85 men.
Two companies Royal Irish, 120.
Two Royal Canadian Artillery guns.
Two machine guns.

The object of this force was to make a reconnaissance in the Steelport Valley between Spitzkop and Boschpoort.

Wires had been sent by the G.O.C. to Wonderfontein and Nooitgedacht, where the Canadian Mounted Rifles were stationed, to connect with us at a stated hour.

At the last moment orders were given that the Royal Canadian Dragoons, with two machine guns, were alone to undertake the reconnaissance from Belfast.

At 7 a.m., the little force left Belfast, and at about 11 a.m. came in touch with the enemy.

We fully expected that the forces at Wonderfontein and Nooitgedacht would have connected with us, but they failed to do so, not having received the telegrams sent by the General.

For about two hours we were in a very precarious position ; our retreat was cut off and we were forced to fight our way and retreat towards Wonderfontein.

On that day I had no casualties as to men, but had several horses wounded.

On the 8th September, Lieutenant A. L. Howard, with five non-commissioned officers and men, and one machine gun (colt) from the Royal Canadian Dragoons, were attached temporarily to a flying column under General Hutton, who were to proceed to Devil's Kantur.

On the 23rd September, a small patrol of the Royal Canadian Dragoons left Wonderfontein for the Boschpoort valley, and soon after leaving came in touch with the enemy.

After a short skirmish the following casualties occurred :

Killed—No. 168, Private A. M. Spence ; No. 21, Private A. Radcliff.

Wounded—No. 88, Private F. Thornton.

Some time previous to this, one machine gun with detachment from the Royal Canadian Dragoons had been lent to the Canadian Mounted Rifles stationed at Nooitgedacht, and on the 25th September I received the following letter, which speaks for itself :—

From Officer Commanding Troops, Nooitgedacht,
To Officer Commanding Royal Canadian Dragoons.

"Sir,—I have the honour to express to you my appreciation of the prompt manner in which Private Harbottle of your machine gun section carried out his duties as camp sentry yesterday morning.

"His challenge, followed by prompt action, undoubtedly prevented the camp being surprised, and reflected great credit on himself and his corps.

"I have the honour to be, sir,
"Your obedient servant,

"(Sd.) T. D. B. EVANS, Lt.-Col., Commanding Troops at Nooitgedacht."

From information received about 1st October, it was known that several small parties of Boers, numbering from 5 to 15 men each, were hovering in and around Boschpoort. At the same time information was received that the railway line was threatened between Wonderfontein and Belfast. Besides the above information, two men of the Royal Canadian Dragoons had been killed and another wounded while patrolling in the Boschpoort valley.

In consequence, 65 non-commissioned officers and men of the Royal Canadian Dragoons and two machine guns under my command paraded at 8 a.m. and proceeded to the north-west of Belfast.

The advance was towards Spitzkop, down the Steelport valley.

This small force soon got in touch with the enemy, who had taken up positions in two places at Boschpoort and Klipfontein.

After a good deal of firing on both sides, the enemy evacuated their positions and retired to Spitzkop. At one time the enemy were re-enforced by a party of twenty Boers coming from the direction of Nooitgedacht. The left flanking patrol were in the meantime fired on from a ridge on our left front and where the enemy could be seen. Sergeant Ryan, with a few men, were sent up to take a position on our left and worked along the ridge.

Having attained the object of my reconnaissance, and also driven the enemy away from the immediate surroundings of Belfast, I ordered a retirement, which was carried out in a very satisfactory manner.

I congratulated Sergt. Ryan, R.C.D., on that day for the manner in which he carried out his instructions.

Our casualties were two horses killed and one wounded.

On the 4th October, I took command of the troops at Belfast.

On the 5th October, at 8 a.m., 60 non-commissioned officers and men of the R. C. Dragoons and one gun of the Royal Canadian Artillery, under Lieut. Morrison, the whole under my command, paraded and marched in the direction of Suikerbosch Kop for a reconnaissance of the enemy north and north-west of Belfast.

At 10 a.m., the scouts of this little force got in touch with the enemy, who occupied positions at two or three places at Weltefreden, about 7 miles north of Belfast.

The usual precautions were then taken, and a general advance took place. After a little fighting, the enemy retired and took successive positions behind rocks.

The artillery came into action three or four times.

The enemy were pushed back and evacuated several ridges until they reached Spitzkop.

At 2 p.m. I was then satisfied as to the strength and position of the enemy, and I returned to Belfast.

Our casualties on that day were: No. 143, Pte. P. McCarthy, wounded: five horses killed and three wounded.

On the 12th October, 30, men of the Royal Canadian Dragoons: one Colt, under Lieut. Howard; and one field gun, R.C.A., under Lieut Morrison, paraded under my command at 12.30 p.m.

An intelligence man had brought in the news from the vicinity of Carolina that he had seen close to his farm about 300 Boers, and that they had shot at him.

The above small force marched off at the time appointed, and at 2 p.m. it reached the heights south west of Belfast overlooking the farm where the Boers had been seen. Every farm was thoroughly searched, and after I had reports from the patrols sent in different directions, to the effect that no enemy were in sight, I gave orders to return to Belfast.

With reference to above, it was learnt afterwards that the Boers had come to where the man had reported them to be, but retired before we arrived on the scene.

On the 14th October, I received the following telegram from No. 6 Yeomany hospital, Pretoria: "Capt. Pearse is dangerously ill with tuberculosis."

During the fourteen days I had command of the troops at Belfast we had very exciting times. Information was being continually brought in by spies and reconnaissances, &c., that a Boer commando was concentrating N. of Belfast under Louis Botha and another S. of Belfast under Prinsloo. The former, about 400 to 500 strong, with one long tom, two field guns and one pom-pom, the latter 1,000 strong, with three field guns and one pom-pom.

General French with cavalry division left Machadodorp on the 13th October for Carolina, following the main road, while General Mahon went towards Geluk.

As soon as General Mahon arrived close to Geluk, the enemy attacked him from three sides, and he had to retire towards Delmanutha.

General Lyttleton coming down in a south-westerly direction from Lydenberg arrived at Dullstroom on the 11th October. For two consecutive days General Lyttleton's command fought the enemy N. of Belfast.

I am giving you these details to show in what a precarious position Belfast was in for a few days.

It is well known now, from information received from Boer prisoners, that the enemy intended making a dash for the railway line to raid supplies, also if possible to retake Belfast.

Thanks to the excellent work done by my regiment on outpost duties, as well as in the reconnaissances, patrolling, &c., thereby giving correct information, the Boer plans were frustrated. Then the timely arrival of Generals French and Lyttleton put an end to our anxiety.

On the 17th October, the following extracts from Column Orders by Major General E. T. H. Hutton, C.B., A.D.C., were published for general information.

GENERAL HUTTON'S FORCE BROKEN UP.

"I. The force under the command of Major General E. T. H. Hutton, C.B., A. D. C., is broken up in consequence of the conclusion of operations in the Elands Valley, Eastern Transvaal and upon the conclusion of active hostilities in South Africa.

FAREWELL REMARKS BY MAJOR-GENERAL HUTTON, C.B., A.D.C.

II. 'Major-General Hutton upon relinquishing the command of the force placed under his orders, desires to convey to the officers, non commissioned officers and men of the various units who have served under his command during the campaign, his sincere and hearty congratulations upon the success that, under Providence, has attended their efforts throughout the operations in which they have been engaged.

'The units of the imperial troops selected for service with the mounted infantry and those of the colonial mounted troops, representative of Canada, of the six colonies of Australia and of New Zealand have alike distinguished themselves by their steadiness under fire, by their gallantry in the field, and by their uniform good conduct in camp.

'The mutual sympathy, admiration and good will which have been so conspicuous between the imperial and colonial troops comprising his command must, in the Major General's opinion, be necessarily conducive to that unity and solidarity of feeling, which is so important and essential a factor in the success of the army of the British Empire.

"The Major General especially desires to record his appreciation and thanks for the excellent services rendered by all members of the staff connected with his force, both imperial and colonial, but especially to Lieut.-Colonel Martyr, D.S.O., Chief Staff Officer, and those of his Headquarter's Staff.

DEPARTURE OF MAJOR GENERAL HUTTON, C.B., A.D.C.

III. 'Major-General Hutton, accompanied by Lieut.-Colonel Onslow, N.S.W.M.I., A.D.C., and Lieut. Fox, Q.M.I., extra A.D.C., proceed to-day to Cape Town en route to England.

PRETORIA, October 8, 1900.

On the 19th October, a telegram from Pretoria was received by me reporting the death of Captain C. St. A. Pearse on the evening of the 17th October of tuberculosis.

On the 26th October, information was received through Intelligence Department that 300 Boers with one gun were to attack Delmanutha that morning.

In consequence fifty N.-C. O's. and men of the Royal Canadian Dragoons with one machine gun under Lieut. A. H. King, paraded at 3 a.m., and made a reconnaissance to the E. and S. E. of Belfast.

They proceeded about 10 miles in the direction mentioned, and made a thorough search of all the surrounding farms, but failed to locate the enemy.

On the 28th October, a party of sixteen N. C. O's. and men of the Royal Canadian Dragoons under Lieut. A. H. King, paraded at 2 a.m., and surrounded a farm house situated about 5 miles south of Belfast, but found that the enemy had vacated the house.

On the 29th of October, I received the following letter from Major General E. T. H. Hutton, C.B., A.D.C. :—

CAPE TOWN, October 14, 1900.

MY DEAR COLONEL,—"I am leaving for England on the 17th, and although I shall hope to see you, your officers and your men in London before the end of the year, I cannot sail without sending you a few words of congratulation upon all the success which has attained your regiment while under my command in the late campaign."

"It must be with real feeling of satisfaction that your officers and yourself look back upon the result of the last seven months, and Canada has good reason to be proud of the manner in which your regiment has upheld the reputation of Canadian troops."

"It has been the lot of your regiment, composed as it is of representative detachments from nearly all the cavalry regiments in the Canadian Militia, to illustrate what the type of Colonel Mounted Rifles can accomplish in conjunction with Imperial Mounted Infantry and when acting with regular cavalry."

"Nothing can be more certain than the impossibility of raising militia cavalry to the standard of regular cavalry, but it has been demonstrated and clearly proved that organized as Mounted Rifles, our colonies can put into the field a force of men of the utmost value. I devoutly hope that this fact will be brought home, not only to every man in the Dominion Militia Cavalry, but also to the Canadian people and Canadian public opinion.

"You have had the inestimable advantage of serving under Colonel Alderson, and of learning what mounted troops, when handled with judgment, skill and dash, can do. It has been a constant pleasure to me to note how excellently your regiment has profited by its opportunities and what real good service it has performed.

"The loss in killed and wounded has been abnormally small considering the number of actions in which your regiment has been engaged, this fact under the circumstances is a guarantee in itself that the officers have done well, and the men their part as fighting men.

"I shall be glad if you will convey to your officers and men my sincerest congratulations upon the success throughout the campaign, and my hope for their happy return to their homes.

"Please tell your officers that Mrs. Hutton will be so glad to welcome any of them who are in London, at our house, 34 Eaton Place, where I shall hope to see you.

"Wishing you Godspeed.

'Believe me,

'Yours sincerely,

'(Sgd.) E. T. H. HUTTON, Major General.

'To Lieut.-Colonel LESSARD,

'Comdg. Royal Canadian Dragoons

'(late 1st C.M.R.)'

At 11 p.m., on the 30th October, forty N.C.O's and men, in two parties of twenty men each, paraded under Lieutenants King and Cockburn for the purpose of surrounding two farms which were situated some four or five miles S.E. of Belfast.

The farms were surrounded and two armed Boers were captured. One of these was shot through the arm in attempting to escape.

VAN WYKS VLEI.

The regiment under my command marched out at 5.30 p.m., on the 1st November, proceeding to the place of rendezvous, the railway station, joining the column under Lt.-Col. Spens. This column forming part of the force under General Smith-Dorrien.

The remainder of General Smith-Dorrien's force, under his personal command were to operate in a south-easterly direction, and our column (Col. Spens') in a south-westerly direction.

The objective being Van Wyks Vlei, and if possible Wilkloof.

It was very dark and raining when the column started, but shortly after, the most awful weather commenced, cold and a steady downpour, but as the columns were miles apart and working to support each other, neither could retire.

Heavy rain, cold piercing wind, thick misty weather and frightfully dark, made the night march most difficult.

At 1 a.m., on the 2nd November, the column was ordered to halt, to wait for daybreak, and my regiment furnished the outposts.

At this juncture I do not think there was a man in the whole column who was not drenched through, and who little thought of seeing home again. For my part I must admit that I have never, nor could ever imagine it possible to pass such a miserable night.

At daybreak the column resumed its march, but it was most difficult for the men to take any interest in their work as they were so cold and miserable. I have seen men who could not mount their horses they were so stiffened with cold.

The regiment furnished the advance guard and flanking patrols to the column and our movements were a complete surprise to the enemy, but the thick weather favoured the latter.

Before reaching Van Wyks Vlei, the enemy fired on the right of our advance guard, which fire seemed to come from a farm house about two miles distant. I despatched a troop under Lieutenant Turner to make good this house, which, when surrounded, proved to be empty. The enemy was occupying the ridge above and behind the house, but retired on the approach of our men.

Both columns (General Smith-Dorrien's and Colonel Spens'), reached Van Wyks Vlei at 7 a.m., and although in touch with the enemy, the General decided to fall back on Belfast, which by this time was about eighteen miles off, owing to the inclemency of the weather and the frightful state the men and horses were in.

The two columns then retired north, the Royal Canadian Dragoons forming a rear guard to Colonel Spens' column, which preceded that of General Smith-Dorrien.

On reaching a spruit (creek) it was found that the Boers were pressing very closely on the Gordon Highlanders, who were a rear guard to Smith-Dorrien's column. At this time 1 officer and 12 men of the Gordons were wounded.

Anticipating that the Boers would likely seize the ridge commanding the spruit where the artillery were crossing in file, I despatched one troop and Colt gun, under Lieutenant King, to take up a position commanding ridge and covering spruit.

This move was most successful, and the enemy were kept at a respectable distance from the Highlanders.

I must emphasize here on the importance of the little Colt gun for such work. It is most deadly and can be kept firing to the last minute, and finally can be retired at full gallop with little or no chance of being hit, as it offers practically no target. It is so small that only one horse is required to drag it.

Both columns arrived in camp at 4 p.m., utterly exhausted by cold and rain, a steady rear guard action having been fought all through.

CASUALTIES.

No. 203, Private A. McDonald, wounded.

Two horses killed and several wounded.

On the 3rd November about forty men of the Royal Canadian Dragoons paraded sick with rheumatism contracted during the night march of the 1st and 2nd November. Their hands, arms and legs were swollen and some of them were in a very bad state.

On the 6th November, General Smith-Dorrien wishing to take up and complete the work which he had left unfinished three days previous, marched out at 3 a.m., the objective being Witkloof and the Komati river, with the following troops :—

Royal Canadian Dragoons, Squadron, 5th Lancers, 2 Pom Poms, 2 guns Royal Canadian Artillery, 4 companies Shrops. Light Infantry.	Advance troops under Col. Lessard.	Advance guard under Col. Spens.
Canadian Mounted Rifles, 4 guns, 84th Battery, R.F.A 2 5-inch guns, Royal Engineers section, 4 companies Shrops. Light infantry, 2 companies Suffolks, Bearer Company.		Main column.
Baggage 2 companies Suffolks, 20 N.C.O. and men, 5th Lancers.		Rear guard under senior officer.

The following is a copy of the telegram published by the General Officer Commanding on the two days fighting on the 6th and 7th November, and I cannot improve on it :—

"Force has returned here this morning, having had two successful days of extremely hard fighting. Object was to destroy farms which Boers use as outposts and camps and from which they fought on the 2nd instant, as well as to clear their laagers from Witkloof (421) and Liliefontein (22). Force left Belfast at 3.30 a.m. on 6th, and Boers opposed us first at Eersterlingfontein at 7.40 a.m. Then they hung on our front, flanks and rear like Cossacks, but we steadily forced them back across Van Wyks Vlei (96) until they stood at an immensely strong position along the Komati, extending from Witkloof to Liliefontein. There they made a most determined stand, and it was 4 p.m. before a wide movement brought the Suffolks and Canadian mounted troops (the Royal Canadian Dragoons) round their left flank and turned them out. We cleared Boers across the Komati and on all roads on far side convoy and men (Boers) moved away towards Carolina. All day in all directions signal fires were springing up. I have already reported casualties six killed, twenty wounded, mostly Shropshires, who fought splendidly. On the 7th, instead of crossing Komati, which I had led Boers to expect by moving on, and camping at Liliefontein after driving them away, we turned E. along N. bank. At once several hundred Boers galloped back to seize old positions on Komati, but too late, as with great dash Col. Evans with Canadian Mounted Rifles and two guns (84th) under Major Guiness, galloped two miles and got key of position and held some 300 in river bed. The 5 inch guns at the same time did splendid practice at masses of Boers in open. As Boers were working down Komati, I sent orders to Col. Spens, commanding advanced guard, to seize high ground at Van Wyks Vlei, which he did with 5th Lancers under Capt. Collis.

"It was soon evident that the Boers had been largely reinforced since yesterday, and Col. Lessard with Royal Canadian Dragoons and two Canadian guns, latter under Lieut. Morrison, covered the rear, and I have no praise too high for the devoted gallantry they all showed in keeping enemy off infantry and convoy.

"At 2 p.m. an event unprecedented in this war occurred. Some 200 Boers suddenly charged mounted, rear guard and guns, firing wildly off their horses right up to 70 yards from our dismounted dragoons.

The fact that our total casualties in the day were only 14, shows how wild their fire was.

"I have several names to bring to the C. in C's. notice for devoted gallantry, some will be recommended for the V. C. The Boers behaved splendidly to the 16 Canadians, some of them wounded, who remained for a few hours in their hands when they were released. The latter report the Boer losses very heavy.

"After Canadians repulsed Boers there, latter worked wider round in very large numbers, but our guns did magnificent work often into masses of them, and they never again seriously molested us. We camped at Blyvoortzich (12) at 4 p.m, We fired 563 shells besides pom poms. Our casualties second day were, 2 killed, 12 wounded. We burned 12 farms, captured one prisoner, 14 cattle, 350 sheep, 19 horses and killed a lot of Boers.

Copy of morning order by Major General Smith-Dorrien D. S. O., 9th November, 1900.

"The summary of news published with force orders of yesterday, was a copy of a telegram from the G. O. C. sent to the chief of staff on the recent two days fighting, and the following copy of telegram is the reply thereto.

"From Lord Roberts to General Smith-Dorrien, November 8th, No. C 6146. You seem to have had two most successful days with enemy, and I congratulate you and all your troops on the admirable manner in which the operations were carried out. Colonel Lessard, with his Canadians, had a difficult task in guarding the rear on your return march, and deserves great credit, as do all who were with him."

By order,

(Sgd.) F. WELDON, Capt.
C.S.O. Smith-Dorrien's Force.

The casualties for the Royal Canadian Dragoons, I am sorry to say were heavy, considering that I had less than one hundred men of all ranks with me. They were as follows :—

KILLED.

No. 26, Corporal E A. Filson.
No. 102, Act. Lce. Corpl. W. J. Anderson.

DIED OF WOUNDS.

No. 105, Sergt. N. D. Builder.

SEVERELY WOUNDED.

Lieut. J. H. Elmsley.
Lieut. R. E. W. Turner.
No. 30, Sergt. F. F. Metcalfe.
No. 42, Pte. H. H. Loosemore.
No. 157, Pte. W. Dougall.
No. 327, Pte. A. H. Roberts.
No. 185, Pte. W. A. Kinsley.

SLIGHTLY WOUNDED.

Lieut. H. Z. C. Cockburn.
No. 312, Sergt. Far. C. E. Cope.
No. 370, Private F. Berg.
No. 225, Private G. Richardson.

Pte. A. H. Roberts begged of me to report him as only slightly wounded on account of his mother. On consideration of this request I did so. He was shot through both wrists.

Lieut Cockburn is still in performance of his duties

I must also mention that we saved our two Canadian guns in the nick of time. The Boers, who charged with great dash, were at one time only about fifty yards from the guns. Had we not held out as long as we did, not only would the guns have been captured, but we would probably have lost the greater part of the baggage column, besides causing a great many casualties amongst the infantry who were retiring and consequently at a disadvantage with the enemy who were splendidly mounted. The regiment had a most difficult task to perform, but acted with the utmost gallantry, especially two troops left behind to cover the retreat of the guns, which comprised a portion of the 2nd troop 'A' Squadron and 2nd troop 'B' Squadron.

Their behaviour was most gratifying to me, as it must have been to themselves.

The following telegram was also received from General Alderson, our late Corps Commander.

From Gen. Alderson, to Col. Lessard.

Pretoria, Nov. 9, T 25—"To-day's summary of news received, my best congratulations. I hope the wounded are doing well."

On November 9, orders were received from the G. O. C. to hold ourselves in readiness to proceed to Pretoria.

The following special orders were published by Major General H. L. Smith-Dorrien D.S.O.

Commanding Pan to Dalmanutha.

HEADQUARTERS, Belfast, November 20, 1900.

"Major General Smith-Dorrien cannot allow the Royal Canadian Dragoons and the left section, "D" Battery, Royal Candian Artillery, and the Canadian Mounted Rifles, to leave his command en route for Canada, without thanking them for the grand work they have performed for him in the Belfast Flying Column.

In eight of the last nineteen days they have been engaged with the Boers, and have proved themselves splendidly brave and mobile mounted troops, and it has afforded the Major General much pleasure to have been able to send through General the Honourable N. Lyttelton to the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, detailed accounts of their splendid feats of arms and to have been able to bring to the special notice of the Commander-in-Chief five officers and seven non-commissioned officers and men for distinguished conduct in the field during these operations.

In wishing them all "good-bye and good-luck" he has no words to express how great a loss they will be to the flying column. He can merely say that he would choose no other mounted troops in the world before them if he had his choice, and he sincerely hopes the day may come when he may have them again under his command."

By order,

(Sgd.) F. WELDON, Capt.
C.S.O. Smith-Dorrien's Force.

On December 6, the following letter was received by me from Br. General E. A. H. Alderson:

My Dear Lessard—"I have just come back from the station where I went to see your people off, but owing to the washing away of a bridge in the storm of last night they did not actually go, but it made me realize how soon they would do so, and I should like to write and tell you how very sincerely sorry I am that they will so soon cease to belong to the Mounted Infantry brigade."

"For just 7 months we have soldiered together, and each succeeding month my feeling has been 'the more I get to know the 1st C. M. R. (I must call them by the name I knew them best by) the better I like them.'

"We in the regular army, are brought up with cut and dried ideas and red tape, and I should like to say how much I appreciate the ready way in which those of your people who have not been so brought up, have fallen in with my ways.

"I have only put in a very brief order in Brigade Orders about your going, as I do not think that orders are quite the place to express one's sincere feelings; but I hope you will make what use you like of this letter and that you will let all your people know how very sincerely for myself and for the Brigade I regret their going (though I am glad for their sakes) and also how thoroughly I appreciate all the excellent work they have done.

I have always been proud to speak of them and write home of them as 'My Canadians.'"

Yours very sincerely

(Sgd.) E. A. H. ALDERSON, Br. General.

GENERAL REMARKS.

HORSES.

The Canadian horses were good ones and did very well considering all the hardships they had to undergo and the heavy weights they had to carry.

A few of them were still in the regiment when we left the front for home.

DISPOSITION OF CANADIAN HORSES.

Died of exhaustion, killed in action, or destroyed	194
Rendered unfit for duty and left behind at different stations	123

ARMS.

The regiment was armed with the long rifle, and although I fully recognize the importance of all mounted troops being armed with such a rifle in the campaign, yet I must report against the Lee-Enfield as being too heavy for a man to carry during a long hot day's work.

The men complained to me about it and often asked to be allowed to carry the rifle in the bucket, but this was against the G. O. C's. orders. General Hutton was of the opinion that if a man was allowed to carry his rifle in the bucket, he would after a while lean on it, and this giving an uneven bearing to the saddle on the horse's back, would give a sore back.

Could we not have a rifle shorter and lighter than the Lee-Enfield which would answer the same purpose and yet not be a burden to the man?

REVOLVERS.

Revolvers were also issued to the regiment, but at no time during the campaign could they have used them. It was only an additional weight to the already overburdened man and horse, so I ordered them to be returned into store.

MACHINE GUNS.

Two machine guns were attached to the regiment, viz.:—One Colt gun and one Maxim. The Colt gun proved to be the better of the two for the following reasons:—

1. It is light and only requires one horse to drag it.
2. It can be brought into action quickly, and quite close to the enemy.
3. It never clogs.
4. It does not require a water jacket, having a gas check.
5. If caught by the enemy at close quarters, the gun can be detached from the carriage quite easily and carried away on the saddle. This was done at least on two occasions in the regiment during the campaign.

Disadvantages of the Maxim in Comparison with the Colt gun.

1. Being too heavy and cumbersome, and it requires at least four horses to drag it.
2. On account of its weight, it cannot be brought up into action as quickly and as close as the Colt.
3. It often clogs.
4. The water jacket requires to be filled continually with water to keep the barrel cool.

Disadvantages of the Colt gun.

The Dundonald carriage and wheels are not strong enough.

This could be easily remedied by a stronger carriage and wheels.

TRANSPORT.

The transport wagons were good ones, and made of good material.

They stood the hard work splendidly, and were far superior to the Imperial wagons. I should like to recommend that sideboards be placed on the sides of the wagons to facilitate loading, at the same time these sideboards would admit of taking larger loads.

In my opinion mules are more adaptable for transport work than horses.

DRAFTS.

I would recommend that if mounted troops are ever sent on active service again, drafts should be got ready at home and sent to their respective units to fill up casualties, &c.

The total strength of my regiment was supposed to be of all ranks, including transfers, &c., 381.

Yet a skeleton state which I sent in to General Smith-Dorrien on November 12, may prove of interest to the public.

Skeleton State, November 12, 1900: Officers, 3, other ranks, 83.

The above figures show what was left of 21 officers, including two attached, and 381 of other ranks at the beginning of operations.

There are several officers, non-commissioned officers and men whom I happen to know have been brought to the notice of the Commander-in-Chief, and I should also like to mention their names here:

Major W. Forester, commanding 'A' Squadron.
" V. A. S. Williams " 'B' "
Capt. C. M. Nelles, Adjutant.
Lieut. H. L. Borden, 'B' "
" R. E. W. Turner " "
" H. Z. C. Cockburn, 'A' "
" J. H. Elmsley, " "
" F. V. Young, 'B' "
" J. E. Burch, S.S. Officer (attached).
" A. L. Howard, in charge of machine gun.
No. 410—Sergt. R. H. Ryan.
151 " E. L. Purden.
176 " E. J. Holland.
105 " N. D. Builder.
185—Private W. A. Knisley.

In addition to the above, I wish to mention and bring before the notice of the General Officer Commanding the Canadian militia, the following officers:—

Surgeon Major H. R. Duff, for zeal and assiduousness in his work, as well as personal bravery, while attending to the wounded in the field.

Lieut. Jas. H. Elmsley, for ability in carrying out my instructions at all times, and for conspicuous gallantry in the field on several occasions.

In conclusion, I would like to thank all the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the regiment under my command for the excellent work they have performed and the assistance they have given me throughout the campaign.

No words of praise from me can adequately express to you as I would wish, the untiring zeal and the determination of purpose to surmount obstacles, displayed by all, and the very evident intention of all ranks from the moment we took the field to meet the hardships and privations of this, the most severe campaign in modern history, without a murmur.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

F. L. LESSARD, Lt.-Col.,
Late Com. R. C. D.

REPORT D.

From Officer Commanding Canadian Mounted Rifles to the Adjutant General, Canada.

H. M. TRANSPORT, 'ROSLIN CASTLE,' January 3, 1901.

SIR,—I have the honour, in compliance with instructions received through the Canadian Staff Officer, Cape Town, to submit the following report with reference to the Battalion under my command:—

THE VOYAGE OUT.

On January 27, 1900, the battalion (less 4th troop, 'C' squadron) sailed on the ss. Pomeranian from Halifax, arriving at Cape Town on February 26, and disembarked on the 28th. Room not being available on the ship, 4th troop, 'C' squadron, with horses, was detailed to sail by the Milwaukee with the 1st Battalion.

During the voyage all time not occupied with the care of the horses was devoted to drill, revolver and Morris tube practice. The horses, although crowded into a small space, were landed in Cape Town with a loss of only 9. When it is considered that these horses were taken off the ranches in mid-winter, shipped nearly 3,000 miles by rail, and 6,500 miles by sea, it reflects great credit upon the quality of the horse, the care taken of them by the men and the very excellent management of Vet.-Lieut. Riddell.

CAPE TOWN.

The Battalion remained in Cape Town 9 days, completing equipment and drilling. The condition of the horses after so long and difficult a journey under severe climatic conditions demanded at least a month's rest, with liberal diet, to fit them for hard work. However, marching orders were received, and the horses entered the most difficult work of the campaign under unfavourable conditions.

CARNARVON FIELD FORCE

On March 8 and 9, the battalion proceeded by rail to Victoria West Road, and by route march to Carnarvon, where it became a portion of the Carnarvon Field Force, organized under Col. Sir Charles Parsons, for the purpose of making a demonstration through the rebellious portion of Northern Cape Colony. This expedition involved the most difficult marching of the campaign, chiefly through the Karoo desert country, and was a severe test of the spirit and physique of both men and horses. For a large portion of this period the daily forage ration consisted of 1 sheaf of oat straw, (about 2½ lbs.) and 8 lbs. whole wheat (musty) and this, together with the debilitated condition of the horses after the long sea voyage, was the cause of heavy mortality. Continuous and heavy rains also added to the discomfort of men and horses. The N.C.O's. and men stood this very severe physical test most successfully.

The Battalion reached DeAar on April 14, having marched 700 miles during the previous month under conditions of food, forage, roads and weather, far more severe than any subsequently met with during the campaign.

Lieut.-Col. Herchmer was invalided on March 20, Major Howe taking over command of the battalion. The Battalion proceeded from DeAar by rail to Norval's Pont, and by route march to Bloemfontein, which was reached April 29.

GENERAL ADVANCE.

'C' squadron and headquarter's staff marched into Bloemfontein on April 29, and was embodied in the 1st M. I. corps of the 1st Mounted Infantry Brigade, under command of Maj.-Gen. Hutton. 'D' squadron joined the brigade on the 4th.

The command of the Battalion (now complete) was taken over by Lieut.-Col. Evans on May 5.

During the advance from Bloemfontein to Kroonstadt the Battalion took a leading part in the following engagements :—Brandfort, Constantia Siding, Vett River, Zand River (May 7), Zand River (May 10). The most notable regimental feature of this advance was the night march made by a squadron composed of 2 troops each from 'C' and 'D' squadrons, under Capt. A. C Macdonell. This squadron, after a hard day's fighting, and 15 hours in the saddle, marched at 8:30 p.m. through the enemy's lines and blew up an important culvert near Smaldeel Junction, rejoining the brigade safely the following morning. This incident was mentioned in despatches. The brigade rested at Kroonstadt from May 12 to 20, during which period Lieut. Chalmers, with 50 men, took part in Col. Alderson's night ride to Bothaville, when several important prisoners were captured. The general advance was continued on the 20th, General Hutton's brigade acting in conjunction with French's column on the left flank of the whole line. During the advance from Kroonstadt to Pretoria, the battalion took part in the two days severe fighting at Klipriversberg, near Johannesburg, on May 28 and 29, and the fight at Crokodile River, near Pretoria, on June 3. For its work on May 29 in covering the withdrawal of the 1st M. I. brigade while General French was making his turning movement, the Battalion was specially complimented by Gen Hutton before the whole brigade. The brigade marched through Pretoria on the 6th inst., and after 2 days rest continued the advance on the 9th, taking part in the two days hard fighting at Diamond Hills, in which battles both squadrons were under a severe and continuous shell and rifle fire for 10 hours each day, but the cover being good the casualties were very light, consisting of 1 killed and 3 wounded. The severe wound sustained by Capt. Macdonell deprived the Battalion for the remainder of the campaign of the services of one of its most capable and efficient officers.

The Brigade returned to Pretoria on the 14th June, and on the evening of that day, at the request of the Commander-in-Chief, the Battalion was detailed for duty on the Lines of Communication between Vereeniging and Kroonstadt, which at that time were being threatened by General DeWet.

LINES OF COMMUNICATION.

The battalion was on the lines of communication between Vereeniging and Kroonstadt, including the march back to Pretoria, from the 15th June to the 15th July, being broken up into detachments, stationed at the most vulnerable points of the line. The most notable incident of this period occurred during DeWet's attack on Katbosch near Honing Spruit, where, with 1,000 men and several guns, he unsuccessfully attacked 2 Companies Shopshire Reg't., and 50 men of my Battalion under command of Lieut. Davidson. The gallant stand made against 50 of the enemy by a group of 4 men, consisting of Corp'l Morden, Corp'l Miles and Privates Kerr and Miles, was the subject of a special report by me which was published in Canadian General Orders. This act of steadfast courage, while costing the Battalion the lives of two of its best and bravest men, will always be remembered with pride in the Battalion.

At other points along the line excellent work was done by the different detachments, Lieut. Chalmers and Corporal Callaghan being specially commended by General Smith-Dorrien for smart and aggressive scouting.

During this month the Battalion marched some 500 miles, and established a good record among the various regiments with whom it came in contact. In Lieutenant Inglis, who was wounded at Honing Spruit, I lost the services of another very capable officer.

The battalion reached Irene, near Pretoria, on the 12th July, and after securing badly needed remounts and clothing, marched on the 15th July to Rietvlei, where it rejoined the Brigade.

THE ADVANCE ON MIDDELBURG.

The battalion took part in the engagement at Witpoort on the 16th July, and marched with the general advance towards Middelburg on the 23rd, coming in contact with the enemy's rear guard on that day, and the 24th, and entering Middelburg on the 27th.

LINES OF COMMUNICATION.

From the 27th July to the 22nd November the battalion was broken up into detachments, divided between Middelburg and Belfast, always in touch with large and aggressive numbers of the enemy, and performing outpost duties of an arduous and harrassing nature. Out of numerous minor engagements and operations during this period, the following 3 were most important:—The night attack made on 5th Sept. by Dirkson's commando with 2 guns, on Nooitgedacht, which was held by a Detachment of 100 men of the Battalion, Major Sanders in command. This attack of a most determined character made at daybreak, was beaten off in a most creditable manner before outside assistance arrived.

This fight was mentioned in despatches by the Commander-in-Chief. Two officers, Major Sanders and Lieut. Moodie, were slightly, and No. 109 Private D. F. Johnstone, severely wounded. I forwarded the following names to the G.O.C., for good work performed in this fight:—Major Sanders (In command) 159 Pte. D. F. Johnstone, 128 Pte. J. Geoghegan, and 235 Pte. R. J. Northway.

The engagement at Belfast on the 2nd November was an occurrence which brought out the best fighting qualities of the Battalion. The advanced guard of the column was composed of 50 N.C.O's. and men under Major Sanders, the advanced party being under Lieut. Chalmers. The advanced party was attacked by the enemy in large numbers, and Lieut. Chalmers was killed while taking steps to bring in Major Sanders who was wounded, and while in the very act of warning an orderly to dismount at a dangerous point. Lieut. Chalmers was peculiarly qualified for active service, cool, cautious and daring, and his death in so gallant a manner was keenly felt by all ranks. This incident was the subject of a special report from me, and was mentioned in despatches by the G. O. C. For plucky work on this occasion I submitted the following names to the G. O. C.:—Major Sanders, Sergt. Tryon, Corporals Herchmer and Eaton and Ptes. G. G. Smith and Hutchinson.

In the engagements at Komati river on the 6th November the Belfast Detachment took a leading part, and the work performed by it was mentioned in despatches.

During the final three months of service, the battalion headquarters scouts, the principal ones being Corporal T. Callaghan, Ptes. J. Davis Leggatt and Harris, made an excellent record for clever and useful work, and all ranks developed a capacity for fighting the Boers with Boer tactics, and were more than equal to the enemy at his own game.

The battalion concentrated at Pretoria on December 3, and entrained for Cape Town on Dec. 3, arriving at Maitland Camp on the 11th and embarking for Canada on Dec. 13.

EXTRACTS FROM DESPATCHES REFERRING TO THE BATTALION.

From General Smith-Dorrien to Commdt. Kromdraaiboog Spruit July 5.—"Very pleased that you have got rifles from Parys: am wiring Lords Roberts. Thank the Canadian M.R. from me."

From General Hutton to Lt.-Col. Evans.—"My hearty congratulations to your Canadians and yourself upon the gallantry and determination shown by the Detachment in the action on 22nd. ult. I have great pleasure in bringing the same to the notice of the Commander-in-Chief. You all have my sympathy in your losses in killed and wounded."

From the Com-in-Chief to the Maj. Gen. Commg. July 18.—"The fight on the 16th was most successful, and I heartily congratulate you and all concerned."

From G. O. C. to Col. Alderson August 9.—"I am satisfied that Corporal Callaghan and Pte. Drury together showed much pluck, daring and enterprise in the reconnaissance of the enemy's bivouac. You are to be good enough to convey to both these men of the 2nd. Battn. Can. M. Rifles, through their Commg. Officer, my extreme satisfaction at the manner in which they performed their duty on the occasion, and carried out their orders."

From General Hutton to C. S. O. September 6.—"You will convey to Major Sanders C. M. R., and through the Lt. Col. Commg. to the Officers, N. C. Officers and men concerned, my extreme satisfaction at the gallant and successful defence made by the detachment of 2nd Canadians yesterday against very superior numbers of the enemy, accompanied by artillery. I have had special pleasure in bringing the conduct of Major Sanders and his detachment to the favourable notice of the F. M. C. in Chief, in my despatch on the subject."

From Force Orders, Belfast November 4.—"The following extract from a telegram sent yesterday by the G. O. C., to Lord Roberts is published for information :—In yestesday's action Major Sanders and Lieut. Chalmers, Canadian Mounted Rifles, were wounded and killed respectively performing acts of gallantry. The former rode out under a heavy and close fire to bring in a Sergeant who had lost his horse. As the two rode off on one horse the horse was shot. Then in proceding on foot. Sanders was shot. Lieut Chalmers then advanced to Sanders, spoke to him and went away, and although Sanders who was lying behind a stone implored him not to come back to him again under the heavy fire, Lieut. Chalmers gallantly did so and was shot dead. The G. O. C., deplores the death of this splendid officer."

From Force Orders by Maj. Gen. Smith Dorrien Belfast, November 6.—"On 8th, instead of crossing Komati, which I had led Boers to expect by moving on and camping at Liliefontein after driving them away we turned East along N. Bank. At once several hundred Boers galloped back to seize old positions on Komati, but too late, as with great dash Col. Evans with Canadian Mounted Rifles and 2 guns 84th under Major Guiness, galloped 2 miles and got key of position and held some 300 in river bed."

From Maj. Gen. Hutton to Lt.-Col. Evans, Oct. 15.—"I sail for England on the 17th, but before doing so I must write you a few lines of congratulation upon the success of your battalion during the campaign, and to wish your officers and your men and yourself God speed and a happy return to Canada and your respective homes. The excellent service which your battalion has rendered, and the distinction which they have won must always be a source of pride and satisfaction to each one concerned.

Canada, and the North-west Territories in particular, have right good reason to be proud of the battalion, and will no doubt give effect to its appreciation upon your return."

Special Order issued by Maj-Gen. Smith Dorrien, dated Belfast, Nov. 20.—"Major-Gen. Smith Dorrien cannot allow the R.C.D. and the left section "D" Battery R.C.A., and the Canadian Mounted Rifles to leave his command en route for Canada without thanking them for the grand work they have performed for him in the Belfast Flying Column.

In eight of the last nineteen days they have been engaged with the Boers and have proved themselves splendidly brave and mobile mounted troops, and it has afforded the Major General much pleasure to have been able to send through Gen., The Hon. N. Lyttleton to the Field Marshal C in Chief, detailed accounts of their splendid feats of arms and to have been able to bring to the special notice of the C. in C. five Officers and seven N. C. O's and men for distinguished conduct on the field during these operations.

In wishing them all good bye and 'good luck,' he has no words to express how great a loss they will be to the Flying Column. He can merely say that he would choose no other Mounted Troops in the world before them if he had his choice, and he sincerely hopes the day may come when he may have them again under his command."

From Brig. General Alderson to Lt.-Col. Evans—"I should like to tell you how sincerely sorry I am that the Canadian Mounted Rifles are leaving the M. I. Bde. Since the 1st May last we have soldiered together, and I can honestly say that I have been very proud and pleased to have your people with me. Everything I have asked them to do has been done, not only thoroughly well but most cheerfully. I should like you to know how the last has helped me all along. Personally I do not think that orders are quite the place to give vent to one's feelings, and therefore I write this semi-private letter to you to let your people know how proud I have been to speak (and to write home) about them as 'My Canadians,' and also how sorry, as far as I am personally concerned, though thoroughly glad for their sakes, that they are going, and how very sincerly I wish them the best of luck in the future."

SUMMARY.

During the nine months in which the battalion was in active work, it took part in fifteen general engagements, seven important isolated engagements, and six minor engagements.

In addition to the actions above recorded, the battalion was occupied for three months in performing outpost duties involving daily sniping and almost daily attacks on our advanced posts and patrols by the enemy, and by us on the enemy's posts. Raiding on the enemy's cattle and to secure prisoners both by day and night also deserve mention.

The distance marched by the battalion was about 2,600 miles, and the total casualties in the field were five killed, twenty-two wounded, and sixteen missing. With the exception of Private O J. Weaver, who is supposed to be killed, all the missing subsequently rejoined.

In view of the work performed by the battalion, the casualties were extremely light.

HEALTH.

The health of the battalion during the campaign, while comparing favourably with other regiments, still shows a heavy percentage of all ranks rendered inefficient by sickness.

Seventy officers, N.C.O's and men were invalided to England, and after Pretoria was taken, about 200 effectives were with the battalion out of a strength of 371, still, the battalion was by far the strongest in proportion to its establishment, in the brigade.

A very annoying feature was the fact that once a man had been sent back to the field hospital sick, his battalion appeared to lose track of him for several months, and in numerous cases until the corps was en route home. No facilities were offered him to return to his regiment, and he was detained at rest camps, or offered employment in various civil branches of the service without any reference to, or permission from, his commanding officer.

Enteric fever and dysentry were the most numerous and fatal diseases prevailing. When the battalion was on the march, and at its hardest work, the sick were few, but when halted in camp for any length of time, the sick list, notwithstanding all possible sanitary precautions, increased daily. The total deaths by disease during the campaign were seven.

DISCIPLINE.

The discipline of the battalion was, on the whole, excellent. The conditions were peculiar, as about three-fifths of the battalion is composed of civilians, accustomed to the freedom of life on the plains of the North-west. The ready manner in which they adapted themselves to the regulations of the service was most creditable. In event of a future campaign, it would add greatly to the value of this excellent material if in peace time it was organized and trained as militia. When troops are called out for active service, very little time is available for instruction in discipline, use and care of arms, &c., which might have been previously given at home.

CANADIAN HORSES.

If the horses of the Battalion had been given a fighting chance, they would have made a splendid record, but the exigencies of the situation did not give them an opportunity to recuperate after the long voyage; and in poor condition they faced the expedition through the Karoo desert country, the severest work of the campaign. Notwithstanding these drawbacks, and the continual shortage of forage and water during the rest of the campaign, nearly fifty per cent reached Pretoria. When the battalion was about to return home 33 of the original horses were on the strength; 122 had been turned over to rest and remount depots on the line of march, the majority of which were re-issued to other corps; 177 had been abandoned on the line of march, exhausted; 7 had been exchanged for native horses; 24 had been killed in action, or died on duty. and 13 died at sea (9 on ss. Pomeranian, 3 on ss. Milwaukee and 1 on ss. Laurentian.)

The above details account for 376 horses brought out with the battalion. Had the horses been given a month's rest at Cape Town, I am convinced that, at least, 75 per cent would have been with the battalion at the end of its service.

MEXICAN SADDLERY.

The saddles used by the battalion were very satisfactory, as far as wear and tear, comfort to the men and the backs of the horses, were concerned, but their weight was a serious handicap, when working against the lightest equipped men and horses of modern times.

THE CANADIAN WAGONS.

The wagons brought from Canada by the Battalion proved most satisfactory. The light wagons are worthy of special mention. During the campaign they followed the battalion across country heavily loaded, and were still in fair working order when handed over to the Imperial Authorities in November last.

MACHINE GUNS, ARMS AND CLOTHING.

The Maxim guns accompanied the battalion as far as Pan, near Middelburg, when they were dispensed with by the G.O.C., on account of scarcity of horses. From personal observation, I am of opinion that the Colt gun is a more useful weapon in the field, than the Maxim.

The Lee-Enfield Rifles proved satisfactory. The Colt revolvers proved particularly useful in night scouting and searching houses for prisoners. I consider them a most necessary weapon for mounted troops.

The supply of clothing was at all times ample and of excellent quality. The serge frocks issued by the Imperial Government proved more comfortable than the Canadian issue, the material of which was canvas duck.

FORAGE AND RATIONS.

The forage ration was liberal when occasion permitted, but the want of hay was a serious drawback when the brigade was marching over burnt ground. During the latter part of the campaign the issue of hay was fairly regular, and with the new grass coming up, the horses fared well, and were always in good condition for hard work.

The rations for the men were also liberal when occasion offered, and the issue of jam, sliced bacon, and cheese, made a welcome variety.

The Commissariat arrangements of the Army throughout were most admirable.

RED CROSS AND OTHER FUNDS.

The following sums were received from the Red Cross Society, and other sources to procure extra comforts for the battalion and to assist its sick :—

Toronto Ladies Branch Red Cross Society	£208	0	0
Canadian Y. M. C.A.	10	0	0
Canadian Red Cross Society	15	0	0
Canadian Ladies of London, England	82	10	0
Citizens of Regina, N. W. T	6	2	5

As my battalion was constantly on the move, and generally far from the railway line, it was almost impossible that the numerous cases of comforts etc., could be forwarded. The very liberal sums of money contributed as above, enabled me to procure, when most needed, extras for the sick, and for the fighting men at the front. All ranks of the Battalion keenly appreciate the great kindness of their friends at home, and in England.

In the distribution of these funds, I desire to recognize the invaluable assistance rendered me by my Chaplain, Revd. Father Sinnett. I cannot speak too highly of his work in visiting the sick and affording them assistance when necessary.

The kindness of the management of the Daily Globe of Toronto, and Star of Montreal, in sending a liberal and regular supply of their daily issues, was greatly appreciated.

MAIL ARRANGEMENTS.

The arrangements made by the Canadian Postal Corps were excellent, and added much to the well being of all ranks.

IMPERIAL AUTHORITIES.

I desire to place on record the unvarying courtesy and kindness extended to my battalion by the various branches and department of the Imperial Service with whom we came in close contact. Our relations were most cordial among all ranks, and on several occasions when the battalion was being transferred from one brigade to another, and more especially when leaving Belfast en-route to Pretoria and home, this good feeling was shown in a very marked manner.

CANADIAN AUTHORITIES.

The weekly circular letter forwarded by the Department of Militia and Defence, and the prompt manner in which all matters referred to the Department were dealt with, afforded welcome information of the movements of Militia at home, and greatly facilitated our work in connection with Canada.

CAPE TOWN.

The departure of the 2nd contingent for home on Dec. 13, was the occasion of a very flattering demonstration on the part of the civil authorities of Cape Town.

Lieut.-Col. Biggar, the Canadian staff officer at Cape Town, was of great assistance to me in all work connected with my battalion at the base and the embarkation for home.

The officers and sick of the battalion are deeply indebted to Mr. R. Stewart Solomons for many kindnesses performed in a most unostentatious manner.

THE VOYAGE HOME.

The arrangements on board the Roslin Castle were very satisfactory.

Numerous cases of enteric developed shortly after leaving Cape Town, but fortunately only a very small proportion belonged to my battalion. The presence of the Canadian nursing sisters, and the excellent hospital accommodation on board, proved a great boon in this rather unexpected emergency. The sad deaths of Lieut. Sutton and Sergt.-Trumpter Inglis were greatly regretted by all ranks.

HALIFAX.

On arrival at Halifax it was anticipated that it would require at least two days to complete the payment of the force and the despatch of the troops to their homes. The rapid performance of all this work by the Department of Militia and Defence within 24 hours of arrival in harbour was most gratifying to all concerned.

The courtesy and hospitality shown by the people of Halifax on the occasion of the departure of the battalion was more than repeated in the cordial and enthusiastic welcome which greeted its return, and which will always be gratefully remembered by the men from the North-west Territories.

CONCLUSION.

In concluding this report I desire to express my sincere appreciation of the very loyal support at all times given to me by my officers, non-commissioned officers and men.

The splendid work performed by the trained men of the North west Mounted Police, side by side with the untrained men from the plains of the North-west, amply proved that whether trained or untrained they all possessed in common the true fighting spirit inherited from their forefathers, combined with the self reliance and knowledge of country produced by the duties and occupations peculiar to that portion of the Dominion.

DISTRIBUTION, ETC.

I inclose, herewith, the following returns :—

1. Nominal roll of the battalion, showing the disposition of every non.-com. officer and man, including those returning by the Roslin Castle to Canada.
2. General state of battalion.
3. Nominal roll of officers, non-com. officers and men returning by Roslin Castle.
4. A return showing the disposition of members of the North-west Mounted Police belonging to the battalion.

6. List of sick left in hospitals in South Africa.
7. List of locations of graves of our dead.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

REPORT E.

From Lieut.-Colonel C. W. Drury, Commanding Brigade Division of Royal Canadian Field Artillery, to Adjutant General, Head Quarters, Ottawa.

KINGSTON, January 18, 1901.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit the following report upon the Brigade Division, R.C.F.A., specially organized for service in South Africa :—

Three batteries were equipped and despatched from Canada, two of which, "D" and "E," embarked at Halifax, on January 20, 1900, and reached Cape Town on the evening of February 16. Disembarking commenced on the morning of the 17th and was completed on the evening of the following day, the Batteries going into camp at Green Point in order to prepare themselves for the field.

Both Batteries were considerably under strength in horses owing to the many deaths on the voyage out : indents were therefore made upon the Imperial Remounts to replace the losses. It was found that the stock of artillery remounts was completely exhausted. Argentine ponies were supplied instead, and all of the Canadian riding horses placed in draught. Even by this arrangement there were not sufficient large animals to horse the transport wagons. Mules were therefore demanded for the latter.

It will thus be seen that the time allotted for refitting was almost entirely occupied with the horse question. However, by February 27, all was ready for a move, and from this date until March 10, the time was made use of in training both men and horses for the trying work to come.

I was greatly disappointed when on the arrival of the Laurentian, I found that only two Batteries were on board, but hoped that before we received orders to move to the front "C" Battery would arrive, thus making my command complete, but this was not to be.

I was in complete ignorance of all that had been done in Canada in the way of organization, but from the experience I had already gained in the field, I felt that an ammunition column to supply the Batteries was indispensable. This view was fully borne out by subsequent events, for not only were transport wagons to carry the reserve ammunition difficult to secure, but the oxen being slow, we never could hope that our ammunition column would ever be in touch with the guns, and as a matter of fact it was oftentimes even some miles distant, perhaps blocked on the road. Native drivers too could not be relied upon to drive their teams even to the borders of the zone of fire.

Three, or even two Batteries, with an ammunition column, would have been a much more mobile organization, and would have saved no end of worry and anxiety to the Captains who were at all times responsible for a sufficiency of ammunition. I would, from our South African experience, strongly recommend that wagons for an ammunition column be purchased and held in readiness in Canada.

It was unfortunate that such a large number of horses died on the way out: in addition to these a great number landed in a very emaciated condition consequent upon the effects of influenza contracted on ship board ; however, by careful nursing on the part of all concerned they soon pulled round and became fit for full work. It was noted that the mortality on shipboard was much greater among the horses drawn from the permanent force than among those purchased for the campaign, but those of the former which survived the voyage more than held their own on the Veldt ; the older horses seemed to do the best.

On Sunday, March 4, 1900, at 11.45 a.m., four guns and wagons from "D" Battery were ordered to entrain for the front, destination unknown. At 1.15 p.m. the guns moved out of camp, the rapidity of the move was commented upon by Col. Cooper, A.D.C., Base Commandant, as a remarkably smart piece of work.

On Saturday, March 10, at 9 a.m., an order was received for the remainder of "D", the whole of "E", with the Brigade Division staff, to entrain for DeAar, at 12.30 p.m. Entraining was completed, the two trains pulled out at 2 p.m. At daylight on the 12th, we were stopped on Victoria Road station and ordered to detrain; here we found the four guns of 'D' Battery. The two batteries were then ordered to form the artillery force of a column being organized to march on Kenhardt, via Carnarvon. Colonel Sir Charles Parsons had direction of the operations. After leaving Carnarvon, the troops consisting of "D" and "E" batteries, R. C. F. A., the C. M. R., the West Australian M. R., the New Zealand M. R. and the D. I. Y. were under my command. After a trying march of 500 miles, the column marched into DeAar without opposition, the rout being from Victoria Road to Carnarvon, Van Wyks Vlei and Kenhardt, thence back to Carnarvon, then Vosburg, Britstown and DeAar. The troops suffered considerably during this trek; it was at times extremely bad weather, and in places the roads were almost impassable. Many horses and oxen died from exposure and exhaustion.

Almost immediately on reaching DeAar, the mounted troops were entrained for Bloemfontein, "D," Battery ordered to guard lines of communication and "E" Battery to join Sir Charles Warren in Griqualand West. The Brigade Div. Staff received permission to proceed to Mafeking to join 'C' Battery with Major Genl. Baden-Powell, the latter battery having marched from Beira to Mafeking and assisted in the relief of that beleagured town.

This march has become famous, being characterized by the Field Marshal Commander in Chief as one of incredible rapidity.

This battery operated with Maj.-Genl. Baden-Powell's force to the N. and N.W. of Pretoria. "D" which was sent on from DeAar to Bloemfontein, operated to the N.E. of Pretoria with Lieut.-Genl. Ian Hamilton, and "E" Battery to the S.W. of Pretoria, under Maj.-Genl. Settle. It will thus be seen that although not very satisfactory in some ways, the R.C.A. was represented in almost all important districts within the theatre of war.

Following are the fights in which each battery took part:—

"C" Battery.

May 16 and 17, Relief of Mafeking.
July 19 and 25, Oliphants Nek.
August 20, Hamans Kraal.
" 21, Pienaars River.
" 22, Warm Baths.
" 24, Nylstroom.
September 3 to 10, Warm Baths.
October 24, Jerico.
November 1, Twee River.
" 4, Ratsgaie.
" 6, Zeerust Road.
" 8, Reitfontien.

"D" Battery.

July 21, Dewagendrift.
" 21, Ouverwacht.
" 23, Rustfontein.
August 27, Belfast.
September 3, Zwarts Kopjes.
" 6, Rooidaal.
" 6, Spitz Kop.
" 6, Lydenburg.
" 7, "
" 27, Zovenfontein.
October 3, Elands Kop
" 6, Tweefontein.
" 6, Zurkevbos Kop.
" 6, Lang Kloof.
November 2, Whit Kloof.
" 6, Esteringfontein.
November 6, Van Wyks Vlei.
" 6, Liliefontein.
" 6, Carolina Road.
" 7, "
" 7, Liliefontein.
" 7, Blyvoorlizich.
" 13, Wettervreven.
" 13, Laken Vlie.
" 13, Lang Kloof.
" 14, Vlakplaats.
" 14, Schoongenzicht.
" 14, Whitpoort.
" 15, Zwarts Kopjes.
" 16, Dulstroom,
" 16, Welgevricht.
" 17, Elands Kloof.

"E" Battery.

May 27, Douglas, Griqualand.
" 27, Steyns Farm, Griqualand.
" 30, Fabers Putts "
" 30, Tweefontein "
June 4, Koffefontein, Griqualand.
" 4, Elizabeth Rust, O.R.C.
" 4, Wegdrie, O.R.C.

Of the foregoing actions many were important, particularly that of "C" at Mafeking, and the left section of "D" at Belfast., under Lieut. Morrison, he being specially mentioned in the General's despatches and recommended for some mark of Her Majesty's favour. Also the action of "E" Battery during the night attack on Faber's Putts deserves to be specially mentioned.

It is a pleasing compliment to record that when the Field Marshal, Commander in Chief, decided that the batteries were to be concentrated with a view to their return to Canada, the generals who commanded the column, to which the batteries were attached made strong efforts to retain their services.

On December 1, "C" and "D" Batteries left Pretoria for Cape Town, but were detrained at Worcester, C.C., to be present with other troops during the great Bond meeting held on the 6th. 'E' Battery was also stopped here, and for the first time in South Africa my command was complete. We were detained there for seven days, then proceeded to Cape Town to embark for Canada. The Australian contingents arrived from the front to embark on the same day. Previous to going on board both colonial contingents paraded and were addressed, first by the Mayor and Corporation of Cape Town, then by His Excellency Sir Alfred Milner and Lieut.-General Sir Forrestier Walker.

GENERAL REMARKS.

The 12-pr. breach loading guns with which the Batteries were armed were certainly not powerful enough to cope with the Boer artillery.

The guns were lacking many modern attachments, such as the 'recoil spade,' the South African brake, &c.

I am also thoroughly convinced that breast collars for horses are much superior to neck collars for campaign purposes.

The transport wagons supplied by the Canadian Government proved to be a good article, but there are five points I desire to call attention to, viz.: The boxes of the heavy wagons were not large enough to carry the loads assigned to them; the lever brakes were not reliable; boxes should be supplied with attachments to carry spade, axe, billhook, &c.

The naves should be metal, not wood. Hoops for the cover are not necessary.

PERSONNEL.

I cannot speak too highly of the conduct and pluck of all ranks during the campaign, oftentimes under very trying circumstances.

Of the officers, I desire particularly to mention my adjutant, Captain H. C. Thacker, R.C.A. Not only were his ordinary duties of adjutant performed to my entire satisfaction, but on several occasions when I employed him as my staff officer when in command of a body of mixed troops, by his tact and constant attention to duty he made my work comparatively easy.

Those of the battery officers who deserve to be mentioned have been so dealt with by the generals of their respec ive columns.

Brigade Division Sergeant Major C. E. Long, R.C.A., earned a name for himself, not only for his services in connection with his own corps, but from others with which he came in contact.

As returns have already been made from South Africa as to casualties, I need not again mention them.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

C. W. DRURY, Lt.-Col.,

Late Commanding Brigade Division, R.C.F.A.

APPENDIX E (1).

From Officer Commanding "C" Battery to Officer Commanding Brigade Division, Royal Canadian Field Artillery.

KINGSTON, Ont., March 7, 1901.

SIR,—I have the honour to submit, in compliance with your instructions of February 1, the following report on the work of the Battery on special service in South Africa under my command.

We embarked on the transport Milwaukee, at Halifax, N.S., on February 21, 1900, and sailed without delay for Cape Town, where we arrived March 21.

By noon of Thursday, 22nd, 200 miles had been made. This day orders were published covering the following: Medical Inspection, Veterinary Inspection, Limitations in regard to smoking, Boat Stations, Bathing, and washing of clothes. We had bad weather for two days, until Sunday, 25th, when it turned fine and warm and the sick improved This day was the first of twenty five days of continued fine weather, not a drop of rain or a heavy sea breaking in to disturb the placid surface of the ocean, or monotony of the long voyage.

Divine service was held on Sunday, and each succeeding Sunday while on board. A brass band was organized, and as there was a piano and an organ on board there was no lack of music. The rations served to the men were of good quality and in sufficient quantity, there being no complaints in this respect during the voyage. A canteen was also started. The horses suffered greatly and required much care and attention, a few dying from time to time during the trip, the total loss being 14. Owing to the great heat when near the equator it was found necessary to clip them, as they were suffering intensely. I feel I cannot lay too much stress, or be too effusive in pointing out the unselfish and energetic manner in which the officers, N. C. officers and men attended to the horses, under the most trying circumstances at this time. The great heat, added to the persistent rolling of the boat, was extremely trying, and in many cases fatal to the horses, and it was only through the untiring and voluntary efforts of those under my command that much greater loss was prevented. The care of the horses had to be undertaken in a part of the ship where the heat was almost intolerable, and the air extremely foul.

Fogo Island, Cape Verde, was sighted about 5 a.m. on the 5th March. This day, orders were issued for all the troops to be vaccinated, this being carried out by Surgeon Major Duff and his assistants.

We crossed the equator at 6 a.m. on the 9th., and early on the 11th., sighted Ascension Island, passing it about 9 a.m. St. Helena was passed about 11 a.m., on the 14th. The drivers of the battery commenced revolver practice on this day. Another medical examination of the men was held on the 19th. On the 20th an order was issued by the O. C. Troops against sending to the press any military information without special authority.

Table Mountain was sighted about mid-day on Wednesday, March 21, the vessel arriving in the harbour off Table Bay, Cape Town, about 4 p.m. We did not disembark until Sunday, 26th.

Captain Panet, who had been waiting in Cape Town for our arrival, came on board during this period and made acquaintance with those with whom his lot had been cast for the coming campaign. Disembarkation orders were received on the 24th and published for the information of the troops. The vessel having put in at the South Arm wharf, tea was served to the troops through the kindness and liberality of some of the ladies of Cape Town.

Monday, 26th, was the day set for disembarkation, this being effected by 4 p.m.; the troops marching to Green Point camp about two miles from the centre of the city.

The camp was under the command of Colonel Mainwaring, C.M.G. Everything seemed alive with military life and military effort. At the entrance-end of our camp-ground we passed the Boer prisoners' enclosure, containing many hundreds of Cronje's men. They impressed us as being a superior race physically—and there it ends. They were well in view; and our men thus had an opportunity of seeing what their future foes were like: tall gaunt frames, which, if filled out, would have given one the impression they belonged to a race of giants, sauntered around the enclosure or chatted in groups, and to all appearances were quite indifferent to their surroundings or their future. They were poorly clad, emaciated and hungry looking—due probably to long hours in the trenches and the effects of the campaign.

The camp at Green Point was exceedingly well conducted, and the men were soon settled in their new quarters. The captured guns of Cronje, which were here, were a source of great interest to us all. Here also was a 4·7 battery, waiting for orders for the front.

Every one in "C" Battery was well and fit for service on reaching Cape Town, the horses being our chief concern. Although we lost but 14 during the voyage, many of the others were in poor condition. It was, however, surprising with what rapidity they recovered. We got one remount at Green Point and 21 at Stellenbosch, a remount depot some thirty miles from Cape Town on the railway. We received our first Canadian mail on March 29 at Green Point. On reaching Cape Town, Captain Mackie took charge of the details of "D" and "E" Batteries until they joined the headquarters of the Artillery Brigade Division.

Sunday, April 1, there was a church parade at the camp for all denominations. On the 2nd, at 11 a.m., there was an inspection of "C" Battery, the C.M.R., Loch's Scouts and the Irish Squadron, by the O.C. the camp, Lt.-Col. Lessard, R.C.D., being in command of the troops mentioned.

A great deal of work here was required in equipping the battery, many articles in this respect being required before going to the front.

Orders were received on April 3 to move to Stellenbosch the next day by route march. We moved out at 2 p.m. on the 4th, and were lustily cheered in passing through Cape Town. Although we had disembarked but nine days, our horses drew many complimentary remarks from the citizens of Cape Town as we passed through. The improvement in them was indeed remarkable.

On the night of the 4th we bivouacked at Durban Road, 12 miles from Cape Town. The march was resumed the next morning, and we reached Stellenbosch late in the afternoon, going under canvas. Here we received 21 remounts—mostly draft horses of the C.M.R., which they had turned in—and we endeavoured to get horses and men into shape.

The battery made great progress in mounted work here, this being really the first opportunity they had had in this class of drill. On April 12, a telegram was received from Cape Town to hold the battery in readiness to move at a moment's notice. By this time the Canadian Mounted Rifles had already left by train for DeAar, on their way to the front. The expected word came at 12, noon, on the 13th, to leave for Cape Town that afternoon, to embark the next day for Beira. The battery paraded at 3 p.m. moving off at 3.30. When some distance out, an orderly overtook us with a telegram directing us to be in Cape Town as soon after 7 a.m. the next day as possible. We again bivouacked at Durban Road; and reached Cape Town at 8.30 a.m. next day, 14th.

We immediately proceeded to the South Arm wharf, and commenced loading our guns, stores &c., on the SS. Colombian lying there, everything being on by noon. Sir Frederick Carrington, under whose command we now were, expressed his surprise and gratification at our rapid march from Stellenbosch, and the readiness with which our equipment was put on board, as we were not expected at Cape Town until 1 p.m. Our horses came in quite fresh.

The Colombian sailed at about 4.30 p.m. Although so recently off the water, many of the men were soon sea-sick. Small details of the R.A.M.C. and R.E. were on board: also the paymaster's staff of the Rhodesian field force, to which force we now belonged.

We reached Durban on the evening of April 17, dropping anchor a couple of miles off, and remaining there until 3 p.m. the following day.

The weather got pretty hot by the 18th, and we lost one horse on this date, many others being on the sick-list. We made Beira on the 21st, not before losing our way, however, as we passed it some distance and had to return. In doing so we nearly ran on the sand banks, soundings having to be taken the whole way.

The men were now instructed to pack away their best clothes, and to wear their old ones. The harness was taken to pieces and thoroughly cleaned and dubbed. I may say that General Carrington and staff seemed to take great interest in our men in the way they carried out their work, especially in the care of their horses and at stable hour.

The day after our arrival in the harbour at Beira, the Secretary of the Portuguese Governor came on board and, later, a dinner was tendered to General Carrington and a few officers by the Governor, to which I was invited. The greatest courtesy was shown to the British by the Portuguese authorities here.

A British man-of-war came into the harbour on the 22nd. Early on Monday, April 23, the unloading of the horses, guns, and stores was commenced. The horses were kept in a paddock until the evening, when the drivers and the horses, under Lieut. Irving, were sent ahead by rail to Bamboo Creek, a point some 60 miles from Beira on the Beira-Salisbury Railway, the train starting at 8.40 p.m. The train was made up of 42 cars, the railway being a narrow-gauge one of 2 feet 6 inches in width. We had the entire line to ourselves, the whole railway being cleared for the transportation of the battery. The following day, April 23, the remainder of the battery paraded on the Colombian at 8.15 a.m., and left for the shore on a punt. All the unloading of the horses and baggage had to be done by lighters.

The appearance of Beira from the Colombian was that which one might easily have imagined it to be, from its reputation as a fever pest-hole—a low, flat stretch of marshy land, from which arises a very pronounced unhealthy smell. The interior of the town, however, is clean, and the buildings more or less attractive, though mostly of wood and very low.

We entrained immediately. With us were 100 Queenslanders, who were to act as our escort. The train was made up of 31 cars and three engines, and started off at 11.10 a.m., going about seven miles an hour. The N. C. officers and men were each issued with a rifle and ammunition. They travelled in cattle trucks, and had close quarters, indeed. Some of them had to ride on top of the cars, others on the guns, wagons and harness. The territory passed through on leaving Beira was heavy marsh land; after some miles of this the aspect of the country changed and beautiful and extensive gardens opened up to view, displaying banana and cocoanut palms in abundance.

At 2.10 a.m. we reached Dundo (Indigo Crossing), the first stopping place and 18 miles from Beira. The next place was Caiman, 28 miles. Here were large gangs of negroes working with picks and shovels, their remuneration being $5 per month and board. They were all singing or uttering a sort of gutteral chant, as they invariably do while working. They also have a peculiar way of handling the shovel or spade, keeping regular time in a sort of calisthenic movement which was very amusing. We left here in a short time and soon ran into clouds of locusts, the sky being black with them. Such a cloud is a harvest to the negroes, the locusts being one of their staple articles of food. They pick them up and dry them in the sun, the taste being somewhat similar to that of shrimps.

We reached Fontesville at 4.10 and Forty-five Mile Siding at 5.30; average time about 7 miles an hour. We now began to get a practical experience of the fever mist, which rises very heavily, commencing almost before the sun goes down and thus giving to this part of the country the name familiarly known and experienced by so many—as the "White Man's Grave." The mist permeates everything although they may be under roof shelter. The nights are also very cold. The non-commissioned officers and men were advised to keep under their blankets as much as possible. The intense heat of the day, however, soon dries everything. I understand that the longest any white man has lived in these parts is about three years, and that it is only with the greatest difficulty white men can be got to man the Beira railway, as every one takes the fever without exception.

We reached Bamboo Creek, 61 miles, late in the evening, remaining there over night and sleeping in the cars. Here were some of the drivers and horses, the others having gone ahead. We learned on our arrival at Bamboo Creek that this part of the country was exceptionally fatal to horses, and that at that time those of the Australians were dying by hundreds of horse sickness.

The day following our arival, 25th, was a busy one as it was here the narrow gauge ended, the guns, stores, &c., having to be transferred to cars on the wide gauge railway. This was done in a remarkably short time under the direction of Captain Panet. Our stay here was very pleasant and novel, Bamboo Creek resembling more nearly than any place we were in one's idea of what a tropical country is like. The station master and his assistant were extremely courteous and obliging.

We left Bamboo Creek, 25th, in four trains of four cars each, one with the remaining drivers and horses at 1.30 p.m., the others at various intervals during the afternoon. The staff and myself went in the first train which was under my charge. The night was a novel and eventful one and one which I do not think any of us will forget. Very slow progress was made from the start: the trains going up grade the whole night. There were many long stops from the inability of the trains to make progress. On one or two of the trains the men had to get off and chop wood for the engine while the niggers sanded the track. The men did not attempt to sleep, not alone because they were too crowded, but it took the united efforts of all hands to prevent the burning of the trains. The engines burning nothing but wood, and having no spark catchers, threw out millions of sparks the whole night; and these settling on the baggage, particularly in front, set fire to it repeatedly, burning even the tarpaulins covering it. There was much ammunition on the train, and a plentiful supply of water had to be used throughout the night to prevent the fire from reaching the ammunition. The men's clothing caught fire on their backs while working. Their appearance the next morning was laughable in the extreme.

Our rations were now tinned beef, biscuit and water when the latter could be obtained—there being very little good water. A limited quantity of bottled ale and other liquors could be bought: but at such exorbitant prices there was no fear of any one taking too much.

We arrived at Mandagas, 144 miles, at 8.30 a.m. on the 26th. Here we found good water and made coffee. The station master, an American, informed us that Mandagas was one of the unhealthiest places on the coast.

From Mandagas it was up grade again. The Rhodesian border, 216 miles from Beira, was reached after hard puffing and pulling; and six miles further on we steamed into Umtali—a noted place of 235 inhabitants, and boasting of a fair-sized hotel and restaurant. There was quite a number of stores here also, and many of the men laid in a supply of provisions and other necessaries. We were saddened to hear of the death, the day before, of one of the Australians belonging to a party that had been sent ahead to Marandellas. The people of Umtali contemplated erecting a stone to his memory, as the first Colonial who had died in that place for the Empire. There is considerable gold at Umtali, as well as at many other places between here and Bulawayo.

All the trains reached Marandellas, 351 miles from Beira, at different hours on Friday, April 27, the last arriving about midnight, the trip from Beira having taken about eighty four hours. This was our terminus by rail and from here we started on our 300-mile march for Bulawayo. The men had had but very little sleep for four days; but, with few exceptions, were well and in good spirits. It was pretty well understood now that we were going to the relief of Mafeking.

The horses had been very tightly boxed up in almost air-tight box-cars, and suffered much on this trip from Beira from the heat and the roughness of the road. They had also suffered much from the lack of water.

We found a base camp at Marandellas, about a mile from the railway; and after detraining went under canvas. Other troops were here already, chiefly Australians. A great many huts were being built by negro labour, the men doing the building, their women the plastering—the plaster being mud. These huts were intended principally for Imperial Yeomanry a large body of whom were stationed here later. The day after our arrival I met the Chief Staff Officer of the Rhodesian Field Force, in connection with the arrangement of details, and the rapid forwarding of four of our guns to Colonel Plumer at Sefeteli. These guns were to be drawn by mules, as they were considered more suitable for forced marching than our horses. The other two guns with the horses, were to follow us by easy stages. It was also arranged that we should travel from Marandellas to Bulawayo by detachments, and on different days. As a matter of precaution, the N. C. Officers and men were equipped with rifles and bandoliers: fifty rounds of ammunition being carried by each man, and 100 each on the coaches—the mail-coaches on this route being brought into use for the occasion.

The arrangement for the first party was as follows:—

1st. Gun.
2nd. Escort: 1 officer and 8 men of R.C.F.A., and 7 of Q M.I.
3rd. Gun.
4th. Escort: 1 officer and 6 men of Q.M.I., and 8 men R.C.F.A.
5th. Ammunition wagon.
6th. Escort: 1 officer and 8 men of R.C.F.A. and 3 men of Q.M.I.

The other details moved off in much the same order.

The ration arrangements were:—

Four days rations for 16 men, four days' for 15 men, four days' for 12 men—in addition to the one day's rations carried on the men.

On arrival at Bulawayo, I was to report to Colonel Nicholson or his representative. The arrival of each party at each telegraph station was to be reported by wire to the C.S.O., Marandellas. We took with us considerable ammunition and other stores.

On Monday, 30th April, the first detail left Marandellas at 6 a.m., consisting of myself, Lieut. Leslie and 23 N.C. officers and men of "C" Battery, and 17 Australians with one officer.

There were ten mules to each gun, ammunition wagon or coach. The men rode in three coaches, with a very limited amount of room; their positions being cramped and trying, particularly for so long a journey. The men for whom there was no room in the coaches rode on the guns.

The manner in which these mules were handled by the natives, was always a wonder and a source of admiration to our men. The mules resemble so many trained dogs: each one knows his place and goes to it,—and the harnessing and the hooking in is particularly well worth watching. A Mr. Zeederberg was the contractor on this occasion,—a man who, although a Boer, is well and popularly known as a man always to be depended upon by the British. He was exceptionally obliging and helpful on this trip; and we owe much to his knowledge of the country and his ever-willing assistance.

Lieut. King, with two more guns, one ammunition wagon and about the same number of men and coaches, left the following day, 1st May, at the same hour, an escort of Queenslanders accompanying him.

Captain Panet, with the third detail, left the same evening with two ammunition wagons and coaches. Lieut. Irving, with the drivers and horses and the centre section left on the following Thursday.

The details arrived at Bulawayo on the following dates,—that under my personal charge on the 6th May; the 2nd and 3rd details on the 7th, and the last under Lieut. Irving on the 21st—the first three making the journey of three hundred miles in about six days, or at the rate of 50 miles a day. The men had very little sleep during this trip; while the food taken was eaten hurriedly, or while jolting along on rough, uncertain roads and in positions too cramped for good digestion. We were made acquainted along the road with a new kind of "hard tack"—very hard indeed and very oily, but artistic in shape and stamped with the Broad Arrow. It was not a success as far as our men were concerned; tasting too strongly of linseed, or something like it. The biscuits issued during our after work in the field were quite the opposite, being palatable and sweet, and eminently a success as a field biscuit.

Although our journey from Marandellas to Bulawayo was carried out hurriedly and under trying circumstances, it was, nevertheless, most interesting. Occasionally at night the roar of a lion could be heard; and now and then during the day a deer, leopard or jackal would dart across the trail. The first British South Africa Police post reached was Fort Charter, 60 miles from Marandellas; then Inkledoorn, 50 miles further on.

Sebakwe, or Orton's Drift, 114 miles from Marandellas, was reached in due course. The Sebakwe river here divides Mashonaland from Matabeleland. We found the telegraph line here disconnected, the reason stated being that the civilian operator was pro-Boer. After Sebakwe we got to Iron Mines. Then came Gwelo, another interesting place and the largest we had been in since leaving Beira. There were quite a number of white people here and we were well received. There was an hotel, bank, a large post office building and other places of importance. Gwelo is a gold district—and a fever district too, over half of the population at the time being down with it. So far, very little rain had fallen since our landing at Beira, or indeed since our arrival at Cape Town, nor did we see much rain for some months to come. It was the winter season in Rhodesia, all vegetation being dried up. On this account, the country presented a very desolate appearance. The roads at times were extremely bad, and the drifts in some places were well nigh impassable and extremely dangerous for men and horses. Another unpleasant feature, and one with which we had to contend in nearly all our treks, was the dust, so thick at times as almost to choke men and horses.

Upon our arrival at Gwelo, 180 miles from Marandellas, I received instructions by wire from the C.S.O. to divide into smaller details, two vehicles only to move together instead of six, an interval of five hours to be between each detail. We had received relays of mules thus far every ten miles or so. These animals now became scarce, and oxen had to be used for some of the guns and wagons. It was surprising with what speed the oxen got over the ground, seemingly having no trouble to keep up with the mules.

The next place we reached was Shangani. It was here, on October 28, 1893, that the first big battle with the Matabele was fought. Our course was over the historic battleground. The store here is built on the site of the Salisbury laager, so bravely held in that fight. Many skulls of the dead Matabele can still be found in the river-bed. It was on the banks of this river, some distance up, that Wilson met his noted defeat. After this, we pass Pongo, Tekwe and Lion's Vlei, and at length reach Bambesi, the scene of another great fight with the Matabele, November 4, 1893.

I cannot say too much in acknowledgment of the kindly manner in which we were received by the inhabitants of Bulawayo, and the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the British South Africa Company's Police stationed there, and at the various police posts along the route.

The Administrator, being unable to be present, sent us a very courteous message by his representative, expressing his regret, and welcoming us to Bulawayo. During our short stay of about two days, all ranks were hospitably entertained. The Rhodesian Brewery Company very kindly sent a number of barrels of ale, and other beverages, to our camp.

Bulawayo is an attractive and thriving town of some 1,500 inhabitants, although here, as at Gwelo, many were down with fever. With the exception of the party with Lieut. Irving, all the details had reached here by May 7, those of the battery making a total of 4 officers and 62 non-commissioned officers and men, sufficient to man the four guns, and leaving a few spare gunners. The following day, 8th, was spent in completing equipment, and in making preparations for transport by rail to Ootsi, a distance of 429 miles in the direction of Mafeking.

A smoking concert was given in the evening to all ranks by Colonel Nicholson, Commandant of the B. S. A. Police at that station, and a genial and popular officer. We learned from the police that the Matabele were more or less restless; and that an outbreak among them was a thing to be expected. The chief difficulty seems to be the hut tax, there being a tax of 10 shillings per annum per hut, collected from the Mata-bele by the Rhodesian Government. It is the duty of the B. S. A. Police to collect this tax, and the task is by no means easy.

Orders were received the evening of the 8th to be ready to move in the morning, which we did at 10.15 a.m., followed by the cheers and well-wishes of the good citizens of Bulawayo and the B. S. A. P Mrs. Lawley, wife of the Administrator, was at the station to bid us God-speed, and to express to us her husband's regret at being unavoidably absent. The interest taken in us by Mrs. Lawley was accepted by us as a great compliment.

We left one sergeant and one gunner in hospital at Bulawayo. Colonel Nicholson accompanied us and had charge of the train. This railway was a great contrast to the one running from Beira, and we sped along at a lively rate.

We reached Crocodile Pools at 8 a.m., on the 11th, from which place an armoured train accompanied us to Ootsi. We arrived at the latter point at 9 30 a.m., the same day, having done the 429 miles in less than two days. Here we found a small camp of Plumer's men No time was lost in getting off the guns and stores. The ammunition was prepared for action, and arrangements made for leaving in the afternoon. I personally took command at this point. Colonel Plumer's men that were here had been detailed to accompany us to Sefeteli as part of our escort.

We started at four p m. on the 11th, covering twenty-five miles by eleven p.m., at which time we bivouacked. Before reaching Colonel Plumer, a cyclist from his camp brought a message of urgency, saying that the Colonel was in touch with the column of Brgdr. General Mahon from the south, and that an immediate junction with this force was necessary. We were resting at the time, but resuming our trek got within a mile of the Colonel's camp the night of the 13th, bivouacked, and reported our arrival.

Early the next morning we went in; and I do not think that any of us will ever forget the scene as, with cheer after cheer, we passed through the lines of as brave, gallant and efficient a body of men as ever took up arms in defence of the British Empire. The health of these men, the privations they had undergone, the state of the camp and the scarcity of provisions and good water may be judged from the fact that, out of a total strength of about 800 men about 300 were on the sick list. Ragged, hungry and dirty —owing to their privations—the sight of these men, as, with hearts true to the core, they cheered us and shook our hands, sent a thrill through each one of us who had travelled so many thousands of miles to get there; and I know that, under the impulse of those cheers from men like that, we who had just arrived mentally resolved once more, that, come what might, we would do our best for the honour of Canada and the flag of the Empire. But for the lack of Artillery, this Force would long before have relieved Mafeking. They had but one 12-pr.B.L., and three 7-pr. M.L. guns; and had been hovering in the vicinity of Mafeking, fighting and harassing the enemy, and doing all that was possible in encouraging the small garrison to hold out until relief arrived. They had suffered much, too; both from disease and while fighting, losing at Ramathlabama alone in one fight upwards of fifty killed and wounded. Here at Sefeteli they were well entrenched; guarding the supplies which were held ready to send into Mafeking the moment the seige was raised.

Following is my report on the relief of Mafeking, already submitted to you, which I would like to embody in this report:—

"On the morning of May 14, after a series of forced marches from Marandellas, I joined Lt.-Colonel Plumer's column at Safeteli. At about 2 p.m. the same day, the column commenced the march towards Mafeking, reaching Jan Massibi on the Molopo River, a distance of 30 miles, on the morning of May 15, forming a junction with the southern column under Colonel Mahon, which arrived there about the same time.

"Colonel Plumer's column consisted of the following corps: British South Africa Coy.'s Police, Rhodesia Regiment, a dismounted squadron of the Queensland Infantry, Southern Rhodesia Volunteers (dismounted), and the right and left sections of "C" Battery, Royal Canadian Field Artillery.

"Artillery:—B.S.A. Police: 1 12 pr. B.L. and 3 7-pr. M.L. guns under Captain Llewellyn, B.S.A.P.

"Four 12 pr. B. L. guns of "C" Battery, R.C.F.A.

"I may mention here that the Canadian guns were drawn by mules, with native drivers, the horses of "C" Battery having been left at the base at Marandellas, being unable to undergo a forced march owing to their bad condition and the sickness of a few.

"Lieut. Leslie, of "C" Battery, was attached to the Artillery Staff during the operations of the 16th.

"In accordance with orders issued on the evening of the 15th, the combined columns, under Colonel Mahon, moved out of camp the following day, proceeding towards Mafeking.

"The advance guard was formed by the B.S.A.P., the Queensland Mounted Infantry and the Rhodesia Regt. on our right; the B.S.A.P. Artillery on our left; the whole of the southern column also being on our left, both columns advancing together.

"Colonel Plumer commanded the northern column, the southern column being under the command of Lt.-Col. Edwards, Imperial Light Horse.

"The whole of the artillery force was under the command of Major Jackson, R.A.

"At the time mentioned the force commenced the advance eastward towards Mafeking, moving along the south ridge of the Molopo valley, following the river. Three squadrons of the Rhodesia Regt. moved along the north bank. The ground covered was for the most part open veldt and free from kopjes.

"The force halted at Sanie Station, about 10 miles from Mafeking: the horses, mules and oxen being watered, the troops taking a light lunch. This had scarcely been done before orders were received to saddle up and hook-in, the march being resumed. The enemy had, according to reports, been sighted by our scouts.

"The force had advanced but a short distance further, when I received instructions to take position, the advance guard being already engaged with the enemy. I galloped up for instructions, after issuing orders for the battery to prepare for action.

"The battery came into action, wagon supply, and under cover, the guns being run into position by hand in a mealie field, and in a direction facing almost due east. While this was being done, one of the enemy's shells burst in front of the battery but did no damage.

"The opening of our fire in this our first position was much delayed, owing to our inability to locate the Boer guns. A change to half-right was made, our first shot being fired at about 2.30 with percussion shrapnel at a bush on the right of a white house, the range being 5,000 yards. Two other ranges were taken in this position, one at artillery on the sky-line of a ridge, the third at a bush on the right of a brick building, the ranges being 5,000 and 4,500 yards respectively.

"We remained in this position for about three quarters of an hour, the firing being slow, owing to the reasons stated, and the wide area of the Boer guns. A few rounds only were fired by us from this position. A few of the enemy's shells dropped over and under the battery, some coming quite close to our guns but without casualties.

"It was then thought advisable to change position, the battery coming into action on a ridge about 1,000 yards east of our first position. The change was made in echelon, the left section leading, the battery for a short time being subjected to an enfilade fire from guns, pom-poms and rifles, but fortunately without effect.

"We opened fire on a stone laager at 3,700 yards against artillery; and finding the range to be 3,350 yards, at once changed to time-shrapnel with fuse 15¼. The enemy's position appeared to be well protected by trees; and in elevation was about on a level with our own. We, however, silenced the Boer guns after a few rounds: driving the enemy from his position and following him with our shells, which were apparently effective.

"We were soon exposed to fire from the right from field guns and pom-poms, located in a bush near a white house. Our right section, therefore, changed front to the right to reply to this fire, the first range being at 3,750 yards, fuze 17¾. They were almost immediately assisted by the left section, with the result that the enemy soon appeared to be dislodged.

"We then turned our fire on the white house. No. 1 gun was at this time detached, and sent, under Captain Panet, to the right, to take a position from which one of the enemy's pom-poms could be located. No. 2 gun then changed fire to the brick building on the right of the white house, at a range of 4,500 yards. The left section also changed fire at 4,700 yards on artillery between the white house and brick building, the enemy quickly ceasing his fire from that direction, No 2 gun assisted in this work.

"The artillery fire of the enemy, however, was resumed, their shells still coming from the direction of the white house. Their guns were well under cover: sheltered by trees and shrubbery, and at times could not be located. As a result their fire increased for a time; and two of our men, No. 65, acting Bombardier W. Patton, No. 5 sub-division and No. 135, Gunner W. McCollum, No. 6 sub-division were slightly wounded with pieces of shell.

"At this point, we received orders to change our position further east, in order to secure a shorter range and from where the effect of our fire could be observed with better advantage. We again opened fire on the white house at 3,650 yards and with better results, the enemy vacating his position in great disorder, his guns having been silenced by our fire. Captain Panet rejoined us shortly after with No. 1 gun. This was the last position taken by us that day, the enemy ceasing his fire at 5.35, our last shell being fired at 5.40. The general action ceased about the same time, with the exception of a few stray rifle shots.

"The battery then joined the remainder of the column, which assembled at a short distance from the centre of the Boer position; the white house being occupied by the Queenslanders who acted as our escort. Colonel Plumer's column then joined the southern, which, with the convoy, was somewhat to the south. A halt was then made and the mules were fed.

"Orders were then received to bivouac for the night,—4 a.m. being the hour mentioned for reveille. Before turning in, however, our ammunition wagons were refilled from the reserve, the ammunition being a considerable distance from the guns. The work was scarcely completed before orders were received for a general advance, the force resuming the march towards Mafeking about mid-night. It had been found that our front was clear. We arrived in Mafeking without further opposition, about 4 a.m. on May 17, and bivouacked for a few hours.

"About 7 a.m. we received an order to move to the outskirts of Mafeking to shell the Boer laager. The battery took a position on the north side of the railway and opened fire. The Boers were driven out and, being followed by our shells, fled over the ridge in considerable disorder. This work occupied us about three-quarters of an hour. The rapid manner in which the battery turned out, after the trying work of the previous day and with but little rest, elicited the commendation of Colonel Plumer, who expressed his pleasure at the smart and quick way in which his order had been carried out.

"I may add that on the 18th, Colonel Baden-Powell addressed the men of the battery, thanking and complimenting them for the part they had taken in the relief of Mafeking, and the great efforts they had been called upon to make to reach Colonel Plumer's column in time to be of practical service. He also expressed surprise at their fine appearance and physique, after such a long and trying march.

"In closing this report, I wish to place on record the great encouragement and satisfaction I myself derived from the cheerful manner in which all duty was performed by the officers, N.C. officers and men of the battery, not only in the operations at Mafeking, but all through the long and arduous journey from Beira. The conduct of the men under fire, and their work at the guns on both days, is deserving of great credit.

"Scott's sights were used throughout the operations; and the supply of ammunition was entirely from the wagons."

The first night we were at Mafeking "Canada" was announced as the countersign, and we naturally accepted it as a compliment to our work in the relief.

Needless to say the people of Mafeking were overjoyed to see us, and were most expressive in their thankfulness for the service we had been enabled to do them. Lady Sarah Wilson, among others, took great interest in the Canadians, and I understand made complimentary references to us in some of her newspaper articles.

On May 19 we left Mafeking with Plumer's force for Ramathlabama, a distance of sixteen miles north of Mafeking on the railway. This move was made in order to protect the workmen engaged in repairing the railway and bridge at that place, which had been blown up by the Boers. It was between Ramathlabama and Mafeking that the car load of dynamite, sent out of the latter place by General Baden-Powell, exploded and killed so many of the enemy.

The rout of the Boers in these parts now appeared to be complete, none being seen by our scouts. It was thought that the majority left for Zeerust, a noted Transvaal town forty miles across the border. It was deemed advisable, however, to thoroughly entrench our position, the work taking three days, gun empaulments and other work being carried out.

On May 22 we stood to arms before day-break, this being our first experience in this work. The repairs to the bridge and track were finished on this day; and, what was equally welcome, a Canadian mail arrived, the first we had had for six weeks. It came via Beira.

One of the most annoying and disgusting things the battery had to contend with was lice. It was simply impossible to get rid of them—they were everywhere in millions, and seemed to come out of the ground.

On the 23rd we heard that Lord Roberts was getting near Pretoria. On the 24th a parade of the whole force was held in honour of the birthday of Her Gracious Majesty the Queen. "C" Battery marched past with guns and mules, and made a good showing, Colonel Plumer being much pleased.

Although quite hot in the day time, it was very cold at night, many of the men suffering intensely with cold feet. It was sufficiently cold to freeze the water in the water-bottles.

On the 25th Lieut. Irving, with nearly all of the remainder of the battery and the horses, wagons, &c., joined us at Ramathlabama, having come down from Bulawayo by train. A number of sick horses had been left behind at the latter place, in charge of the farrier sergeant and a few men, and these joined the battery some days later. A number of men had also been left behind sick.

The work of bringing through the horses and men of the battery from Marandellas to Bulawayo—a march of 300 miles, and then on to Ramathlabama by rail, another 500 miles—was a task of no small consideration. This task was performed by Lieut. Irving with remarkable success. Many of the horses were sick and required much attention, the roads were extremely rough and difficult and water very scarce, and I am of the opinion that this officer is deserving of the highest credit for the work he performed.

The following is a brief summary of the details connected with the march of the men and horses under Lieut. Irving from Marandellas to Bulawayo:—

They left Marandellas on Thursday, May 4, after being inspected by General Carrington, who complimented them on their appearance. There were about 100 N.C. officers and men and 120 horses, 2 guns, 2 ammunition wagons, 4 prairie wagons, the forge and store wagons. There were also 10 bullock wagons, with ammunition, baggage, forage, &c. On the road, two horses died from bites of the tse-tse fly and one from blue-tongue. One suffering from pneumonia had to be shot. One was accidently drowned. Most of the marching was done after sundown and before sunrise, as the oxen were unable to stand the heat. Another reason for this was, that the oxen required part of the day for grazing, as at night it would be difficult to prevent them from straying away and becoming a prey to wild beasts. Three of the men were taken so ill with fever as to cause considerable delay, and eventually had to be left behind with a party to look after them. After leaving Gwelo, an order by wire was received to make forced marches the rest of the trip with the two guns, two ammunition wagons and prairie wagons only.

On May 26, a part of the force at Ramathlabama, including the right and centre sections of the battery, left for Zeerust, Transvaal, at 5 a.m. All the battery officers, with the exception of Lieut. King, accompanied this force, the latter remaining at Ramathlabama in charge of the left section. This officer, with this section, rejoined us at Rustenburg on June 19, having left Ramathlabama on June 1 for Mafeking, from which time the section was attached to the force under Major General Baden-Powell, which reached Rustenburg by a different route than that taken by us. The farrier sergeant who had been left at Bulawayo with twenty-seven horses and twenty men reached Ramathlabama on May 28, the men and horses joining their respective sections. The force, with the right and left sections of the battery, moved cautiously towards Zeerust, arriving there without incident. The place was found clear of the fighting part of the enemy. The landrost demurred somewhat against handing over the keys of the public buildings, but on receiving notice from Colonel Plumer that the place would be shelled, he quickly complied. Zeerust is an attractive little place of about 1,000 inhabitants, though for the last three years it has been a hotbed for fever. We remained here until June 8.

It might be interesting, as well as for purposes of record, to give a detail of the battery strength at this time:—At Zeerust, 4 officers, 109 N.C.O.'s and men; Mafeking, 1 officer, 51 N.C.O.'s and men; hospital at Mafeking, 1; hospital at Bulawayo, 1; hospital at Marandellas, 4; hospital at Cape Town, 1; invalided to England, 1; storeman at base, Cape Town, 1; total, 174.

The force left Zeerust for Rustenburg at 7 a.m. on June 8, the battery leaving six men behind in hospital. We reached Vlakfontein at 9 p.m. on the 9th. On the 10th, we received a telegram from Lord Roberts congratulating the force on the part it had taken in the relief of Mafeking. We left at 2 p.m. on the 11th, arriving at Reit Valley at 9 p.m. Starting from the latter place at 2 a.m. on the 12th, we got to Woodstock at 6 p.m. Here the eldest son of Kruger surrendered. Some of the Australians, under Colonel Airy, narrowly escaped capture here by a superior force of Boers, who evacuated Woodstock shortly before our arrival. Rustenburg was reached at 5 a.m. on the 14th. Eight hundred well-armed Boers left this place a few hours before our arrival, and we therefore went in unmolested and took possession Many rifles and much ammunition had been collected by us on our way, and this work continued about Rustenburg for some weeks, over a thousand rifles being brought in in a short time. President Kruger owned a farm in this vicinity, and the place is known as an old dopper settlement.

The district we had passed through was a vast improvement on anything we had yet seen in the matter of soil and agricultural advantages, the same conditions holding good all through the Rustenburg valley, this valley being what may properly be termed, and is I believe known as, the garden of the Transvaal.

Rustenburg at ordinary times has a population of between 1,000 and 2,000, and is between 50 and 60 miles west of Pretoria. Major General Baden-Powell joined us before we reached Rustenburg and took command of the force, which had been designated the Rhodesian Field Force. Every one in the column was glad to see the popular hero of Mafeking again. Rustenburg was, as events proved, destined to be the scene and base of our operations for some time to come. Our camp was on a ridge about a mile from and commanding the town.

On June 16, a circular from Lord Roberts was published, thanking the troops for their work since entering the enemy's country, and saying that as soon as the district was pacified, it was his intention to attach the troops of our column to a larger force under his own immediate command. That time never came, however, as this district has since probably given more trouble to the military authorities than any other, either in the Transvaal or the Orange River Colony. General Baden-Powell, having left for Mafeking, returned on the 19th, bringing with him the Protectorate Regiment—which had undergone the siege at Mafeking—and our own left section under Lieutenant King. They had come via the Ottoshoop and Malmani route, the left section having lost seven horses and left three men behind in hospital.

On June 20, Lieutenant Colonel Drury, commanding the Brigade Division, Captain Thacker, Adjutant, and 10 staff non-commissioned officers and men joined us at Rustenburg, having come via Kimberley and Mafeking. On the 23rd, "C" Battery was inspected by Lieutenant Colonel Drury. The battery turned out six guns, six wagons, store wagon and forge, the latter two being drawn by mules. The battery underwent a rigid inspection and performed considerable field work, being complimented by the inspecting officer at the close.

On the 26th, nineteen remounts were received by the battery. By this time many Boers in the district had surrendered, and on the 29th orders were received for the force to be prepared to leave Rustenburg on July 2.

Orders were received on the 1st for the greater part of the force to move on Sterkstroom at 10 a.m. on the 2nd, and to carry fourteen days' rations. One squadron of the Australian Bushmen, the 12 pounder belonging to the B. S. A. P. and one maxim, with detachments remained at Rustenburg. We left as arranged, and, stopping for one hour only for dinner, proceeded along the Pretoria road at a lively rate until 9.30 p. m., when we bivouacked in the darkness and rain. We continued the march at 7 in the morning, reaching Wolherter's Kop for dinner. It was at first thought we were to remain here for some days, but later orders send us off again at 2.30 p.m. reaching Commando Nek in the evening. After leaving Rustenburg the Force was constantly on the alert, as it was reported there were many of the enemy in the district. The Left Section took position, with a part of the Force, at the entrance to the Pass, remaining there until the following day at noon. The other part of the Force bivouacked about two miles in, and on the banks of the Crocodile River, the night turning out wet and miserable. The folllowing morning our centre section was detailed to take position on Umsiligazi's Nek, about three miles farther in the Pass and across the Crocodile, remaining there some days; the remainder of the Force eventually occupying Reitfontein kopje. The enemy were not encountered, however, and, on the 6th July we left again for Rustenburg where we arrived on 8th, and learned that the enemy had attempted to retake the place in our absence. The small garrison had fought well; but when nearly overpowered had received unexpected assistance from a body of Australians just entering Rustenburg, having come from Flandsfontein. The enemy were driven off, the Australians fighting in a most gallant manner and losing some four or five of their number.

We now remained in Rustenburg for some time. We learned from a reliable source that there were many of the enemy in the district, they having been driven in from other territory. In fact, the seriousness of our situation was such that General Baden-Powell deemed it advisable to prepare for a seige, and, as a beginning, we were put on three-quarter rations.

Every precaution was taken to defend the camp. Under the superintendence of Captain Panet an excellent fort was built for the protection of the Battery guns, adequate shelter for the horses also being provided. These works were not done without much labour, the whole Battery being utilized for many days. General Baden-Powell, in one of his characteristic orders advised us to "sit tight and shoot straight;" and Lord Roberts sent us an encouraging message, saying that he would have us relieved as soon as a column could be despatched for the purpose.

Our left section, under Lieut. King, was detailed to take a position in the centre of the town. The horses were picketed in an orange grove. The guns were entrenched so as to command the principal streets. Rumours of an impending attack floated about occasionally: but I think the majority of the men regarded the siege and the threatened attack as something not to be taken too seriously.

On July 20, orders were issued for the whole force to be in readiness to move at seven a.m. the following morning, and stating that there might be an action before leaving camp. It turned out that the Boers were in force at Oliphant's Nek, about seven miles from Rustenburg: and that General Lord Methuen, who had been sent to our relief, was to attack them in the morning, our force being expected to cut off their retreat. Methuen made his attack, driving them out; but owing I believe to some misunderstanding, we were not at the time of his attack sufficiently near to do much damage to the retiring enemy. About twenty-five shells were fired by our guns, at a range of 5,000 yards.

On the 22nd a body of Australians got into a hot corner at Mahato's Pass, some of the troops from the camp being sent out to relieve them, arriving just in time to save them from annihilation. The Australians had lost nearly all their horses—over 200—and a number of their officers and men had been killed and wounded.

On the 22nd Generals Methuen, Smith-Dorrien and Baden-Powell paid a visit to "Fort Canada"—as our fort had been named, and were apparently much pleased with the work.

On the night of the 25th we experienced a thunder storm, with such a heavy downpour of rain that will not be forgotten soon by any of us. Everything and everybody were soaked to the skin, and we passed a most miserable night. It was followed in the morning, however, by our first ration of rum, or dop, to use a South African term. It was issued after this on an average of about once a week.

Nothing more of importance occurred until July 30, when we heard rumours of our being probably attacked. We stood to arms before daybreak each morning. The position was a strong one, and it would have taken a large force of the enemy to capture it. The spare gunners were issued with rifles; and while they, in the early mornings, before daybreak, stood in the trenches within the fort, and the gunners about the guns, the drivers harnessed their horses ready to turn out at a moment's notice.

There was only one mail sent out by us from Rustenburg during July, and as that was captured by the enemy we may naturally assume that an attack was quite possible, particularly in the light of more recent information.

On August 1, orders were received for Lt. Col. Plumer to be a Brigadier General while commanding a mixed force.

Heavy firing was heard in the direction of Commando Nek on August 2. About this time our right section, under Lieut. Leslie, was detailed to replace one of the seven prs. of the B. S. A. Police on Helio Kop, a very high kopje, from the top of which, an excellent view could be obtained of the surrounding country. It was a difficult task to get horses and guns up on this elevation.

The enemy's force in the Rustenburg district was known to be 3,750 men with ten guns, with an additional force at Commando Nek with seven maxims. The laagers were stationary; but 1,000 men could be easily opposed to us at any place on short notice. Heavy artillery fire continued all day on the 4th and 5th from the direction of Mahato's Nek, and the greater part of the force left for there on the latter date, the centre and left sections of the battery accompanying it. They went as far as Koster's river and returned next day without having met the enemy. Orders were then issued for the evacuation of Rustenburg, such of the inhabitants as wished to go to accompany the force. A column under Brigadier General Mahon, which had arrived the day before, was also to return in the direction of Commando Nek, in which direction our own route lay. We heard at this time that General Carrington's column had found it necessary to retire to Mafeking.

We left Rustenburg on the morning of August 7, as arranged, destroying much Boer ammunition before moving off.

We had some notable prisoners with us, there being Pete Kruger, son of the late President, Commandant Duplessis, a relative of ex-President Steyn, a French officer and others. Commando Nek was reached on the 9th, and on getting into the Pass we found many British troops there under General Ian Hamilton.

On the following day the force of General Baden-Powell again crossed the the Crocodile River and took up our old position on Reitfontein kopje, where we remained until August 19, there being many Boers in the neighbourhood. Since our last visit here, a British force had been cut up and captured a short distance from this position, at a place well-known now as Umsiligazi's Nek.

While still at Reitfontein kopje, DeWet passed within a short distance of us, his advance guard attacking a foraging party of ours. In the evening, it was reported, he sent a message to General Baden-Powell demanding our surrender, to which the latter replied to "come and fetch us." No attack was made, however. Two 5-inch guns had been turned over to our force by General Hamilton, and we were not in a position to be trifled with. These guns were manned by detachments of the Royal Artillery and accompanied us in our future treks.

We were now only 16 miles from Pretoria, but although we saw the town at a distance a few days later, we were not destined to enter it for three months yet.

On the 15th, three months mail reached us; and, after having been so long almost without communication with the outside world, this was a day long to be remembered.

Our position on this kopje was a very cold one, particularly while standing to arms, as we did each morning before daybreak, the hard frosts being a great contrast to the extreme heat during the day.

The day after our arrival here, the centre section, under Lieut. Irving, was detailed to occupy a position near a Kaffir stadt some distance from our kopje, and within range of Umsiligazi's Nek. On the 18th, the other four guns took part in a reconnaissance in force to this nek, being joined here by the centre section. The enemy was not found, and we returned to camp, after which orders were received to move at 2 a.m. the day following, the hour being subsequently changed to 5 a.m. As a forced march was contemplated, our transport wagons and baggage, the surplus ammunition and the spare men were to follow us leisurely, Captain Panet having charge of these.

On August 19 we started, going for some distance along the Pretoria road. We went in a northerly direction, just catching a glimpse of Pretoria lying between the hills. Lord Roberts and Staff joined our force here, and the force marched past the general, who seemed well pleased with the Mafeking relief force. I was sent for by Lord Roberts, who expressed to me the deep gratification it gave him to meet the battery which, as he himself put it, "had made that famous march from Beira to Mafeking." "It was capital," said His Lordship. His kindly manner, and the way he inquired about the health of the men, indicated that he meant all he said, and that the Canadian Artillery held a high place in his estimation.

Lt.-Col. Drury and the Brigade Division Staff left the battery temporarily at this place for Pretoria.

After a short stay for dinner we continued our march, moving towards Waterval, bivouacking on the ground on which an action had been fought the day previous, and about six miles from Waterval.

In due course we reached Waterval, the scene of imprisonment of so many British prisoners during the war. We were now attached to General Paget's column. On the 20th, the latter's advance guard engaged the enemy's rear. Orders were now received to take all the rations with us that could be carried, this being a supply depot.

It was then arranged for General Baden-Powell's column to prepare for a lengthy chase, Paget's column following and acting as supply. "C" Battery, with full gun-detachments, accompanied General Baden-Powell's force. The battery travelled very light, taking no blankets, and leaving behind all their transport, three ammunition wagons and the spare men, with Paget's force. These were expected to rejoin us the same night but were unable to do so.

For three days a stiff chase was kept up, the force covering a distance of over sixty miles, "C" Battery as well as the rest of the force being in action a great part of the time, the fighting commencing shortly after leaving Waterval. The casualties of our force during the first day, at Klip Drift, (Haman's Kraal), were twenty-seven, including five killed. Among the latter was Colonel Spreckly, "E" Squadron, Rhodesia Regt., a resident of Bulawayo and a very popular officer. His death was keenly regretted by the whole force, his well known figure being much missed by "C" Battery officers, with whom he was on intimate terms. It was during the action that "C" Battery, by their shell fire, were enabled to save two squadrons of the Rhodesia regiment, the latter having been ambushed by the enemy. The effectiveness of the battery fire was very apparent to these squadrons, the commanding officer expressing to me his thanks on their behalf. Our ranges during this action were never longer than 1,300 yards, and at times as short as 800.

We kept up the chase for the following two days, sustaining a few casualties. We passed Pienaar's River, following them up to Warm Baths, but they succeeded in getting into the hills around this place, although we managed to release 150 British prisoners. Their convoy narrowly escaped capture. We at once took precautions against an attack on our position here.

We remained at Warm Baths for the time, as the chase had been a hard one on our horses, some of them dying on the road.

Warm Baths takes its name from the hot springs at that place and from the two hundred or so modern bath houses erected there. These baths and the hot water were a real boon to our men after their past experiences.

Throughout the campaign most of the marching was done at night, the usual routine being reveille at 2 or 3 a.m., march at 3 or 4. This was exceptionally trying on the drivers, who had but one hour to harness and hook in, get their breakfast and look after the packing of their blankets and other articles of kit. A stop was usually made at 9 or 10 a.m., marching again at 3 or thereabouts and bivouacking some time in the night. In the interval the men had to bake their bread, wash their clothes and keep their kit in order, besides attending to the horses, harness, guns, &c. Much time was often taken up watering the horses, the water usually being either very scarce or long distances from the lines. Our work during the past week had been exceedingly exhausting on men and horses. The men had to do without blankets and in consequence had suffered much from the cold at night. From Klip Drift the roads had been very heavy, and the heat of the day allied to the fact that no water could be obtained for twenty miles, had a very deteriorating effect, a number of our horses dropping by the way.

About noon on the 24th General Baden-Powell's force again moved out accompanied by the battery, going towards the Nek, the route taken by the retiring Boers. The enemy were there and the battery fired a few rounds, but the general deemed it inadvisable to attempt the passage of the Nek, and so by a circuitous route and in order to baffle the enemy we got into the Nylstroom valley beyond by another pass. The whole of the following day was passed in reconnoitring in the vicinity of Nylstroom, but none of the enemy were seen. We therefore returned to Warm Baths. It was reported later, however, that our position at Nylstroom was extremely perilous owing to the overwhelming force of the enemy who were in the neighbourhood, who were at the time preparing to cut off our retirement to Warm Baths, and it was understood that our small force got through the pass just in time. Colonel Drury and staff, and also Captain Panet with the transport, were at Warm Baths on our return.

General Plumer's Column, "C" Battery excepted, left shortly for Pienaar's River, General Baden-Powell being called to Pretoria in connection with the organization of the South African Constabulary. The latter addressed the men of "C" Battery before taking his departure, complimenting them upon their work in the field, and saying that but for them, he would many a time have been in a hole. Our men much regretted to see Plumer's Rhodesians separated from them, a mutual confidence having arisen between these two bodies of men tending greatly to the efficiency of the force as a fighting machine.

Colonel Chapman, a British artillery officer of considerable ability, was in command of the camp at Warm Baths, under General Paget, and our relations with him were of the pleasantest character. I very much regret to have heard that since our return he has died of fever. The 38th Battery, R.A., were with us at this place. This battery had seen considerable service in the campaign, having lost nearly all their officers and an exceedingly large percentage of N.C. officers and men.

On the 29th August Lt. Col. Drury left for Pretoria, Captain Thacker and the remainder of the Brigade Division Staff going the following day.

On the 31st a train arrived from Pretoria with remounts, of which the battery received quite a number next day.

Orders were received on the night of the 2nd September for the force to stand to arms early the following morning, and for the battery guns to take position on a kopje about a mile above the battery lines. It appeared that the Boers had erected guns on the kopjes within easy range of our camp, and that an attack was expected in the morning. It came earlier than some expected, for the battery had hardly finished hooking-in the next morning before the Boers began shelling us in earnest. They were using 45 prs. for the most part, and continued the practice the greater part of day, their guns eventually being silenced by our two 5-inch. Their third shell dropped within a few feet of "C" Battery Officers' tent as it was being taken down by a squad of men. Many more fell within our lines and about the guns during the day, but luckily the most of them failed to burst. One "C" Battery man was severely wounded while tampering with one of these unexploded shells.

This ended the shell fire on the part of the Boers, but a persistent attack with rifles was continued on the camp until the evening of the 9th, a duration of seven days.

This period of our service in South Africa was one of the most interesting of the whole campaign. The Boers held impregnable positions within easy artillery range, and only the presence of our own two 5-inch guns made our own positions tenable. The Boer rifle fire was incessant, and many Mauser bullets dropped into our lines. The battery guns took up the same positions each day, reveille being at 3.30, our guns taking up their positions at 5 a.m. or before. One gun of the left section, under Lieut. King was sent, for a few days, about eight miles down the railway, where the line had been cut. The second day a determined attack with rifles was made on the station, the enemy getting within a few hundred yards. This necessitated the posting of a 5-inch gun at that point, and our centre section, under Lieut. Irving, was also stationed there from that time. The Boers freely boasted of their ability to take Warm Baths, and I believe that it was considered possible by some of our side that they might do so. General Paget was in command, and he immediately wired for Gen. Plumer, who was at Pienaar's River, a distance of about 30 miles.

On the arrival of Gen. Plumer, the left section of "C" Battery was detailed to accompany a part of his force, under Major Rolt, on a reconnaissance of the Boer position, which apparently was unassailable. The Munster Fusiliers, with Paget's column, attempted the storming of part of the enemy's position with the bayonet in order to capture a gun, but it was found the risk would be too great. Good practice was made by our guns from day to day, and some experimenting was done with the long blue time percussion fuse. The Boers also experimented, taking the hospital in the hotel as a target, in spite of protests on our part.

During all this period good water was very scarce, and the stench from dead animals in the vicinity of the camp almost unbearable. Probably this was the cause for evacuating the place, as many men were being taken down with fever each day, not excepting our own battery. At any rate an evacuation of the place was ordered, all of our positions being vacated cautiously on the night of September 9, the morning of the 10th finding us back at Pienaar's River.

On the 11th arrangements were made for Plumer's column, including "C" Battery, to make another dash after the enemy, all our baggage and spare ammunition being handed over to Paget's force, which again acted as supply. The men's valises were left at Pienaar's River, to be forwarded, it was thought, into Pretoria. On the 12th we left for Zoutpan (Salt-pan), arriving there on the 13th, Paget's column reaching the same place about the same time by a different route. The next day we reached Hebron, a Kaffir town of some size. While here we heard that Mr. Kruger had formally resigned the office of President of the South African Republic, and that both he and Mr. Reitz had crossed into Portuguese territory with the archives.

A move was then made towards Roode Kop, the advance guard of Plumer's force being fired upon at this place by Boers in khaki, one of our column being killed. The whole valley in which we were was then laid waste, the crops being destroyed and the houses either burnt or blown up.

On the 20th, at Waterval, the two columns again divided, Plumer's force going towards Haman's Kraal, Paget's to Wagon Drift, the former a couple of days later joining the latter at the Drift. Thousands of sheep and cattle were captured here and sent towards Pretoria. On the 21st the force moved to Sybrand's Kraal, a few miles further on, remaining in that neighbourhood until October 5. On September 24 I was taken into hospital, Pretoria, Lieut. Irving taking temporary command of the Battery. The Battery strength at this time numbered 124 of all ranks, the remaining 50 being in hospital in various parts of the country. It was about this time that General Erasmus made certain overtures to General Paget looking to the surrender of the former's Commando. The negotiations amounted to very little, although small bodies of the enemy surrendered from time to time. A couple of day's sports took place here, being participated in by representatives of all the corps.

Captain Panet, who had been in the hospital owing to an injury since September 19, rejoined the Battery on September 30, and took over the command. On October 5 a move was made towards Pretoria by a circuitous route, arriving at Derdeport, 7 miles from Pretoria, on the 12th. We were here but two or three miles from the camp of the 1st Canadian Contingent, and no time was lost in exchanging visits. The day following our arrival, General Plumer's force, "C" Battery excepted, left for Daspoort with a view to their disbandment, and it was with sincere and genuine regret that "C" Battery saw them go.

We were soon after attached to Colonel Hickman's force, and in a short time were again speeding towards Pienaar's River. General Plumer almost immediately came out with another force, consisting of B.S.A. Police and Australians, and, much to our satisfaction, we were again attached to his command.

On the 22nd the Pay Sergeant of the Battery was sent to Pretoria, en route to Cape Town, being required there in connection with the pay lists. This was the first indication of the Canadians being destined for home at an early date.

On the afternoon of October 22, the Battery, with Plumer's force, left Pienaar's River, treking once more over the route leading to Makapan's Stadt. The Battery moved as light as possible, leaving behind three ammunition wagons, 23 horses and 28 N.C. Officers and men. The rainy season commenced in earnest now, the march to Makapan's Stadt being done in a pouring rain accompanied by a terrific thunderstorm. We bivouacked at the Stadt that night, in total darkness but for the lightning, by the aid of which alone we were enabled to picket our horses, the lightning on this occasion being the most vivid and wonderful any of us had ever witnessed. It was our misfortune to have much wet weather for the remainder of our time in the field. On this night every one was soaked to the skin, and there being no fires, turned in without supper, sleep being an impossibility.

The following day our left section was attached to Colonel Hickman's force in a move towards Jericho, the remainder of Plumer's force going to Finch Zyn Drift. The latter force captured a number of Boers and 2,000 head of cattle on the way. We learned during the day that Hickman's force also had captured a small Boer laager, wagons and 1,500 head of cattle, their force bivouacking at De Wet's Drift for the night.

On the 24th Plumer's force moved South towards Jericho and shortly heard heavy firing, soon coming up to where the left section was in action and just about to cease fire, they having fired 42 rounds from this position. With these few rounds they had succeeded in silencing the Boer guns, which were reported to consist of two 15 prs. and one 7 pr. M.L., the enemy managing to clear off with them. The combined force remainded at Jericho all day of the 25th. The following day the Centre Section, with part of the force was sent to Syn Kop, a distance of five miles. A part of Paget's column from Pienaar's River joined us to-day, bringing with them our three ammunition wagons and 33 remounts. On the 27th the remainder of the force moved to Syn Kop. On the 28th the remainder of Paget's column came up with us, accompanied by the 7th R.F.A. This Battery had been in many of the big fights, with the loss only of a single man. They had 14 D.S.M.s and 1 V.C. to their credit in the war, the latter being the first one granted during the present war in South Africa.

The whole force now began to work towards Rustenburg, arriving there on the night of the 29th, where we remained the following day. The place was being held by two battalions of infantry, and one section of the R. F. A., Colonel Campbell being in command. Fort Canada was found intact.

On October 31 the force left for Mahato Pass, near which place, at Twee River, the enemy was found in some strength the following day, our centre section being in action from 11.30 a.m. until the evening. They fired about 100 rounds, and were constantly sniped at. The ranges varied from 1,600 to 2,700 yards. The country was somewhat difficult for artillery operations. The loss to our side this day was two Yeomanry killed and five wounded. At the close of the day it was found that an immense swarm of wasps had taken possession of the officers' wagon, and it took two and a half hours, and a good many stings, to get back the wagon. On this date a communication was received from the Adjutant General, Pretoria, asking for the date of expiration of "C" Battery's period of service.

The rain, which had been falling almost day and night of late, was making things very miserable It had rained all day and night of November 1, and continued to do so for another 24 hours, the men having no means of drying themselves.

We moved south early on the morning of the 2nd, and during the day the two 5-inch guns got badly stuck in a drift, and were left there throughout the night through sheer inability to get them out. It took between fifty and sixty oxen the next day to move them. The roads were simply awful, and dead oxen were lying about everywhere. We reached Ratsegaai on the evening of the 2nd, having made but 7 miles. The enemy were met in the vicinity the next day, the cow guns, (5-inch) doing some fine practice at long range, evidently finding the enemy with every shell. The Right Section was detailed for special duty this day, returning to our bivouac late in the evening. On Sunday, the 4th, all three sections were busy in different positions, occasionally firing a few rounds. This kind of work continued for a few days, the force making slow progress, and meeting the enemy nearly every day, our sections occasionally coming into action when required.

Another action of considerable importance took place on the 8th. The Boers had prepared a cunning ambuscade for us at Simoonfontein settlement, and, all unknown to us, were waiting until the force, as they expected, would cross the drift. We did not cross, however, our horses being watered at the drift only, but within easy range of the Boers who withheld their fire. As we were moving away the enemy were, much to their disappointment, compelled to take us in the rear. This came as a great surprise to us, but turning and opening with our guns, pom-poms and rifles, we sent them off somewhat hurriedly, the battery taking part in this work. We no doubt escaped serious loss by not attempting to cross the drift.

We now began our return trek towards Pretoria, via Rustenburg, reaching the latter place at noon on the 10th. We found Broadwood's column here.

The effective force of the battery was now reduced to 115, all ranks, and a few days later to 102. We left Rustenburg on the 12th, and passing Sterkstroom were surprised at the great numbers of dead oxen lost there by Broadwood's column in bringing in their convoy.

We reached Wonderboom, a few miles from Pretoria, on the 20th. We had already received word from Lieut. Col. Drury that we were to sail for home on December 1. It was at first intended that we should continue in the field until the end of November, but the strength of the battery in men and horses being so much reduced, it was at length decided that our campaign services should end here. Before parting from the battery General Paget addressed the officers and men on parade, thanking them in complimentary terms for the excellent work they had done in the field, both under his own command and that of General Plumer, concluding with the remark that they could go home with the assurance of their being second to no other body of troops in the world. Generals Paget and Plumer were then heartily cheered by the battery. General Plumer was much affected and unable to make a speech, merely saying, "good-bye, men," and shaking hands with the officers. Those who had served with him for the last eight months felt that they were parting with one in whose ability they had extraordinary confidence and under whose command they would gladly serve again did opportunity offer.

We then turned over the best of our horses to the pom-pom section of the 7th Battery, R.F.A., and on November 21, marched into Pretoria. "D" Battery came in later. Both batteries left for Cape Town on December 3, after much delay and annoyance, owing to the wash-out of a railway bridge at Irene a few miles from Pretoria. We stopped a day at Worcester, Cape Colony, the Dutch colonists there at the time creating more or less cause for apprehension. Here we met "E" Battery. We arrived at Maitland camp on the 12th, going under canvas for the night.

The batteries and the C. M. Rifles arrived at Cape Town on 13th and almost immediately went on board the "Roslin Castle." Prior to this, however, a parade was held on the market square, Cape Town, under command of Lieut. Colonel Drury, the men being addressed by General Forestier Walker and the Mayor of Cape Town. The former, among other things, said, that, "he had had the duty of directing and starting "C" Battery, R.C.F.A., on the way to Mafeking, via Beira, and had been specially interested in their getting there in time, which, thanks to their wonderful march, they were enabled to do. He felt they must have endured considerable hardships during that march and that the Empire owed them a debt of gratitude for that and the valuable assistance rendered by them at the relief of Mafeking."

The Mayor of Cape Town said: The over-sea Colonials had given Cape Colony their assistance at a time when most needed and most appreciated, when the Colony was being invaded. The Canadians showed what stuff they were made of at Paardeberg, the Australians at Elands River and the Canadian Artillery at Mafeking. If the time ever comes when Canada or Australia are in similar straits they may depend upon assistance from Cape Colony. The Colony intended to present a worthy souvenir of appreciation to each Canadian and Australian who served in South Africa, a souvenir that could be handed down with pride in their respective families for generations."

At the last moment an order was received for the guns and equipment of "C" Battery to be left behind. On the battery reaching Cape Town I took over the command of it from Captain Panet, who had been in command since September 30. Lieut. W. B. King had received a commission in the South African Constabulary; and 17 N.C. Officers and men had received their discharges to join Major Howard's Canadian Scouts and Colt Battery, a corps made up entirely of Canadians who remained behind to see further service in South Africa. The conditions were that each man should be made a sergeant and receive pay at colonial rates. Nine N.C. Officers and men were at time of sailing left in hospital in South Africa, the number of those returning to Canada by the "Roslin Castle" being, officers, 4; N.C. officers and men, 122.

The "Roslin Castle" left Table Bay at 4.30 p.m. on December 13. Our voyage was very pleasant most of the way home, although somewhat rough when within a few days of Halifax. We reached Halifax the evening of January 8.

We disembarked on the morning of the 9th, and after a march through the principal streets of Halifax were banquetted at the drill hall. The men had already received their discharges, and left for their homes in the evening.

Necessarily, the number of those who returned at once to Kingston was small, being some thirty or forty, but they were well received by the citizens, who tendered them a sumptuous banquet a few days later.

I have now but to add a brief summary of a few points that seem to demand notice. One very satisfactory thing is worthy of record here, i.e., that although the Battery was in action over twenty days during the campaign not a man was lost. The same thing may be said in the matter of sickness on the field, although between sixty and seventy were admitted into hospital suffering principally from fever and dysentery no deaths occurred. The casualties among the horses were considerable, about one half of the total number dying during the campaign.

In closing this report, I desire to draw particular attention to the valuable assistance at all times received from my officers without exception. In the general work of the Battery, the services of Captain Panet were invaluable; while the different sections under Lieuts. Irving, King and Leslie, respectively, were at all times in a high state of efficiency. I also desire to bring to your notice the untiring efforts of Sergt. Major W. G. Gimblett, whose valuable assistance to me in matters of discipline, &c., tended much to the efficiency of the Battery. Of the other N.C. Officers, and the men themselves, I feel I cannot sufficiently express my deep sense of appreciation of their good work throughout the campaign. Under all circumstances they did their duty cheerfully and well; and I may say that much credit is due the Nos. 1 of subdivisions for their unflagging attention to the details connected with their subdivisions.

In conclusion, I have no hesitancy in saying that "C" Battery did their utmost to uphold the honour of Canada, and were I again called upon to command another Battery for active service, it would be my earnest desire to secure as good officers and as good N.C. Officers and men as formed "C" Special Service Battery, Royal Canadian Field Artillery.

I have the honour to be, sir,
Your obedient servant,

J. A. G. HUDON, Lieut.-Col.,
Late Com. "C" S. S. Battery, R.C.F.A.

APPENDIX E 2.

From O. C. "D" Battery, R.C.F.A., to O. C. Brigade Division, R.C.F.A.

OTTAWA, March 9, 1901.

SIR,—I have the honour to report in accordance with your orders of February 1, 1901, as follows in regard to mobilization and service of "D" Battery, R.C.A., in South Africa:—

In accordance with the order dated December 27, 1899, the mobilization of "D" Battery, R.C.A., was commenced at Ottawa under my direction. The guns of the 2nd Battery, C.A., were taken over, and the Battery was brought up to a war strength in equipment by requisitions on the 2nd and 3rd Batteries, C.A., and the Militia Department Stores. The horses were purchased in Port Hope, London, Guelph and Ottawa, the larger proportion being obtained at the latter point. The Battery was inspected on January 10, by Major General Hutton, G.O.C., and entrained for Halifax on the morning of the 15th. The men were accommodated in colonist sleepers and the horses in palace horse cars, and, though the weather was extremely cold, a very comfortable journey was made to the point of embarkation, which was reached on January 17. The men were quartered in the armoury, and the horses stabled at the exhibition buildings. The embarkation of the guns on board the troopship Laurentian was immediately commenced under the direction of Lt. McCrea. "E" Battery, R.C.A., arrived at Halifax on the morning of the 19th, and its guns were also embarked. The horses of both batteries were embarked on Friday, the 19th, with the exception of forty-six horses that were found to be suffering from distemper. The men of both Batteries marched from the armoury, after being inspected by the Lt. Governor of Nova Scotia, Gen. Lord William Seymour, commanding the British troops at Halifax, and Major General Hutton. They arrived at the Navy yards at noon, and embarked on the Laurentian, which pulled out into the stream. Owing to a dense fog, the vessel was obliged to lay to until the following morning at 8.30, when the voyage to Cape Town commenced.

The troops on board were under my command as senior officer. During the first three days out a heavy storm prevailed, which knocked the horses about a great deal, and on the third day out two of them died. A number became afflicted with congestion of the lungs and pneumonia, and demanded a great deal of care. After the storm abated the regular routine for troops on board ship was inaugurated. Two guns were brought on deck for drill purposes, and during the voyage gun drill was held twice a day, and lectures were given by the officers on ammunition, materiel and gunnery. There were also physical exercise drills to improve the physique of the men. On January 31, Cape Verde was reached and, accompanied by Major Ogilvie and the Adjutant of the Brigade Division, I visited Her Majesty's ship Cambrian and reported our arrival to Capt. McAlpine. I also sent a cable to the C. S. O., Ottawa, reporting our arrival and the fact that sixteen horses had died during the voyage to that point. The Laurentian sailed the same day for Cape Town. After reaching the tropics, the health of the horses gradually improved. Clipping machines were put to work, and as many horses as possible were clipped. The horses were so crowded, especially on the lower deck, that it told very greatly against their health, and made it difficult for the men to get round to work among them. During the remainder of the voyage to Cape Town, the same routine on board ship was pursued as in the early part of the voyage. An officers' signalling class was established, and its members became very proficient in sending and receiving messages with flags. I desire to specially refer to this, as the Battery found it of invaluable service later on, and I would strongly recommend that a small corps of signallers should be instructed in connection with every Battery. The weather continued calm throughout the remainder of the voyage, and Cape Town was reached about 11 p.m. of February 16. The total number of horses lost during the voyage was twenty-six, principally as the result of colds contracted previous to embarkation.

ARRIVAL AT CAPE TOWN.

The Laurentian was docked at noon February 17, and the unloading of guns and stores was immediately commenced. The guns and wagons being removed to the dock and put together. On arrival at Cape Town, I was met by Lt.-Col. C. W. Drury, to whom I handed over the command of the brigade division, and the documents entrusted to me for him. On Sunday, February 18, "D" Battery, horses and harness were disembarked. The Battery was hooked in and marched to Green Point Common, where it went into camp at 5 p.m. On Monday, February 19, stores were distributed and equipment completed, with exception of shortages in canteens, waterbottles and valises, caused by requisitions in Halifax not being filled. On the following day, the Canadian artillery paraded in drill order and marched through the city, receiving a very cordial reception from large crowds of people on the streets who had turned out to see the parade.

From February 21 to March 3, marching order parades were held every day under the command of the O. C. Brigade Division. The horses improved rapidly in health, and in less than a week were in first class condition. The gunners were daily exercised in standing gun drill, and the drivers in driving drill.

At noon on Sunday, March 4, orders were received for four guns of "D" Battery to entrain for Victoria Road. The right and centre sections left Green Point Camp at 1.20 and entrained at 3 p.m., leaving Cape Town at 4.45. Officers, Major Hurdman Capt. Eaton, Lts. Van Tuyl and McCrea. Victoria Road, 120 miles north of Cape Town, was reached at 2.20 a.m., March 6, and the guns detrained at 5.30 a.m. On the following day we marched to Victoria West, escorted by a squadron of the New Zealand Mounted Rifles. The force went into camp at Victoria West and was reinforced on the following day by two squadrons of Imperial Yeomanry. On Saturday, March 10, the left section of "D" Battery, which had been left at Cape Town under Lt. Morrison, rejoined the Battery, accompanied by one squadron of the Canadian Mounted Rifles. On the following day, a squadron of West Australian Mounted Infantry, and another squadron of Canadian Mounted Rifles joined the force, which was mobilizing for an advance into the Karoo district, under the command of Col. Sir Charles Parsons.

THE KAROO MARCH.

On Tuesday, March 13, the force commenced its march into the Karoo District, a very barren country resembling the Soudan. Supplies of every sort, including forage for the horses, had to be carried with the column. There was very little water, and what there was, was contained in small muddy and brackish pools. Carnarvon was reached at 10.45 a.m. on March 17, after a very severe series of marches, including a night march, on which occasion the horses were under harness from 8 a.m. until 2 a.m. the following morning. The Mounted Infantry scouted the country to the front and flanks, but the rebels, who were reported to be in force throughout the district, retired in front of us without offering any resistance. At Carnarvon, a flying column, consisting of the right section of 'D' Battery, under Lt. McCrea, escorted by a squadron each of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, New Zealanders and West Australians, was sent on ahead towards Kenhardt. This force left at 5.45 p.m., March 19, and during the next few weeks had an extremely arduous experience. It pushed on as rapidly as possible, but from March 22 to March 27, were detained by extremely heavy rains south of Oliphant's river. On the latter date, the rains having ceased, the column was enabled to cross with great difficulty, the stream with its approaches being 1,500 yards wide. On March 31, after heavy marching, during which several artillery horses played out, the column arrived at Kenhardt, where it was joined by Col. Sir Chas. Parsons, and the British flag was hoisted, the rebels having retired from the town without offering resistance. The force remained there until April 8, when it commenced its return march to Victoria Road, which was reached on April 17. The march was extremely trying, there being very little forage for the horses, five of which died or had to be shot. On arrival at Victoria Road they were in very poor condition, having been half starved and most of them without shoes.

THE MAIN BODY IN THE KAROO.

Lt. Col. Drury, with "E" Battery, joined the force at Carnarvon on March 17th, having pushed on after it from Victoria Road. On March 21st, the main body, under Lt. Col. Drury, marched from Carnarvon towards Kenhardt, making twenty-four miles the first day and seventeen miles the second. On March 23rd, the column was overtaken at Van Wyks Vlei by a heavy rain storm, which continued for three days and prevented any movement during that time. The storm also seriously interfered with the line of communication, and supplies, including forage, were seriously depleted. On the 27th the column marched to Oliphant's river, but found it impassable. After remaining there three days waiting for the water to go down, supplies became so short that it was necessary to retire towards Carnarvon. Kenhardt, the objective point of the expedition, having been occupied by the flying column, Sir Charles Parsons directed the main body to make its way out to De Aar. On April 1st, while in camp at Van Wyks Vlei, Driver R. Bradley, of "D" Battery, got into a hole while watering his horse at the dam, and being unable to swim was rescued with much difficulty. He was insensible when brought out, but was resuscitated within half an hour. His lungs, however, had become so clogged with sand and mud during his immersion that he died the same night. Driver Hal. Walters, of "D" Battery, and Pte. T. Firne, of the West Australians, exhibited much bravery in connection with the rescue of Bradley. The force marched for Carnarvon on April 4th, and reached there on the 7th. Very small supplies of forage could be obtained there, and the column moved on next day towards De Aar, which was reached on Saturday, April 14. During the greater portion of this march in the desert, the only forage obtainable for the horses was wheat and chaff, and very little of that, the result being that the horses nearly starved. A number gave out and had to be shot, and the greater portion were so reduced in strength that they could barely carry their barness when De Aar was reached.

AT DE AAR.

On arrival at De Aar, "D" Battery received six remounts, which had come out from Halifax on the Milwaukee. The two sections of "D" Battery remained at De Aar until April 29, when the centre section, under Lt. Van Tuyl, proceeded by route march to Orange river, a distance of seventy miles, which was reached on May 1. The three sections remained on the line of communication duty at Victoria Road, De Aar and Orange river, until the middle of June, when the Battery was once more mobilized at Bloemfontein on June 23. While at De Aar, Gunner Picot, of the left section, died of enteric fever, on May 1.

IN THE ORANGE FREE STATE.

On June 23, the left section under Lt. Morrison, was ordered to Edenburg, under the command of Gen. Knox. The section entrenched itself on a hill overlooking the town and remained there until July 10. During that time the guns marched out on several occasions escorted by the Northumberland and Norfolk Companies of Mounted Infantry. The section also engaged in field practice on two occasions under the personal direction of Gen. Knox.

On July 2, the right and centre sections, under my command, were ordered to move to Sanna's Post, but the orders were cancelled owing to the heavy rains making the roads impassable. Moved out on the morning of July 6, after being inspected by Gen. Kelly-Kenny, who complimented the Battery on its smart appearance. Arrived at Sanna's Post on the 7th, and remained in garrison there until the 10th, when we were ordered back to Bloemfontein. While a Bloemfontein the Battery obtained 25 remounts from the British Government, and turned in 11 of our own Canadian horses, which had been very much run down ever since the Karoo march. On July 11th, the whole Battery entrained for Pretoria having been joined by the left section from Edenburg. Sur.-Major Worthington and Capt. Eaton, the latter having been on staff service, rejoined the battery here.

AT PRETORIA.

On the 13th the Battery arrived at Pretoria and marched out again the same evening to Fort Wonderboom. As the Battery arrived the fort was engaged in shelling a force of Boers to the north towards Pyramid Kopje. On the following day the Battery was attached to Gen. Ian Hamilton's division, which marched from Fort Wonderboom on Monday morning, July 16.

WITH HAMILTON'S DIVISION.

On July 16. Hamilton's division advanced to Waterval, without coming in touch with the enemy, though some shells dropped near us after the force had gone into bivouac. On the following day the right section was detached to the rear guard, the left and centre being with the main body. Four miles from Haman's Kraal our scouts were attacked by the enemy in a wooded bluff; casualties, one killed and one wounded; two horses killed. I was ordered into action at 2,000 yards, but could not open fire owing to not being able to see our advance line in the brush. The division bivouacked that night at Haman's Kraal, and on the following day returned to Walman's Drift mission station, where we came in touch with Gen. Mahon's column. On the three following days the column moved eastward skirmishing with the enemy. On July 21 the centre section was attached to the rear guard at Dewagen Drift. At 7.30 a.m., after the main body had left camp, the enemy, who had evidently during the night moved some guns up into the kopje facing our camp, opened fire on our transport with their 6-inch guns. The centre section of my battery under Lieut. Van Tuyl immediately came into action and was the first to open fire on the enemy, followed by two guns each of the Elswick Battery, 5-inch, 6-inch and pom-poms, which very soon silenced the Boer guns. About four miles out from camp the right and left sections under my command were fired on by large Boer guns, the first shell falling about 150 yards short on our left flank. I immediately came into action and as I did so another shell burst about 100 yards over, showing that the enemy had got the range and that we were bracketed. The horses and limbers got under cover 300 yards to the rear, which greatly lessened the target for the enemy, whose guns were in a concealed position and could not be located with any degree of accuracy. Later on a section of Elswick Battery, together with two 5-inch and two 6 inch guns and a section of pom-poms, came up prolonging our flank to the left. The action lasted about half an hour during which my battery expended 68 shrapnel. In the rear guard action Lt. Van Tuyl expended 28 rounds, making a total of 96. The officers besides myself engaged in the actions were Capt. Eaton, Lts. Van Tuyl, McCrea and Morrison and Surg.-Major A. N. Worthington. I cannot speak too highly of the officers and men under my command; they did their work excellently under very trying circumstances, as during the action shells were falling around my battery. I have seen them a great deal more excited at Des eronto. During the day three Boer ambulances were captured and a number of prisoners. Montmorency's scouts informed us later that they found nine new graves on the kopje where we had been shelling. Our only casualties were two transport drivers, and about ten mules, killed. On July 22, the division was joined by Col. Pilcher with Mounted Infantry and "M" Battery R.H.A. The Boers did considerable shelling during the day with their long range guns, but retired on our advance. The division rested at Rustfontein on the 23rd, and during the afternoon the enemy began shelling the camp. The right section of "D" Battery under Lt. McCrea, was ordered out and proceeded to a kopje about two miles distant, where they engaged the enemy with considerable effect, as a number of Boers were seen to fall. The enemy's guns returned the fire but were soon silenced. On the following day the Division marched to Bronkhorst's Spruit where we went into camp.

WITH FIELD MARSHAL LORD ROBERTS.

At Bronkhorst's Spruit, General Hamilton's Division joined the main army, under Lord Roberts, and we marched, on July 25, for Balmoral, arriving there about 4 p.m.

The day was extremely cold for that climate, and the men and horses suffered a good deal, especially late in the afternoon, when a heavy rain storm came on which lasted all night. The transport got stuck in a spruit, and men and horses had nothing to eat until the next day about 8 o'clock. It was a very trying night on the army; an officer of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders and nine men, belonging to the different corps, died of cold and exposure; also, 250 horses, mules and trek oxen. Neither officers nor men of the Battery had blankets, so that they suffered very severely, but none of them reported sick on the following day. The Boers having retired, and General French having occupied Middelburg, General Lord Roberts returned to Pretoria, and the troops were distributed along the railway, pending its repair, to enable the army on its next advance, to bring up supplies towards Belfast. The right and left sections were stationed at Pienaar's Poort, and the centre section at Eerste Fabricken, with the Royal Fusiliers and the Connaught Rangers. Two guns were dragged up on a high kopje at Pienaar's Poort where one section went on outpost alternately, during our stay there.

On August 15, I proceeded towards Wilger river with the left section and three companies of the Royal Fusiliers, arriving there on August 17. We entrenched ourselves, and remained there until August 26. During that time the enemy were around us in force and continually attacked the small mounted patrols which were sent out from the stations. On August 23, they pursued our mounted infantry to within rifle range and sniped into the camp. On Aug. 26, "D" Battery mobilized at Bronkhorst's Spruit and entrained for Belfast.

BATTLE OF BELFAST.

The three sections of the battery proceeded to Belfast in special trains, the right section arriving early on the morning of the 27th, and the other two sections later in the day; the last and most severe of the four days' fighting at that place was in progress. General Buller, from Natal, had struck the Boers' left flank near Bergendal, the commander-in-chief's main body was holding them in front at Belfast, and General French's cavalry, supported by General Pole-Carew's division, was making a turning movement towards the north. The Boers held the Bergendal kopje with great tenacity, and on the afternoon of the 27th that position was subjected to one of the heaviest cannonades of the whole war. The enemy had also a long Tom mounted on a truck, which they ran up the railway and fired at intervals. Two of these shells fell within thirty yards of "D" battery guns, which had been placed opposite the railway cutting to cover that point. Late in the afternoon the key to the position was carried, and the Boers suffered heavy loss during their retirement. Next day was misty and when the mists cleared away it was found that the enemy had retired all along the line. The line held by the British on the last day of the fight is said to have extended 30 miles from the extreme right of Gen. Buller's army to Gen. French's advance on the north. That evening the Commander-in-Chief rode over to my battery with his staff and congratulated us in getting up, he having very kindly promised that we should be with him on the advance on Lydenburg.

On August 30, "D" Battery was inspected by Lord Roberts, who expressed himself very much pleased with its appearance. He asked me to present my officers to him, and enquired of each the length of service and the corps he had belonged to in Canada.

THE LYDENBURG CAMPAIGN.

"D" Battery was again attached to Gen. Hamilton's division, which was ordered to move towards Lydenburg on September 3. I received orders to detach one section of my battery at Belfast for service with the mounted corps under Gen. Hutton. The left section under Lt. Morrison was detailed. On the morning of the 3rd, the right and centre sections under my command proceeded towards Lydenburg with Hamilton's division. The district is very rough, with high mountains, resembling, as Lord Roberts expressed it, the Himalayas near Simla. In the afternoon, near Schwartz Kopje, the enemy opened on us with a 4·5 Howitzer, when we came into action and drove them off.

On the following day they again annoyed us with long range artillery fire, and were driven off by our artillery and mounted infantry. On the 5th, "D" Battery was detailed to act as horse artillery with the 18th Hussars The country was extremely difficult with steep hills and deep valleys which rendered it very hard for mounted troops and especially for the artillery, The enemy kept up an incessant sniping. On the 6th we had to put ten horses on each gun to take them up some of the steep kopjes, which rose over five hundred feet above the road. The Boers continually sniped us and we went into action several times to shell them out of their positions. When within about a mile of the town we were opened on by the Boers' long Toms. They let us get well within their range before firing on us, and as we had no guns with us that could reach their position, Gen Brocklehurst ordered us to retire out of range. We did so, and camped for the night some distance in advance of the division, having marched some 24 miles over very mountainous country. On September 7, my battery advanced with the 19th Hussars on the left flank, while a section of "A" Battery, R.H.A., and the 18th Hussars took the right. There was considerable sniping, and we were in action for some time shelling the Boers out of kopjes near the town of Lydenburg. At 1 p.m. we were relieved by Gen. Buller's advance guard and rejoined Gen. Hamilton's division. At 2.30 p.m. that afternoon the Boers opened on us from the top of a hill 1,500 feet above us, where they had five long range guns in position and from that until dark we were continually under shell fire. The infantry and transport moved back out of range, but as the artillery got no orders to do so we remained where we were, merely sending our horses back under cover. The shell fire was at times very heavy in our vicinity and during the afternoon 18 shells burst within our lines. The fact that their time shells burst very high probably accounted for our escaping without any casualties, though some of the infantry corps suffered severely.

On the morning of September 8, we moved out to attack the Boer position, Gen. Hamilton's division on the right flank and Gen. Buller's army on the left. As we moved out the Boer position was enveloped in clouds of mist thus enabling us to get comparatively close before it cleared away, when they immediately commenced shelling us. The Boer guns continued to fire while the infantry advanced about three miles, our long range guns replying with lyddite, and about 10 o'clock it was evident the enemy had had enough and were arranging to withdraw their big guns. About 10.30 the field artillery advanced and converged from the right and left centre on the main hill up which they climbed. When about half way the enemy opened on us with their pom-poms but these were very quickly driven off. Our guns advanced some 400 yards further and commenced shelling the crest of the hill to prepare it for the advance of our infantry, which soon moved forward and by 3 p.m. had occupied the crest of the hill, and the position was ours. Shortly after this a heavy cloud of mist settled down and prevented our further advance. Gen. Buller's army occupied the position, and Gen. Hamilton's division having completed its duty in turning the Boer flank, returned to camp. I cannot but again emphasize the fact that throughout the constant exposure to fire, especially the heavy shell fire on the 7th and 8th, both officers and men showed the greatest spirit under very trying circumstances. The officers beside myself who were in the engagements terminating with Paardeplaats, were Capt. Eaton, Lieut. Van Tuyl, Lieut. McCrea and Surg.-Major Worthington.

On the following day the battery moved south, arriving at Helvetia on the 11th, and proceeded east along the Delagoa Bay line. The right section, under Lieutenant McCrea, was detailed for duty at Machadodorp and proceeded there. On September 17, I received orders to take command of the column consisting of a section of "D" Battery, a section of the Elswick Battery, 125 men of the Royal Scots, and 10 Mounted Infantry, with an ammunition column and transport, to proceed across country from Kaapsche Hoope to Nelspruit Station. On the way over we captured six prisoners with their horses and 106 head of cattle. Handed the prisoners over to General Stephenson. On the 19th the centre section was detailed for duty at Crokodile Poort.

The right section under, Lieutenant McCrea, arrived at Machadodorp on the 21st, and remained there until the battery was again mobilized at Pretoria to return home. On September 27th, Lieutenant McCrea was ordered out with 100 Mounted Infantry and came into action against the Boers at Zevenfontein, about 8 miles from Machadodorp. On October 2 the section again proceeded from Machadodorp and marched 15 miles to Grobler's Farm. The Boers sniped a good deal, but offered no serious resistance. One gun, with three companies of Irish Fusiliers, were left at Zevenfontein. On the following day the force continued its march in a southerly direction, and burned several farm houses from which the Boers had been sniping. On October 8 the right section also took part in the expedition of mounted troops to Eland's Kop, and came into action against the Boers who were firing on the advance guard from some rocky ground. The enemy were driven off with some loss.

The left section of "D" Battery, under Lieutenant Morrison, was attached to General Hutton's brigade on September 3. On the following day the enemy attacked Nooitgedacht and the section was ordered to reinforce that point, but the order was subsequently countermanded as the enemy had been repulsed. During the month of September the section remained in camp covering Belfast station. The horses had a good rest and picked up rapidly in condition. Lieutenant Morrison also succeeded in commandeering enough horses to mount the gunners of one detachment. The two detachments of the section were drilled alternately as horse artillery, and acquired considerable proficiency in the new drill. On October 6th, the Royal Canadian Dragoons, with one Colt gun, one Maxim and Lt. Morrison's horse artillery detachment went out on reconnaissance to the north of Belfast, and penetrated through some difficult country to the Steilpoort Valley, nine miles north. The Boers put up a spirited resistance and when the force was retiring in the afternoon, the enemy attacked vigorously and nearly succeeded in getting Howard's Colt gun detachment. There was a spirited rear guard action all the way back to the outposts. The Dragoons had two men wounded and six horses killed. On October 11th proceeded on reconnaissance south-west of Belfast with the Royal Canadian Dragoons and Colt gun detachment. Saw some Boers who fired on us as we were retiring. On October 28, the left section was transferred to the command of Gen. Smith-Dorrien, whose division was mobilizing at Belfast.

On the evening of November 1st, the section marched out with the flying column under Col. Spens, to co-operate with another column under Gen. Smith-Dorrien, southward from Belfast. The weather was very cold with rain and sleet falling. The column made a night march until some time after midnight, when it halted and the troops stood to their horses, until daybreak. It was a very trying night on all concerned, the men being wet to the skin and a driving cold wind causing them to suffer very keenly. At daylight the column moved towards Witkloof, the Royal Canadian Dragoons and left section "D" Battery forming the advance guard. The Boers appeared in force and attacked us from the right flank, but were forced to withdraw. Early in the day the General's column became heavily engaged to the eastward and about ten a.m. Col. Spens' column struck the enemy in a strong position. The Dragoons' advance was driven in with a loss of one man wounded and captured, and their retirement was covered by the guns of the left section, which shelled the enemy's position at 3,500 yards. Meanwhile Gen. Smith-Dorrien's column had had a sharp engagement, and as the weather was extremely cold, wet and rather misty, causing much suffering to the troops and horses, the General decided to return to Belfast and await more favourable conditions. As usual, the Boers pressed the column on its retirement and the Fifth Lancers and three companies of the Gordons, who were on rear guard, suffered considerably, the latter losing two men killed and ten wounded. Their loss would probably have been greater but for the timely reinforcement afforded by a troop of the R.C.D.'s under Lt. King, and the Canadian Colt gun. The force reached Belfast about three o'clock in the afternoon in a very exhausted condition, having marched 35 miles in the cold and wet since the previous evening with very little to eat. In addition to the losses already mentioned, Lt. Chalmers, of the C.M.R., who was acting in advance of the General's column, was killed and Major Sanders, wounded.

On November 6, a column moved out from Belfast at 3 a.m. under the command of Gen. Smith-Dorrien. It consisted of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, with Colt gun, the Canadian Mounted Rifles, Fifth Lancers, two guns "D" Battery, four guns 84th battery, 2 5-in. guns, 4 pom poms, Shropshire and Suffolk regiments of infantry, Bearer Company, &c., with three days rations and forage. About 9 a.m., the Boers appeared on the ridges in isolated groups. The left section "D" Battery and Royal Canadian Dragoons with two pom poms formed the advance guard. The guns shelled the enemy at ranges varying from 4,000 to 5,000 yards during the morning and made good practice, driving the Boers steadily from ridge to ridge till noon. One of our shells burst close to the spot where Gen. Prinsloo and Commandant Fourie were standing, killing both of them, as was subsequently learned. After a short halt, about noon, the Boers were seen in some force on our left in the direction of the Kumati river. An advance was ordered and suddenly a hot rifle fire opened on the advance from a low rocky kopje, which proved to be the Boers' stronghold. The left section went into action at 1,700 yards and came into time shrapnel at 1,650. The guns were worked with great rapidity and the men were very steady. The Colt gun was in action 300 yards to the left, and the Shropshires assisted the gunners by standing up and firing three volleys to draw off the enemy's fire. When the guns got the range and commenced to explode time shrapnel along the edge of the kopje, the Boer fire slackened perceptibly, and a section of the 84th Battery came into action some distance to our left rear, when the fire nearly died out, but was subsequently renewed as soon as the artillery fire slackened. The Shropshire Regiment was ordered forward to attack the position, but were repulsed with a loss of six killed and 20 wounded. No. 273 Driver W. R. Hare, of the left section, was severely wounded in the right shoulder.

Gen. Smith-Dorrien ordered a flank movement to turn the position and Col. Lessard with the Royal Canadian Dragoons, section "D" Battery, section pom-poms and some infantry were ordered to the right, making a wide detour to threaten the Boer retreat from their stronghold by the Carolina road. On seeing their rear threatened the Boers began to evacuate the position, and were shelled with considerable accuracy by the "D" battery guns at 5,000 and 5,500 yards as they retired up the road. That night the force bivouacked at the position evacuated by the Boers.

REAR GUARD ACTION AT LILLEFONTEIN.

At seven o'clock on the morning of November 7th, the column began its return march to Belfast. The Royal Canadian Dragoons, with a Colt gun and left section "D" Battery, the whole under Col. Lessard, formed the rear guard. As soon as the enemy discerned the object of the movement they became very active. Col. Lessard with 95 Dragoons and the two guns, had to hold a plateau about two miles long and one and a half miles wide, while the transport and infantry supports reached the next ridge. The column of transport was about five miles long, and the main body of the troops moved out in front of it, so that the rear guard was isolated, with the exception of 60 C.M.R. and two guns of the 84th, under Col. Evans, who were protecting the right flank of the convoy about three miles back. It took the transport fully three hours to move out. Early in the day 300 Boers galloped down the Carolina road and attempted to regain their stronghold, which was on our right flank, commanding the road to Belfast. The guns of the rear guard shelled them as they passed at extreme range but they soon passed from the line of fire behind an intervening kopje. Luckily Col. Evans, acting on his own intitative, anticipated their move by seizing the stronghold and repulsed the enemy. Very soon the enemy commenced to press the rear guard and it was evident they were in force. The "D" Battery guns were kept busy moving from one point to another breaking up small bands as they appeared on the ridges. The transport and infantry supports had almost passed over the ridge when the enemy began to press our left rear very heavily. This point was held by Lt. Cockburn, with two troops of the R.C.D. Col. Lessard sent Lt. Morrison with one gun to his assistance. When the gun opened fire the Boers, who were advancing in force, dismounted, but still came on running from cover to cover and the gunners were soon exposed to a sharp rifle fire. At this juncture the enemy appeared in force for some distance on the left rear, right rear and rear of the force, threatening to cut it off. Col. Lessard ordered the guns to retire as quickly as possible. Lt. Morrison limbered up No. 5 gun and galloped towards the ridge under a heavy rifle fire. At the same time an orderly was sent to accelerate the retirement of the other gun which was already well on its way towards the ridge. About 500 mounted Boers in line charged the rear guard in an attempt to secure the guns. The troops under Lt. Cockburn were nearly wiped out, that officer being wounded and captured, and all but six of his men being killed, wounded or captured. The Boers pursued the guns up the plain firing from their horses. Meanwhile Col. Lessard with the remainder of the Dragoons was holding back the advance of the flanking parties to prevent the guns being cut off. The horses of No. 5 gun became very exhausted, and after going about half the distance towards the ridge completely played out and came down to a walk. Lt. Morrison halted and went into action rear against the pursuing Boer lines at 800 yards Though the enemy's line was broken directly in the rear by this fire the rest of the advance still came on, so Lt. Morrison limbered up again to make a final effort to get the guns away. He was materially assisted by a party of Dragoons, under Lt. Turner, who, though already twice wounded, gallantly dismounted his men and succeeded by a well directed fire in detaining the Boers long enough to enable the gun to reach the top of a ridge, where were stationed the infantry supports. During the latter part of the trip the gunners were dismounted and assisted the horses pulling on the traces On arrival at the ridge they were so exhausted they could hardly mount, and two of them were bleeding from the lungs as a result of their exertions. As the infantry were now retiring, Lt. Morrison did not consider it safe to go into action on the ridge as the Boer line was only about 200 yards distant. The guns proceeded over the ridge and were met by Gen. Smith-Dorrien, who directed Lt. Morrison to cross the Spruit and take up a position on the other side, which was done. At this juncture a welcome reinforcement arrived, the C.M.R., under Col. Evans, having come to our assistance, and together, with the Dragoons, they held the road and a portion of the ridge. The long line of the enemy outflanked them on both sides but were held in check by the section of "D" Battery on the other side of the Spruit, reinforced later on by a section of the 84th Battery and the pom poms. The enemy then made a determined effort to turn our left flank but were broken up by the fire of the guns. After this they did not again attack in force though they hung on our rear and flank for some time. On the following day the force reached Belfast without further casualties. In the action on the 7th the Royal Canadian Dragoons had three killed, 12 wounded and 16 missing, out of a total of 95 officers and men.

From reports received from officers taking part in the engagement of 6th and 7th, I cannot speak too highly of the conduct and gallantry of Lt. Morrison and the non-commissioned officers and men of the left section. Gen. Smith-Dorrien in his report to Lord Roberts with reference to the rear guard action said :

"It was soon evident that the Boers had been heavily reinforced since yesterday. Col. Lessard with the Royal Canadian Dragoons and two Royal Canadian guns, the latter under Lt. Morrison, covered the rear, and I have no praise too high for the devoted gallantry they all showed in keeping the enemy off the convoy and infantry."

In a telegram congratulating Gen. Smith-Dorrien on the success of his operations Lord Roberts said : "Col. Lessard with his Canadians had a difficult task in guarding the rear on your return march and deserves great credit as do all who were with him."

Gen. Smith-Dorrien subsequently recommended Lt. Morrison for "some special mark of Her Majesty's favour for the skill and coolness with which he worked and finally saved his guns."

During the two days' fighting the section expended 240 rounds of ammunition.

IN THE STEILPOORT VALLEY.

On November 13, the left section proceeded north towards the Steilpoort Valley with the flying column consisting of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, Canadian Mounted Rifles, Fifth Lancers, Third Mounted Infantry, four guns 84th Battery, section pom-poms, two 5-in guns, the Gordon Highlanders and Royal Irish Regiment. The enemy offered considerable resistance on the first day, and the section expended 80 rounds of ammunition. On November 14, the section of "D" Battery and Royal Canadian Dragoons, which formed the advance guard, took part in three engagements, the last being against a strong position covering the village of Witpoort, which was subsequently taken and burned, the place having been used for some time past as the laager by the Boer forces that were then attacking us. On the following day the column moved south towards Swartz Kopjes. The "D" Battery guns shelled a Boer convoy and were instrumental in rounding up 150 cattle and 500 sheep, which the Boers were trying to drive off. The main body bivouacked at Swartz Kopjes, and on the next day a flying column, principally composed of mounted troops, advanced towards Dullstroom, which was occupied after slight resistance. This was another place that the Boers had been using as a laager and it was burned with the exception of the church and some buildings belonging to foreigners. In several of the houses were quantities of ammunition which exploded when the fire reached them. The Boers attacked the column as it was returning from Dullstroom, and opened a sharp fire from the right flank at 1,000 yards on the "D" Battery guns, killing one of the escort, a sergeant of the 3rd M.I. They were driven off by the fire of the guns and the pom-poms. On the fifth day the force returned to Belfast, and on November 21, the left section "D" Battery entrained for Pretoria.

When the left section was leaving Belfast the following general order was issued by Major-Gen. Smith-Dorrien :—

"Major General Smith-Dorrien cannot allow the Royal Canadian Dragoons and the left section "D" battery Royal Canadian Artillery and the Canadian Mounted Rifles to leave his command en route for Canada without thanking them for the grand work they have performed for him in the Belfast flying column. In eight of the last nineteen days, they have been engaged with the Boers and have proved themselves splendidly brave and mobile mounted troops, and it has afforded the major general much pleasure to have been able to send through General the Hon. N. Littleton to the Field Marshal Commanding in Chief detailed accounts of the splendid feats of arms, and to have been able to bring to the special notice of the Commander in Chief five officers and seven non-commissioned officers and men for distinguished conduct in the field during these operations. In wishing them all good-bye and good luck, he has no words to express how great a loss they will be to the flying column. He can merely say that he would choose no other mounted troops in the world before them if he had his choice, and he sincerely hopes the day may come when he may have them again under his command."

MOBILIZATION AT PRETORIA.

On November 22, the right, centre and left sections reached Pretoria and were brigaded with "C" Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, under my command. The horses were turned over to the British Government at a valuation, which was made by a board of British and Canadian officers. The battery mobilized at Ottawa with 137 horses; ten died at sea, forty-eight died on active service, eleven were exchanged for remounts at Bloemfontein; sixty-eight were turned over to the British Government, at a total valuation of £1,418, being an average of £21 per horse. Some of the artillery teams brought as high as £30 per horse, these being horses which had been purchased direct from the farmers in the vicinity of Ottawa and had been through the whole of the campaign. They were in as good condition, according to the veterinary who examined them, as when they were purchased, and the veterinary particularly remarked on the fine constitutions of all the horses, and that notwithstanding the hard marching they had endured, their limbs were as clean as whips, and in only one or two instances was their wind affected. I think it would be interesting to know that the raw horses taken from the farms endured the hardships of the campaign very much better than the trained horses taken over from "A" Battery, very few of which survived. In comparison with the English horses in British batteries, this was a remarkable showing. Some of the British batteries during the same term of service were rehorsed completely two or three times. One battery which landed at the same time as mine had only one of its original horses when we were leaving Pretoria.

I regret to report that on November 9th, No. 363 C. M. Bomb. W. J. Moore died of enteric fever in Pretoria. On November 18th No. 355 Sgt. E. Evett died of enteric fever at Waterval Onder.

At Pretoria the four "prairie" transport wagons which were built for the battery at Ottawa, were turned over to the British Government at a valuation of £10 each. These wagons stood the campaign splendidly and were practically as good as when we entered the field. For economy in draught and generally suitability for the work, I believe these wagons to be equal or superior to any used by the transport in the British army.

On December 3rd "D" Battery marched to Elandsfontein and entrained for Cape Town. Owing to the threatening attitude of the rebels in Cape Colony, the battery had to detrain at Worcester for forty-eight hours, and went into position on a hill overlooking the town, together with "C" and "E" batteries and several colonial corps. On Dec. 11 the battery entrained for Cape Town, arriving there the same evening. On the 12th the guns and stores were shipped on board the steamer 'Roslin Castle', and on the 13th, after a march through the city, and being addressed by Sir Alfred Milner and Gen. Forestier-Walker, the battery embarked for home. The steamer sailed at 4 p.m., reached Cape Verde on the 27th, and Halifax, January 8. On the following day the men debarked and left in the evening by train for home.

APPENDIX E 3.

From O.C. "E" Battery, R.C.F.A., to O.C. Brigade Division, R.C.F.A.

KINGSTON, March 12, 1901.

SIR,—The enlistment for "E" Battery, R.C.F.A. first began in Quebec on Dec 27, 1899, and by January 15, 1900, everything was in readiness for active service, and at 9 a.m. on the 17, entrained at Point Lévis.

Owing to the severe weather during the previous week and the fact that our newly purchased remounts were housed in the riding school, we were obliged to leave half a dozen behind with influenza. Our train was broken in two and arrived in Halifax at midnight the 18th. As the horse cars provided were ordinary cattle trucks, and the thermometer dropped to 22° below zero during the night, our number of horses was further reduced by forty-four, which were left behind at Halifax.

Owing to a heavy fog we were obliged to lay to during the night, and for the two days following the sea was rough and the weather wet and cold.

On January 31, at 10 a.m., we entered the harbour of St. Vincent, Cape Verde Islands, remaining two hours only. The time on board ship was taken up with stables, squad drill, gun drill and cleaning harness. We found great difficulty in raising our horses or getting them out when once they fell or died ; the percentage of deaths was much greater on the lower deck.

The equator was crossed at 11.15 a.m., February 6, and the weather was so hot that we were obliged to clip the horses. On the 16th the weather became quite stormy and cool and by 6.30 p.m. of the same day we sighted the lights off Table Bay. We began to disembark at 11 a.m. the 17th, and marched into Green Point Camp at 5 p.m. the 18th, having lost 14 horses during the voyage, and the 14 left in Halifax left us 58 under strength. It was interesting to notice that four other transports arrived the same day as ourselves, two from Australia, one from India and one from England.

On the 23rd, orders were out for us to proceed to Kimberley, but our want of horses so crippled us that on the 25th the orders were cancelled, and we remained in Cape Town until March 10, when we entrained for Victoria Road, Cape Colony. In the meantime we had supplied our wants with animals from Australia and the Argentine, and mules for our prairie wagons, the latter proving a most satisfactory arrangement, there being six mules and two native boys for each heavy wagon, and four mules and one native boy for the light spring wagon. On the 10th we received orders at 9.30 a.m., left camp at 11 a.m., marched about three miles, entrained and steamed out of Cape Town at 2.2 p.m. Arriving at Victoria Road on the 12th, we remained there two days and moved out on the 14th, forming part of a column under command of Colonel Sir Charles Parsons, which arrived at Carnarvon, North-west Cape Colony on the evening of the 17th. This short march showed up our weak points in horses and harness, as the horses had not yet recovered from the sea trip, and the collars all being too large the result was sore shoulders.

From Carnarvon north-west the Karoo is bare, except for small shrubs. The heavy rains stopped us at Van Wyks Vlei, and by April 6 we were back again at Carnarvon, and left on the 8th, going north-east towards Britstown, reaching the railway at DeAar on the 14th, having averaged about 23 miles a day. Here we were joined by 23 men and 39 horses that had been left at Halifax.

The battery remained in De Aar about three weeks, long enough unfortunately for the men to become infected with the germs of enteric fever, Gunner O'Reilly dying on May 17.

On May 9, "E" Battery marched out of De Aar for Belmont, reaching that place on the 13th, and joined the column under command of General Sir Charles Warren. The column left Belmont on the 15th, marching north-west towards Douglas on the Vaal river, where we arrived at 4 a.m. the 20th, and came into action for the first time. We entered the town at 12.30 p.m., the enemy retiring across the river; they returned to the attack about 3 p.m., when the guns came into action once more and did such excellent practice as to call forth the personal thanks and congratulations of the General.

On May 26, the column moved on to Faber's Putts. It was on the morning of the 30th that we experienced the hottest fire of the campaign, when we were awakened from our sleep by a deadly fire from the sides of our bivouac, in some cases at less than 100 yards distance: it was here that one gun detachment lost 1 killed and 5 wounded out of 7 numbers; altogether we had 1 killed and 9 wounded, and 3 or 4 more slightly, who did not report. There were 3 horses killed and 5 stampeded and missing. There is no doubt that all of our horses would have been stampeded or killed, as was intended by the enemy, if the drivers had not taken them off the lines and removed them to the shelter of the farm house, and this under a hot fire at close range. No seasoned troops could have been steadier or behaved better, obeying every order as quietly as on parade, than these young Canadian gunners.

On June 3, the column moved on, shelling the enemy out of their position at Knoffelfontein, whence they scattered over the country. From here we followed on to Campbell, Griquatown, Daniels Quil, reaching Blikfontein on the 21st. On the 23rd Colonel Sam. Hughes returned to camp with his capture of 200 rebels, together with large quantities of arms and ammunition, horses, oxen and wagons. We remained here settling the country until July 5, when we returned towards the railway, reaching Schmidts Drift on the Vaal on the 9th, forty-five miles due west of Kimberley, where we remained until the 29th, occupying the time in refitting in horses and uniforms; the left section joined from Campbell and the right moved on to Kimberley. The remainder of the battery arrived at Kimberley, 3 p.m., July 31, and left by train at 5 p.m., dropping the left section at Warrenton and the centre at Vryburg, and now for the first time we were able to take advantage of all the useful things sent out by kind friends in Canada.

The custom of breaking up fighting units appears most incomprehensible. "E" Battery was scattered along the line from Kimberley to Vryburg, and yet while I acted as C.O.R.A. and O.C., western district, of the defences of Vryburg for six weeks, I commanded a battery, the right section of which consisted of 2 guns of the Royal Field Artillery, the centre section of 2 guns of the Royal Canadian Field Artillery, and the left section 2 guns of the Royal Australian Artillery, a command most unique in itself; in comparing the sections I found the English gunners were well balanced and a well seasoned lot, and the horses larger, while the Canadians and Australians were physically larger and more athletic, and the horses faster and lighter in the bone respectively.

The Vryburg column of 3,200 strong, under command of General Little, marched out of Vryburg on September 19, 1900; the artillery consisted of 4 guns of the 44th Field Battery, R.A., 4 guns "E" Battery, R.C.F.A., and 2 guns of 37th Field Howitzer Battery. The column was five miles in length, but generally moved in 3 parallel lines. It was here the Canadian Prairie wagon proved its great superiority in lightness of draught and carrying capacity: the two wagons carrying 400 rounds of spare gun ammunition, besides 1 day's spare forage and rations, and all the kits, blankets, cooking arrangements &c., of the officers and men of the battery, hauled by 8 mules to a wagon, other units carrying the same weight, required twice the number of the ordinary buck wagons hauled by 10 mules each. This was the first opportunity that "E" Battery had of entering the Orange River Colony or the Transvaal, assisting at the relief of Switz Reneke, Transvaal, and Hoopstad, Orange River Colony; they were also in action at Elizabeth Rust and Wegdrei.

Although the constant treking and want of proper forage and water (the greatest hardship we had to contend with) used up the horses, we were able after nine months marching of about 2,000 miles to turn into the Remount Station 44 Canadian horses at an average price of £28 each, the highest price allowed.

I may say that my experience in South Africa of Canadian, English, American, Australian and Argentine horses, I found the Canadian horse the best for the work, especially the French Canadian horse.

When turning the prairie wagons into Ordnance Store I was asked for and handed in a report as to their advantage or otherwise, as a transport wagon.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

G. HUNTER OGILVIE, Major.

REPORT F.

OTTAWA, January 17, 1901.

SIR,—In presenting this report, I might state that with the exception of a short time in Kimberley we were always attached to, and under the superintendence of the English army nursing sisters. We shared alike with them the work in the different hospitals and were thus relieved of any responsibility as to our movements. We were at all times treated with the greatest consideration and kindness by our English sisters, which helped to make our work more pleasant. We all came home feeling that the experience has been of great benefit to us, and will be of great value if our services in this line are ever required again. We assembled in Halifax on Jan. 20, 1900, and went on board the transport "Laurentian," nurses Hurcomb, Horne, Macdonald and Richardson. We sailed from Halifax Jan. 21. Our quarters on board ship were most comfortable and, in fact, we were all satisfied with the treatment accorded us during the voyage. As there were no serious cases of illness, we were not called upon for duty, and after a pleasant and uneventful trip arrived in Cape Town, Saturday, Feb. 19, 1900. We reported at once to Col. Supple, P. M. O., of Woodstock, who gave us orders to proceed at once to No. 3 General Hospital, at Rondebosch. This was a base hospital, at which patients were continually arriving from the front to stay until convalescent, when they were either sent home to England or, if well enough, returned to duty. Our hours of duty while here averaged about 9 hours a day, and during the period of our stay there were from 15 to 20 other nursing sisters, including four who went out with the first contingent. On Friday, March 16, we received orders to proceed to Kimberley, and left that evening. We arrived at Kimberley on the evening of the 18th. We were met by Col. Ryerson, who had arranged for our stay at the Grand Hotel for a few days, after which our quarters consisted of a private house where we were made very comfortable. We were assigned for duty at the Masonic Temple, which building had been turned into a temporary hospital. It had accommodation for about 100 patients. I, as head nurse, was placed in charge, and the staff consisted of the three other Canadian sisters and several orderlies. The cases were mostly enteric fever and dysentery, the former of a most malignant type. The percentage of deaths was not above the average. We were very much indebted to Col. Ryerson and the Canadian Red Cross Society for the help which they gave in the way of supplies of every description, which helped us very materially in our work. We remained at this hospital in Kimberley for about a month. On April 20, we got orders to go to Bloemfontein. We left the following day and arrived there on the 23rd. While in Bloemfontein we were attached to No. 10 General Hospital, and while here encountered our hardest work in the country. The majority of the cases were enteric fever and dysentery, at one time there being between 4,000 and 5,000 cases in the town. At first, for a while, medical and food supplies were very short and this, coupled with the fact that the supply of good water was very limited, made the suffering greater. Many of the doctors and nurses contracted the disease, and two of our own nurses, Misses Richardson and Horne, were on the sick list about three weeks after our arrival there. Miss Richardson was off duty about two months, while Miss Horne is still away on sick leave. We left Bloemfontein on July 18, for Pretoria, and arrived at our destination on July 20. We were immediately attached to the staff of the Irish Hospital, which had been established in the Palace of Justice. Here we met the four nurses who went out with the first contingent and whom we had last seen in Rondebosch. We were all on duty in the same hospital; our work here was not so heavy. This hospital was one equipped and sent out by Lord Iveagh and was well supplied with food and other necessaries. There was an average of between 400 and 500 patients during the time we were there. While here we met a good many of our Canadian soldiers, and had some of both officers and men as patients. On Oct. 15, the staff of the Irish Hospital left for home. The hospital was then taken over by the military and we stayed here until Nov. 23, when we left for Cape Town, en route for home. Before leaving Pretoria we got leave of absence for a week. During this time we visited Ladysmith, Colenso, Durban and other points of interest. The journey from Pretoria to Cape Town was made in 5 days. On arrival we were quartered at Wynberg, awaiting embarkation. We sailed from Cape Town on the "Roslin Castle," Dec. 13. On account of sickness on board, the nurses were called upon for duty, but as there were seven of us on board our work was comparatively light. I regret to say, however, that two of the cases terminated fatally. We arrived in Halifax Jan. 8, and from thence proceeded to our respective homes.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

D. HURCOMB,
Head Nurse 2nd Canadian Contingent.

Director General Medical Service,
Ottawa, Canada.

LORD STRATHCONA'S HORSE.

The next corps to be organized in Canada for service in South Africa, Lord Strathcona's Horse, was recruited, horsed, armed, equipped, clothed, conveyed to South Africa, and paid until the date of arrival there, at the sole expense of Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, and the members thereof were also, from the date of arrival in South Africa, paid from Lord Strathcona's privy purse the difference between Imperial cavalry pay and the higher rates paid by Canada to the North-west Mounted Police Force.

No corps left Canada, and it is doubtful whether there was any in the field in South Africa, so thoroughly clothed and equipped as that placed at the service of the Empire by Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal. It was, I am sure, a privilege and a pleasure to the officers of the Departments of Militia and Defence and of the North-west Mounted Police to assist in the organization of such a regiment.

ESTABLISHMENT.

The regiment consisted of a regimental staff and three squadrons, in accordance with the Army Establishment for a Cavalry Regiment, 1898.

The regimental staff and detail of a squadron were the same as the Canadian Mounted Rifles (pages 69 and 70), with the exception that there were six drivers per squadron instead of four, and twelve draught horses per squadron instead of eight.

The establishment was therefore as follows:—

Ranks.	Personnel.							Horses, Public.

The detachment arrived at Ottawa on April 25. They were clothed and equipped, and left for Montreal, April 30, where they embarked, on May 1, on the ss. Vancouver for Liverpool.

REPORT G.

Ottawa, March 23, 1901.

From Lt.-Col. S. B. Steele, M.V.O., Comdg. Lord Strathcona's Horse, to the Hon. the Minister of Militia and Defence, Ottawa.

Sir,—In accordance with instructions received through Lord Strathcona, I have the honour to submit this my report as Officer Commanding Lord Strathcona's Horse, organized in Canada for special service in South Africa.

Our late lamented Queen having been graciously pleased to accept the offer which Lord Strathcona in his patriotism made to raise and equip a regiment of horse for service in South Africa, I was offered the command and after considering the grave responsibility, accepted.

At that time I was at Halifax en route for South Africa as Second-in-Command of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, but upon receiving your telegram proceeded to Ottawa and reported to you at once.

When I arrived at Ottawa I found that the regiment to be raised was to be of full strength of three Squadrons, with machine gun detachments and regimental transport complete. Also that the men were to be recruited in Manitoba, the North-west Territories, and British Columbia, and that the officers were to be experienced in life on the plains and in the mountains.

After several consultations with you and Mr. Fred White, Comptroller of North-west Mounted Police, in the course of which the officers were selected, and all preliminary arrangements made, I left for the west on January 31, arriving at Winnipeg on February 2. Here I gave the necessary instructions as to the number and class of men to be selected, and went on to Regina the same afternoon.

When in Ottawa I was empowered to obtain the assistance of such officers of the North-west Mounted Police as I thought would be of help in recruiting, so that when I arrived at Regina on the 3rd I was able to request Superintendent Greisbach, Inspectors Wilson, Howard, Harper and Morris to commence the work, and it was largely owing to their assistance, together with that of the officers already chosen for the corps, that the recruiting was so rapidly and systematically carried out.

I personally looked after the recruiting at Calgary and had intended to remain some time in the west to assist Dr. McEachran in the purchase of horses, but owing to the illness of Major Belcher, who was to superintend the organization of the regiment at Ottawa, I was obliged to leave earlier for the Capital.

The recruiting stopped on February 9, and on the 10th the men from northern and western British Columbia concentrated at Calgary, and were sent on under Lieut. Strange, meeting the recruits from Nelson, Rossland, Fort Steele, Pincher Creek and Lethbridge at Medicine Hat. The whole then proceeded to Ottawa under Inspector Morris, picking up the men from Regina, Moosomin, Brandon, Winnipeg and other points en route.

I reached Ottawa again on the 14th and finding that the exhibition grounds had been fitted up for the reception of the men, I had them formed into troops and squadrons and instructed in dismounted drill.

The regiment was complete on March 7, and a mounted parade was ordered for that day for inspection by His Excellency the Governor General. The limited space and deep snow made it impossible for the regiment to go through all the movements usual on such an occasion, but His Excellency expressed himself as being pleased with the appearance of the men and horses. The corps was addressed by His Excellency, yourself, Sir Charles Tupper, Mr. Nicholas Flood Davin, M.P., and Mr. Klock, M.P., the latter gentleman presenting the regiment with a handsome flag on behalf of the citizens of the town of Sudbury.

On the 8th the regiment again paraded mounted and marching through the streets to the Parliament grounds was presented by Mrs. Borden, on behalf of the ladies of the Civil Service at Ottawa, with four beautifully worked guidons, a gift very much appreciated by the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the corps.

A church parade was ordered by the officer commanding the Ottawa district for Sunday, March 11, and at 10 o'clock the regiment, headed by the bands of the 43rd Ottawa and Carleton Rifles and The Governor General's Foot Guards proceeded, the Presbyterians to St. Andrew's Church, the Anglicans to Christ Church Cathedral, and the Roman Catholics to the Church of St. John Baptiste. Eloquent sermons were preached in each of the churches.

Monday the 12th was the day named for the departure of the regiment for Halifax, and as it was necessary to start early the horses were all loaded on the 11th. We entrained at 10 o'clock and moved out amidst the encouraging cheers of the large number of people who had come to see us off. Arriving at Montreal at 3 p.m. we met with a most enthusiastic reception. The whole garrison of that district was on parade and the crowd was so dense on the streets through which we marched that the cavalry escort found it difficult to keep the route clear. Arriving towards evening at Windsor Hall the Corps was the guest of the city at luncheon. Patriotic speeches were delivered by His Worship Mayor Prefontaine, Sir Alex. Lacoste, Mr. Principal Peterson, McGill University, Mr. Wilson-Smith and Archbishop Bruchesi, to which I replied, thanking them for their kindness, and for the magnificent way in which we had been received in the metropolis.

The corps entrained again at 10 p.m. and reached Halifax on the morning of March 15. At nearly every station all along the line we were met, day and night, by large crowds of people. At Campbellton, N.B., the citizens presented us with a silk banner, and at Moncton we received another flag, accompanied by the following address :—

"To Colonel Steele, Officers and Men of Strathcona's Horse :—

"The citizens of the city of Moncton, province of New Brunswick, desirous of showing in some tangible and practical way, their enthusiastic admiration of Lord Strathcona's magnificent patriotism, and of the splendid body of mounted troops who are known to us and will be known to posterity as Strathcona's Horse, beg your acceptance of this Canadian ensign, which bears upon its folds the emblems so dear to every British and Canadian heart. It is the symbol of England's greatness and it tells the story of the Empire's unity.

"With hearts filled with loving patriotism, we give this flag to you in the full assurance that its honour is safe in the keeping of Strathcona's Horse, and that, let the call be made upon them to jeopardize their lives, without counting the cost, it will be answered as of old.

"'Their's not to make reply,
Their's but to do or die.'

"To you this bit of silk will be a sacred symbol—an inspiration to do what is right an incentive to duty, in its highest and noblest sense a reminder that Canadian prayers are with you on the path of duty.

"And when on African veldt or kopje you serve beneath that flag it will remind you of your loyalty and devotion to God, to Queen and Empire, ever to be guarded with jealous care in moments of peril—never to be yielded save with life.

"In offering you this flag to-day we assure you that from every heart amongst us there will rise the earnest prayer: 'God bless and guide and guard Strathcona's Horse.'

"MONCTON, March 20, 1900."

The horses were immediately detrained and embarked. This was done on the advice of Dr. McEachran, who had discovered evidences of disease in the city and thought it unsafe to stable the animals for the night. The precaution was also taken to properly treat, by steaming and other means, any horses showing signs of cold contracted on the journey from Ottawa to Halifax.

The men were comfortably quartered for the night at the exhibition grounds and drill hall, and were entertained in the evening to a smoking concert given by the Halifax Garrison.

On the 16th, at 3 p.m., the regiment was paraded and drawn up en masse in the drill hall and were inspected by Lt. Gen. Lord Wm. Seymour, commanding the troops in British North America. The following message from our late lamented Queen, received by cable through Lord Strathcona, was read to the regiment, and was received with the greatest enthusiasm by the assembled thousands:

"Her Majesty would be glad if before they start you would convey to them an expression of her confidence that they will prove worthy comrades of her Canadian soldiers who are now so gallantly fighting for the Empire's cause: the Queen wishes them all success and safe return to their homes in the Dominion."

After the inspection the regiment marched through the streets, headed by the whole garrison, to the ship and immediately embarked. A few minutes later, amidst the greatest enthusiasm possible, the ship pulled out in the stream, where she remained until the following day.

The voyage from Halifax to Cape Town was marked by splendid weather—not a rough sea was experienced during the whole of it—but the enjoyment was marred to a large extent by the worry and sorrow brought about by the loss of so many of our horses. It was found after one or two days out that a great many of the horses were unable to stand the decided change of climate between the prairie country and Ottawa and between the latter city and Halifax. The slight colds contracted soon developed, and before many days, in spite of everything that could be done, we found ourselves with an epidemic of pneumonia amongst the animals. 176 horses died during the voyage.

The duties as laid down in the Queen's regulations were carried out, during the voyage. The men were instructed in musketry and in other details as well as the limited deck space would permit.

The ship arrived in Table Bay on the 10th of April and we disembarked the following day, going into camp on Green Point Common.

On April 13 I commenced the mounted drills, and taking advantage of the hilly country to the south instructed the men in movements which I thought would be most useful to them at the front. This, unfortunately was forbidden on the April 21, owing to the fact that glanders was discovered in our horses, and a long and serious test had to be instituted to learn the extent to which the disease had developed. At the end of ten days it was found by the Imperial veterinary authorities that 32 horses had reacted to the test, and these were destroyed. Altogether 44 horses were destroyed owing to this cause.

Although I have made extensive inquiries I have been unable to arrive at a conclusion as to where this fatal horse disease was contracted. It was first of all discovered in the transport animals purchased in Montreal, but it would be unfair to say that it was brought from Canada. The ground upon which our lines were laid had been used since the beginning of the war as a recuperating ground for horses and mules brought by ship from all parts of the world, and it is just possible that the disease was taken in that way. In fact I am in a position to state that glanders to a serious extent was found in 700 horses landed ex. ss. Rapidan, and which were quartered for some time on the very ground on which the horses of Strathcona's stood.

As soon as evidence of glanders had disappeared 'C' Squadron under Major Laurie was sent to Maitland, a cavalry camp about eight miles distant from Green Point, and this squadron took over Argentine remounts sufficient to mount the whole of the corps.

When the regiment arrived at Cape Town I received a telegram from Lord Roberts, then at Bloemfontein, to the effect that we must not be disappointed at not going up to the front at once as he had reserved us for a very important duty.

On May 22 I received orders from the base commandant to be in readiness to embark 'A' and 'C' Squadrons, the Pom Pom and Maxim guns and regimental transport, with the exception of the pack animals, 500 of which had been turned over to us under Captain (now Lt.-Col.) Chesney of the 18th Bengal Lancers, now commanding the Commander-in-Chief's Body Guard. This was in accordance with a plan which had been under discussion for some time and by which it was intended to blow up the bridge at Komati Poort, on the Delagoa Bay Railway, and thereby cut off the Boer line of communication with the sea.

'A' and 'C' Squadrons, under command of Major Belcher, embarked on May 24 on the ss.'s Mohawk, Maplemore and Chicago for Durban, where they disembarked and moved by rail to Lower Tugela Station, on the boundary between Zululand and Natal.

On May 28 'B' Squadron, made up to a strength of 200 officers and men, embarked under my command on the ss.'s Wakool and Columbian, and sailed on the 29th for Kosi Bay, on the southern boundary of Portuguese East Africa.

Arriving in the Bay on June 2, we were met by Admiral Sir R. W. Harris and the flagship Doris, together with a number of other ships of war, who were there to assist us in disembarking in the dangerous waters of the bay, and which was to commence the following morning. During the afternoon, however, a despatch boat arrived from Lorenzo Marques with a despatch to the effect that the plan, the essence of which was surprise, had in some way got into the hands of the Boers and that they had placed, in the last few days, a strong commando on the right of our advance, and another on the left, making a force of about 1,500 men which I would have to pass with a party of 200. It was, therefore, self-evident, that the scheme was impracticable at the present time, and we returned to Durban, arriving there on June 4.

I was immediately ordered to proceed to Peitermaritzburg to consult with the general officer commanding lines of communication in Natal, Lt.-General Wolfe-Murray. I returned the same day to Durban, with orders to move by train to Lower Tugela and march from there with the whole regiment for Eshowe, in Zululand, and endeavour to destroy the bridge by marching on it by that route. We reached Eshowe on June 11, but on the 13th were ordered to return by road in a forced march of three days. This was done, and on the 16th the regiment entrained at Durban and arrived in Newcastle on the night of June 17.

On the night of the 20th, after a two days' march from Newcastle, we joined Sir Redvers Buller's army at Zand Spruit, and the following morning proceeded with the advance on Standerton, attached to the 3rd Mounted Brigade, under the Earl of Dundonald.

Standerton was occupied on June 22, and the whole force remained here until June 30, while the railway to the south was being replaced and opened, but the regiment was continually employed furnishing patrols and other duties made necessary by the proximity of a large force of the enemy.

On June 30, railway communication having been established to the south, a force composed of the 2nd Division and the 3rd Mounted Brigade, the whole under Lieut. General Clery, moved north for the purpose of opening a line of communication through to Heidelburg, at which place General Hart's force was operating.

On July 1 (Dominion Day), while the regiment was in advance, it met with its baptism of fire. The troops under Lieuts. Tobin and Kirkpatrick, while protecting the left flank, came in contact with a large force of the enemy under Ben. Viljoen, and were fired upon from a rocky kopje in front, and from a farm flying a white flag on the right front. It was on this occasion that Major Howard, through no fault of his own, was taken prisoner. The enemy was driven off by our men, assisted by the artillery. Casualties, No. 509, Private A. Jenkins, killed; Major Howard and No. 456, Private J. Hobson, missing.

During the march to Greylingstad on July 2, and the halt made there on the 3rd the regiment was under constant fire but without casualties.

Before we moved for Vlaakfontein on the morning of July 4, I was ordered to send one squadron back to Watervaal Bridge to act in conjunction with the Devonshire Regiment in guarding the large and important bridge at that point. 'C' Squadron under Captain Cameron was chosen, and during the month the squadron was on duty it was in contact with the enemy nearly every day. It was while operating from this place that No. 332, Corporal B. H. Lee, was killed on July 6, and that No. 514, Sergeant E. C. Parker was killed and Private Arnold wounded on the 30th (since dead). 'C' Squadron deserves a great deal of credit for the work done here.

The balance of the regiment reached Vlaakfontein on the afternoon of the 4th, and on the 5th, under orders, sent fifty men to reinforce 'C' Squadron at Watervaal, and 100 men, under Major Snyder, to form part of escort for a convoy coming from Greylingstad under Major Rycroft. On the return the enemy opened a hot fire from kopjes in the vicinity of Greylingstad and continued it all along the march back to camp. A Maxim gun under Lieut. Benyon did excellent service. The troop under Lieut. Ketchen was sent to a distant kopje by Major Rycroft, and whilst there a retirement was ordered. The troop was nearly cut off. As it was the following men found it impossible to get back:—Corporal Mills and Privates Norris, Simpson and Gilroy.

I learned some time after that Private Norris was killed on this occasion.

On the 6th I again sent 150 men back to escort Sir Redvers Buller on his way from Standerton to Johannesburg. The enemy brought their field guns and pom poms to bear on the escort, but it got through safely without casualties. 'A' Battery, R.H.A., which moved out from Vlaakfontein in the afternoon at the beginning of the fire, lost one man killed and two wounded. The regiment formed the escort for Sir Redvers through to Heidelburg, returning on the 7th.

On July 9, the corps returned to Greylingstad, escorting a convoy of wagons. We were under orders to remain there, but on the 11th, the 3rd Mounted Brigade and 2nd Division came down and 140 men of the corps under my command accompanied a large force sent out to drive back Ben Viljeon's commando, which had been harassing the line from Vlaakfontein south to Standerton.

From then until the 24th, the day on which the force returned to Greylingstad, there was almost continual fighting, sometimes only in a small way, in the nature of sniping, but occasionally when the enemy found a position suitable for their guns, something like a general engagement ensued. On the 13th the force moved towards Platkop, Strathcona's Horse in advance. The enemy was known to occupy Lone Tree Hill, three miles on, but the guide, in leading, took us to the left and exposed us to a severe cross fire. Major Saugmeister, Border Mounted Rifles, attached to us on June 20, taking a troop to the right, came in contact with the enemy at the Hill and was captured. The main body of the advance operating further on met with a heavy fire at 600 yards range, and our pom pom and a gun of 'A' Battery, Royal Horse Artillery were required to dislodge the enemy. We followed until nightfall, inflicting severe loss on the Boers.

Casualties: Wounded, 2. Missing, 6.

At Holgatefontein, on the 14th, we took part in what might be termed a general engagement, as the whole of the troops and artillery were engaged, under Lt.-General Clery. The enemy occupied a position extending three miles along our front. A strong artillery fire was directed at the column from the flat kopje to the north, and it required a battery of Howitzers and two five inch guns to silence it. Pom poms were used to impede our advance in front, but a movement directed by the Earl of Dundonald resulted in turning the position, and the enemy as usual retired.

The force marched as far as Lieu Spruit, east of Standerton, and the object of the operations having been accomplished, we returned to Greylingstad, and from there proceeded to Zwickerbosch Spruit near Heidelburg, where we halted until the 30th, marching on that day under orders to join Sir Redvers Buller at Paardekop. We reached that place on August 3, without casualty.

The time between the 3rd and 7th August was spent in preparing for Sir Redvers Buller's advance northward, in which Lord Strathcona's Horse, as part of the 3rd Mounted Brigade, was to take part. The whole of the force was composed as follows, and with the exception of the 3rd Mounted Brigade and the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, composed the Ladysmith garrison during the siege :—

The Boers held the successive hills with 13 guns, pom-poms and machine guns, on the south-west of Amersfoort; and these were assaulted and carried by the troops on August 7. The 3rd Mounted Brigade covered the left and left front, while the regiment was in advance of the brigade.

The behaviour of the regiment on this occasion was excellent. The whole of it screened the front and flanks during the march, and by skilful work on the part of the corps the enemy's positions were turned and he was forced to retire. The brigade had often to change direction so that the squadron covering the advance would at times be covering the left flank and the flanking squadron would be taking the advance. This took place to the north of Amersfoort, and after a march of two or three miles, opposed by the enemy, "B" squadron entered the town under fire.

Major Snyder and Major Jarvis showed much skill in the handling of their squadrons, whilst Captain Mackie, the Adjutant of the corps, rendered me every assistance. Major Belcher, 2nd in command, in charge of the reserve, handled it splendidly until it was expended, and then made his presence felt in every part of the field where he was required. The officers of the regiment worked so well that it would be hard to make individual mention, but the following non-commissioned officers and men came under my observation:

No. 459 Squadron Sergeant Major Richards, who had charge of a troop and turned during the day a strong position held by the Boers.

No. 269 Sergeant Whitehead.

No. 517 Sergeant Nelles, in charge of the advance scouts.

No. 346 Private Pym.

Casualties, No. 402, Pte. W. E. S. Menteth.

Owing to the dense fog and the delay in bringing up the transport on account of grass fires encountered by it during the long march, the force halted on the 8th.

We got into bivouac late on the night of August 9. The regiment formed the advance on that day and was persistently opposed by the enemy, who occupied the dongas and ravines of which there were many in the vicinity of Rolfontein. Finally the Boers were driven out by our scouts aided by the pom-pom, which did excellent practice under Lt. Magee and No. 396, Corp. Bell.

On the 11th in marching from Begin Der Lyn on Ermelo we experienced a severe dust storm, making it a very trying day on the men and horses. The town was entered by "B" Squadron, and Major Jarvis under orders performed the duties usually assigned to the Provost Marshal. The buildings were searched and a considerable number of rifles seized. The advance having been so rapid the Infantry and trains found it impossible to make the distance in the day, so that the 3rd Mounted Brigade halted here until the 12th, continuing the advance to Klip Stapel on that day.

On the 14th, during the march to Witbank, I was ordered to send a portion of the regiment to take Carolina, an important town situated a few miles off the road we were taking. They were to hold the place until it was searched by the Intelligence Corps of the army. Major Belcher, with "C" Squadron under Captain Cameron, and a troop of "A" Squadron under Lt. Harper, was sent to perform the duty. Considerable resistance was made by a force of the enemy in the town for the purpose of obtaining supplies for the left wing of Botha's army, then in a strongly entrenched position extending from a point north of the railway near Belfast, south to Geluk farm. The troops under Major Belcher behaved splendidly, attacking and carrying the town in the face of a heavy fire. The magazine was blown up and the town thoroughly searched by Major Henderson.

Casualties, No. 30 Pte. Norris, shot through lungs. Ptes. No. 624 Carey, No. 155 Saxby, and No. 255 Pte. Stewart, scouting to the south of the town failed to rejoin the Squadron when a withdrawal was ordered, and on account of the darkness were unable to get back to camp. They, therefore, remained until early the following morning, protecting themselves by deceiving the people into the belief that they were a patrol from a large force surrounding the town. They gained a lot of valuable information as to Botha's strength in men and guns, and also as to the position he had taken up in our front.

The men arrived in camp at Twyfelaar at five the next day, having been pursued nearly all the way by small parties of Boers. They were highly complimented by Lord Dundonald, who considered the information gathered to be of much value.

The force halted at Twyfelaar until the 20th, but the duties were heavy and dangerous as we were now nearly in front of the position in which the Boers were to make their "last stand." Large commandos of the enemy were in the vicinity, and our patrols and the outposts were under the continual fire of snipers.

The following, taken from the regimental diary, explains the part taken by the regiment in the operations made against Botha in his position in the vicinity of Machadodorp, and in the pursuit which followed when driven from that position :—

August 21.—The brigade marched this morning at 8.10 for Van Wyks Vlei, South African Light Horse leading, Strathcona's Horse covering right and rear. "C" squadron under Captain Cameron formed the rear guard. On the right to-day the firing was very heavy, the Gordons and Second Cavalry Brigade suffering considerable loss. Twelve wounded Highlanders came through the lines and were treated by our surgeon. "B" squadron went on outpost duty to-night, connecting with infantry on left and cavalry on right.

August 22.—Halt to-day. Heavy artillery fire to east and north of camp all day. Enemy's position on first ridge taken last night.

August 23.—Marched at 6 a.m., brigade protecting right and rear. Heavy firing on right front. In the vicinity of Geluk the enemy unmasked their guns and fired shell and pom-pom. South African Light Horse in front had 6 men wounded. The casualties among infantry were heavy, the Liverpool's loss being 14 killed, 40 wounded and 40 missing. Halted at Geluk Farm. "C" squadron on outpost duty on right to-night.

August 24.—Regiment for duty South African Light Horse, picquetting the hills to north-east of camp. During the night orders came for regiment to be ready for duty at daybreak, the order was cancelled. There was heavy artillery fire to north, north-west and north-east of camp. The enemy replying, their shells exploding, though not effectually, in all parts of the camp. The enemy also directed a pom-pom fire on the S.A.L.H. picquets on the rocky kopje to N.E. So hot was the fire that 2 guns of "A" Battery Royal Horse Artillery were unable to reply and had to keep under cover till dark.

August 25.—Regiment for duty with 4th Division Mounted Infantry. Hills picquetted. Under severe fire all day. The regimental pom-pom took up position on the rocky kopje and fired a large number of rounds.

August 26.—Broke camp this morning. "B" and "C" squadrons, under Major Jarvis and Captain Cameron, were ordered into trenches at day-break and occupied them until late in afternoon, supported by R.H.A. and pom-pom. The trenches were so situated that in leaving the men were exposed to the enemy's fire for about 600 yards. The conduct of the men to-day was a splendid example of courage, exposed as they were to an extremely heavy rifle and shell fire. It was really wonderful that so few were hit when a retirement was ordered. Ammunition expended, 12,500 rounds small arm, 500 rounds pom-pom. Camped at Vogelstruitpoort.

August 27.—Marched this morning at 6.30. Three squadrons, S.A.L.H., relieved Gordon Highlanders on outpost at six. Strathcona's Horse covered the left flank, and on the right a general engagement occupied nearly the whole of the day. The rocky kopje at Bergendal Farm, so persistently held by the enemy in the face of a terrible artillery fire, was finally carried after a magnificent attack made by the Rifle Brigade, assisted by the Inniskilling Fusiliers.

Camped at Bergendal.

August 28.—The brigade marched at 6 a.m. for Delmanutha, arriving there without opposition. A short distance past the station, S.A.L.H. leading, the brigade came in contact with the enemy, and Strathcona's Horse were brought up in support, two squadrons under Major Belcher being sent to the left. The firing ceased for a time and the squadrons returned, advancing with the remainder of the corps to the next rise which overlooked the town. The enemy had been shelling the brigade at intervals, but here when Lord Dundonald ordered the regiment to dismount, the shells, well directed, came quickly. Soon after, "A" squadron, under Captain Cartwright, entered the town, the remainder of the brigade following. Passing through, the regiment ascended the high hill and met a heavy Long Tom and high velocity shell fire till dark.

The brigade camped on the heights to north of Machadodorp.

August 29.—Brigade marched at seven, Strathcona's Horse leading. "B" Squadron, under Major Jarvis, in front, passed over the mountain range and supported by No. 2 troop under Lieut. Christie, entered Helvetia and pushed on two miles farther. Returning to Helvetia the regiment was collected and proceeded by road to right for the purpose of reconnoitering Watervaal Boven. No. 2 Troop "C" Squadron, under Lieut. McDonald, was in front and succeeded in getting very close to the town in face of heavy fire. Gen. French's force then came up, and as they were to march through Watervaal Boven towards Barberton to-morrow, we left the ground gained to him and returned to camp at Helvetia. The forces under Gen. Sir Redvers Buller, Lt.-General Pole-Carew and Lt.-General French coming by different routes, concentrated at this point this morning.

August 30.—The brigade marched this morning to the heights overlooking Nooitgedacht about twelve miles from Helvetia. The country is extremely rough and mountainous, resembling in places the untimbered portions of British Columbia. Considerable sniping took place but there were no casualties. Arriving on the ground it was ascertained that owing to this movement, the British prisoners at the Boer lagaar had been released and that 1,800 of them were streaming down the railway in the valley below. Lt. Leckie with six men was sent to reconnoitre the town and inform General French of our presence on the heights. The object of the advance having been effected the brigade returned, camping at Vluichtfontein for the night.

August 31.—Halt to-day.

September 1.—Force marched at 7.30, Strathcona's in advance. Came in contact with enemy at Crocodile River where bridge crosses. Pom-pom and R. H. A. were brought up, shelled the conical kopje and the enemy, pressed back, camped a mile from the bridge. "B" Squadron put out picquets for the night and took a Boer prisoner when in the act of sniping. Before going into camp the country to the front was scouted and valuable information gained.

Casualties, No. 151, Private McGillivray, missing.

Early on the morning of the 2nd September the whole force was prepared to move to Lydenburg, 8 miles further on, but it was extremely doubtful whether such a move could be made at once, as information had been received that the enemy intended to hold the high and rugged ridge which extended across the valley, a glance at which would convince one that should it be occupied by any force at all it could be easily held, as a frontal attack would be suicidal and the nature of the country was such as to make a flanking movement impossible. The 3rd Mounted Brigade was ordered forward to reconnoitre the hill and to develop the strength of any force occupying it. This was done but we were exposed to one of the most severe artillery fires of the war. It was found that the whole of Botha's army with fourteen guns were entrenched, and that they could only be moved by a force taking them on the flank by the Belfast road, which ran along the heights, rising like a wall 1,500 feet high on our left. We returned to our bivouac after dark and halted until 6th September, the day on which General Ian Hamilton, operating on the Belfast-Lydenburg road, arrived at the kloof and made the enemy's position untenable.

During the time we were halted here the regiment in its turn formed the outposts and other duties for the protection of the camp, and on the 3rd September, while trying to occupy a high ridge to the right of camp on which our scouts expected the enemy were trying to mount a gun, we met with a heavy loss, in fact the most severe we experienced in a single day during the war.

It being our turn for outpost duty Lieut. Leckie was sent to form an observation post on the ridge mentioned, but finding the ground occupied by a considerable force of Boers he sent to me for support. I reported to Lord Dundonald, who advised me to send out two troops. This was done. Lts. Kirkpatrick and Tobin commanding. In proceeding over the rough rocky ground, which was the feature of the hill, they became entangled with the enemy, with the result that the following non-commissioned officers and men were killed :—

No. 465 Sgt. J. Brothers. No. 508 Pte. Cruickshanks.

Previous to this, at the time when Lieut. Leckie was sent out, Sgt. Logan with a section of men proceeded up the hill to occupy a point further to the front, met the enemy at close quarters and refusing to surrender were, all but one man, killed. The following are the names :—

No. 465 Sgt. Logan. No. 284 Pte. West. No. 297 Pte. Jones. No. 312 Pte. Wiggins.

During our halt at Badfontein our losses were 6 killed, 2 wounded and one missing.

We reached Lydenburg on the 7th September and had our camp shelled the same evening by Long Toms in position on the high range towards Spitz Kop. Anticipating a continuation of the shelling in the morning, I ordered reveille for 4.30, so that when it commenced I would be ready to take advantage of the cover of a donga close by. The enemy opened again at 8 in the morning but the men were all under cover.

Sir Redvers Buller attacked the position towards noon, and carried it in the evening, our brigade being on left flank of the advance. During the next three days we drove the enemy before us over the rough ground between Lydenburg and the Mauchberg and through the Devil's Knuckles to Spitz Kop. The work was very hard for mounted men, as it was impossible in many places to leave the road which wound up and down and around the rugged mountains all the way. Our maxim guns did splendid work on 10th September when the brigade was close upon the Boers transport. The regiment was first over the Mauchberg, and at the foot of the hill, hidden in a ravine, Lieut. Tobin found several tons of Boer stores, which they had hidden in their haste.

The next day the corps made a dash after a Long Tom in position on the road about three miles in front, but on account of no support being available Sir Redvers Buller ordered me not to go any further. The gun was shifted, however, and we captured a wagon load of shells, beside the gun's derrick and sight. Sir Redvers characterized the work of the corps on this day as dashing and well carried out, and expressed himself so to me in person.

Our casualties during the three days' operations, amounted to two men wounded, as follows :—

No. 193 Corp. Flintoff.
No. 386 Pte. Nicholson.

On September 12 the King's Royal Rifles attacked the enemy's position on the main road, while Lord Strathcona's Horse carried the high hills on the left. The enemy then fell back before us, and soon the whole of Botha's army was seen in full retreat to the north, but a tremendous ravine, some miles in width, extended across our front and prevented a further advance until the main body of the force reached the Spitz Kop.

We halted at Spitz Kop until September 23, but during the time, in addition to furnishing a strong guard over Glyn's Lydenburg mine at Sabi Drift, we also found a number of outposts and escorts for convoys going to Neil Spruit on the railway.

During the time which 'B' squadron, under Major Jarvis, was on guard at Glyn's Lydenburg mine, several of the enemy were captured, as well as 5,000 sheep and about 2,000 head of cattle.

On September 25, we arrived at Sabi Drift, and following day at Mac Mac again came in contact with the enemy, who directed a heavy fire at us from the Pilgrims Rest, Lydenburg Road. The position was a strong one, but the Devons, covered by a heavy artillery fire, assaulted the heights, driving the Boers back.

The next day, Strathcona's Horse, in advance of the 3rd Mounted Brigade, the force marched for Pilgrims Rest, and after considerable opposition directed against us from the vicinity of the town, our men entered under a heavy fire, capturing some of the enemy and guarding the place until the following day, when Sir Redvers Buller withdrew on his way back to Lydenburg via Kruger's Post.

After ascending the high hill south of Pilgrims' Rest, the force halted to rest the transport animals at Morgansen's Nek, and on October 1 descended into the Valley, commanded near Kruger's Post by a high rocky ridge, from which the Boers intended to shell us as we advanced. Sir Redvers Buller, however, ordered the 2nd Cavalry Brigade up from Lydenburg, and this movement forced the Boers to the right to the hills overlooking the Ohrigstad Valley. A lot of sniping took place at intervals, but the fire was particularly heavy at the forks of road near the ridge referred to, and artillery fire was necessary to clear the way.

In coming up from Lydenburg the cavalry failed to scout the range of hills about 6,000 yards to the right of Kruger's Post, and the enemy, taking advantage of it, posted guns and shelled us from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 at night, killing a number of the horses of the regiment and wounding severely No. 370 Pte. E. Seymour.

We halted at Lydenburg until October 5, and on that day the 3rd Mounted Brigade returned with Sir Redvers Buller to Machadodorp, reaching that place without incident on the 8th. When near the town, I was ordered to hurry in as Sir Redvers Buller wished to address the regiment before leaving for Pretoria en route for England. Sir Redvers spoke in very complimentary terms, and concluded his address with the following words :—

'I have never been served with a nobler, braver or more serviceable body of men. It shall be my privilege when I meet my friend, Lord Strathcona, to tell him what a magnificent body of men bear his name.'

The Natal Field Force having been broken up at Machadodorp, I was ordered to prepare to march with Gen. French's column to Standerton. This order, however, was changed, it being arranged that we should turn over our horses to the 6th Dragoon Guards, and proceed by train to Pretoria. This was done, and the regiment arrived there on the 14th, going into camp.

At Pretoria I was ordered to prepare for further service in the field, new remounts were given to us, and the men fitted out with everything they required that could be got.

On October 20, the regiment marched for Elandsfontein, arriving there on the afternoon of the 21st. The next day we entrained again and were taken to Welverdend, a station about 50 miles west Johannesburg. Here I found that we were to form part of a column going to reinforce the 6th Brigade, under General Barton, at Frederickstad.

The Elswick Battery, Brabant's Horse, Dublin Fusiliers, and the Essex Regiment arrived the next day, and on the 25th, Strathcona's Horse in advance, the column marched. Three hundred Boers held the ridge on the left, which was covered by our men, and at one time the pom-pom was brought into action. The column arrived at Frederickstad about noon, in time to be present at the fight in which the Scotch Fusiliers, the Welsh Fusiliers and Imperial Light Horse inflicted such heavy loss on DeWet's Force at this place.

Col. Hicks, who commanded the column, complimented the regiment on the careful and satisfactory way in which the column had been protected during the march. The corps now entered upon a period of very hard work. De Wet, taking advantage of the rugged country lying from the railway south to the Vaal, made it the centre from which all his operations were directed. In addition to this, Delarey was known to be in the hills across the valley to the north, and the greatest, watchfulness was necessary to prevent the two forces joining hands. A number of night and early morning marches were made by the troops, and as the rainy season had set in, the men were in a most uncomfortable condition all the time.

On the 28th of October the regiment formed the advance of a force sent out under Sir John Colleton, to locate DeWet. Marching at dawn the scouts of the corps found a large force of the enemy at Boschock. The men of the corps deserve the greatest credit for this work, as in spite of misleading reports by residents and Kaffirs they worked carefully and skillfully until they discovered large numbers of the enemy in a well planned ambush.

The district lying from Krugersdorp to Potchesfstroom had been gone over in August, but the railway line was not kept open or the towns garrisoned. It was now found necessary to do so, and the force under General Barton was employed for some time at this work. The first march to Potchesfstroom was made on the October 30, when the regiment formed the advance. Nothing of importance occurred, although the greatest care had to be taken. On the night of the 31st, while a small party of the regiment was guarding one of the bridges near the town, a number of Boers boldly attacked, but were easily driven off. One of them left his horse and rifle behind.

On November 4 we again moved out of Frederickstad at 3 a.m. to reconnoitre the country to the south-east as far as Buffelsdoorn Pass. We were in contact with the enemy all day. All the houses and villages were searched and 250 head of cattle captured.

On November 4, at 9 in the evening, we again marched to Potchesfstroom, and by a series of operations cleared the country round of the enemy and allowed the safe entry of the first railway train in some months. The Coldstream Guards were left to garrison the town, the remainder of the force returning to Frederickstad on the 6th.

At 2 a.m. on the 8th we marched in advance of a column to surround a village 6 miles west of camp. The Boer picquets fell back to the north-westward as we advanced and a chain of cossack posts was put out with supports between the village and range of hills. "B" Squadron, under Major Jarvis then entered the village, with orders to search for Boers and to burn houses occupied by them. No prisoners were taken, but a number of houses were destroyed. A heavy fire was directed at us from the direction of the hills, but it was soon subdued by our pom pom.

On the evening of the 9th I received orders to march at 1 in the morning to hold a line on the plain extending from Buffelsdoorn Pass to near Boshcop, to be in position at 4 a.m. We reached the post in front of Deel Kraal at 4.30 and threw out a line of picquets as far as the pass, three troops under Captain Cameron with the pom pom in support. We held the place until the afternoon, when a withdrawal was ordered. The regiment was under continual fire, which during retirement increased, and the pom pom was used. The regiment captured 600 cattle and a large number of sheep

Casualties: No. 39, Pte. Treston: wounded and missing, No. 132, Pte. Read.

The latter returned during the next day, having escaped from the Boers during the night. He brought very valuable information

General Barton, thinking that the work of the regiment was worthy of notice, wrote to me as follows:—

"I cannot speak too highly of the practical and effective manner in which the duty assigned to your splendid corps was carried out by yourself and all under your command yesterday, and I have specially mentioned this in my report to the Field Marshal, commanding in chief. I only regret that circumstances prevented my supporting your movement by advancing further with the main body. The capture of stock is most satisfactory. I much regret the casualty of one man wounded and one missing."

On the 13th, the whole of the brigade, with the exception of a small garrison left at Frederickstad, marched under Gen. Barton to Potchesfstroom, and the following day the corps, in advance of a large force, marched on Klerksdorp with a large convoy of supplies for General Douglas. Considerable resistance was expected, but it did not materialize to any great extent, although the firing was heavy at times.

We turned over thirty days' supplies to General Douglas on our arrival at Klerksdorp on the 16th, and commenced the return march the following day, arriving at Potchesfstroom on the 18th.

A lamentable incident occurred in the lines on the 21st, when No. 157, Pte. Scott, of Regina, was accidentally shot dead by a comrade. It appears that while handing a rifle to Pte. Scott No. 132, Pte. Read, in some way touched the trigger and the weapon went off. The accident cast a gloom over the regiment, as Pte. Scott was very popular. He had gone through the whole campaign with credit to himself and the Corps.

The regiment remained at Potchesfstroom until November 29, furnishing in its turn the various duties necessary for the protection of the town, scouting the country round and occasionally going out with other troops for the capture of cattle and supplies.

On the 29th we left by train under orders for Aliwal North, in Cape Colony, but at Bethulie at 11 p m. on December 2, I was ordered to detrain. This was done, and at midnight we marched with Col. Long's column, joining General Knox's force at dawn. We then moved in support of the artillery until about 7 o'clock, when, coming into contact with the enemy, I was ordered to place a hundred men to support some of the Seaforth Highlanders and Irish Yeomanry who were supposed to be at a farm about the centre of the enemy's position. Col. Herbert's column attacked on the right, our column the centre and another brigade the left. I took "B" Squadron and moved along the donga, so that I might take advantage of the cover it afforded in proceeding to the farm. A wire fence impeded us, and whilst cutting it we were exposed to a severe fire from the left and lost nine horses killed. I pushed the Squadron up the donga, sent back for the other two which were forced to go through the same ordeal. I then ordered up the pom pom, which did excellent work under the skilful handling of Lieut. Laidlaw. Major Jarvis with his Squadron attacked and took possession of the sangers and kraals. He was ably assisted by Lieuts. Kirpatrick and Tobin. Major Belcher then took the support, galloped across to the farm, under fire, and established himself there. Afterwards Major Jarvis with 'B' Squadron carried the kopjes in front and on the right and left. A troop of 'C' Squadron under Captain Boyd, R.C.R.I., after driving some of the enemy from a kopje on the left were, through a mistake of an officer of the artillery, fired upon and one of the men was wounded by lyddite. It was fortunate the aim was not accurate or the whole of the troop would have been destroyed. The behaviour of the officers and men was all that could be desired, and Lieuts. Kirkpatrick and Tobin deserve special mention.

The enemy fell back from his position and towards night the regiment was relieved at the farm by the Highlanders.

On December 5 the column marched in pursuit. Torrents of rain fell all day, and when we halted for the night at Wessel's farm we were all drenched. We took advantage of the houses and sheds there to dry our clothes. The following morning the march was continued to a drift on the Caledon river. When the regiment arrived the river was still considered fordable and part of the column had succeeded in crossing, but now the water had risen to such an extent that the regiment, with a portion of the transport, had to remain until the rain ceased. We therefore went into bivouac, and placing marks on the bank I found, about three in the morning, that the water had lowered sufficiently to permit of a crossing being attempted. I then paraded the regiment and proceeding in Indian file, twenty feet from head to crop, succeeded in getting the whole regiment across in about half an hour. Soon after the river again rose, making it impossible for the transport to get over, and it was sent back to Comassi Bridge under an escort commanded by Lieut. Leckie of "C" Squadron. In crossing the stream, which was very swift, some of the men of the other corps were nearly drowned and were rescued by members of Lord Strathcona's Horse.

On December 7 we moved in advance of the column at 4.30. About four miles out where the road forked, I heard a heavy artillery fire on the left front, and as the road to the left led to Comassi bridge, it was evident that DeWet was trying to force a passage. I reported to Col. Barker, who stated, that as General Knox feared an attack on Rouxville it would be necessary to follow the road to the front. This was done, and we arrived on the heights overlooking the town soon after. The place was not attacked.

Halted at Rouxville on the 8th, and on the 9th we marched at 6.30 p.m., making 12 miles in about three hours, halting at Comassi bridge, where we found that DeWet had attacked the post on the 7th with his artillery and pom pom, and it was only on account of the determined stand made by the Infantry guard that prevented him from forcing a passage.

The Force halted here again on the 10th, but Lieut. Kirkpatrick's and Lieut. Tobin's troops were sent out to ascertain the whereabouts of the enemy. These officers were complimented by General Barton upon the manner in which the work was carried out. It was now evident that the enemy was not more than eight miles off.

The pursuit was continued through Smithfield to Helvetia Farm, where, on December 12, we again came in contact with the enemy. His convoy could be seen about four miles off passing through a nek commanded on both sides by a range of rough rocky kopjes. Col. White's column was in advance this day, and coming under fire at Helvetia Farm, Col. Barker's column moved along to turn the enemy's left, and Col. Williams his right. The Regiment formed the advance of Col. Barker's column and I was ordered to move along the enemy's left flank and bring him to a stand, which I proceeded to do as rapidly as possible, and was soon nearly two miles in advance. A heavy fire was directed at us from the right of Helvetia Farm, where the advance of the Regiment pressed the enemy hard. A heavy fire was also opened on the support and reserve at long range, the bullets whistling through the ranks but without hitting anyone. I turned the enemy's right and came into a position where the whole of his convoy was in full view. I then sent to the rear for guns, but it was impossible to send them up, as the General was under the impression that they were required in another quarter. I pushed on, supported by the 9th Lancers, coming directly on the left flank of the convoy, and closed up to very short range, firing with the pom pom and machine guns when necessary. By evening we were about ten miles in advance of the spot where we first met with a fire, and the enemy then placed a strong force to resist us, owing to the road running through a long, deep valley, and as strong support was necessary to drive them out, and as night was coming on, I halted there until the column came up.

On the 13th and 14th we made long and effective marches in pursuit of DeWet's column. At times, when on the high ground, we could see him in full retreat. By marching at night and having any number of remounts, he had been able to gain some. On the 15th we marched through Dreifontein at 5.30, and at 9 came in sight of Spring Hook Nek and Thaba N'chu. At this point, a heliograph message was received to the effect that DeWet was forcing his way through the nek, under fire, and that Col. Thorneycroft, with his Regiment of Mounted infantry, was opposing him. General Knox then directed Colonel White to take the left towards Thaba N'chu and Colonel Williams' column the right, whilst Colonel Barker's column, to which we were attached, was to move in the centre. We made Spring Hook Nek, 30 miles, by 4.30, and halted. We found here that Thorneycroft's Mounted Infantry were unable to hold the Pass, but that De Wet had suffered a severe loss in forcing a passage: Thorneycroft's Infantry succeeded in capturing 60,000 rounds of ammunition and a pom pom. Considering the great odds against Colonel Thorneycroft, it was generally considered that he had done well.

We lay all day at Spring Hook Nek on the 16th waiting for supplies, and marched on the morning of the 17th towards Makola, near Holstein, where the Boers were supposed to be entrenched in a strong position upon the kopjes in that vicinity. The information we had, went to show that at least 4,000 of the enemy were there, and under ordinary circumstances a stand would be made, but as the column approached, the enemy retired, although at times we met with a heavy fire. During the marches between Spring Hook Nek and Clocolan, at which place we arrived on the 22nd, the Regiment was continually employed in furnishing patrols and scouting parties to ascertain the strength of the enemy, and they were carried out in such a way as to excite the admiration of all the troops. We were to remain at Clocolan until supplies arrived, but on the 23rd we got the order to march to search the country for forage. The squadron under Major Jarvis was to march towards the North, examine the dongas, and at the same time protect the right of Col. Williams' column. In performing this duty Major Jarvis found it necessary to send a small party of three men to occupy a post on a neighbouring ridge. In going up the men found themselves at close quarters with a body of the enemy. No. 368, Pte. Ingram, was killed, and No. 337, Corporal McDonnell, wounded. Three of the Boers were killed and two wounded.

On the 26th we made a long night march, moving on Ficksburg through Basutoland. Around Ficksburg we operated until the 28th, destroying mills, and succeeded also in capturing a quantity of ammunition.

On the 30th we came in contact with the enemy at Kaffir Kop. The position was a strong one and the regiment met with a severe fire all day in operating against it. The position was turned and the enemy moved back. There were no casualties, though it is remarkable that some of the men were not either killed or wounded.

On the 3rd of January, out of Lindley, Lord Strathcona's Horse formed the advance guard of Colonel Barker's column. When we reached Colonel White's camp, some miles further on, we found that a party of the Commander-in-chief's Body Guard, in escorting Piet De Wet, who had surrendered to us, to his farm, was fired upon and a number killed and wounded. We were then moved on with directions to drive the enemy out and cover the party bringing in the dead and wounded. In performing this duty we captured a wagon containing a large quantity of supplies.

On the 4th we joined Colonel White, who the day before had moved on about six miles, and learned that Colonel Lang of the Commander-in-chief's Body Guard had been sent out with a squadron in the morning to reconnoitre, with the result that he came upon an ambuscade and was killed, together with a large number of his men. It was a sad affair, and cast a gloom over the whole camp.

On the 6th the regiment furnished the rear guard, and were pressed closely all day by the enemy. Stimulated by his success with the Body Guard, the enemy showed a boldness almost unknown to us, but towards evening we laid a little trap for them, into which they fell and a number of them were killed. We were not troubled in the rear again for a day or two.

On the 8th of January, the regiment again formed the rear guard during the march through the dangerous country lying between Lindley and Kroonstadt. The left flank was in contact with the enemy from the time we left, and at times our rear was attacked by small parties of the enemy at long range. We halted to feed the horses on the Vet River at 1.30, and then commenced the march through the district where so many rear guards had met with heavy loss. When the bridge was reached, I found that the enemy had gathered in large numbers on the rocky kopjes, but covered by the machine guns on the other bank, and by being careful, we managed to cross without a casualty. It was a very trying day, as the transport was only able to make on an average a little over a mile an hour.

The column reached Kroonstadt on the 9th of January, and on the 10th our horses were handed over to the officer in charge of the Remount Depot at that place, and it was generally understood, in fact it was pointed out to the Commander-in-chief, that as our time of service had expired, and as the men were largely interested in business in Canada, that it would be a hardship to keep them in the country any longer. We entrained on the 11th, and moved to Elandsfontein, arriving there the following day. I was informed at this place that it had been decided to send the regiment home direct, but later on I received further information to the effect that Lord Strathcona had made arrangements so that the regiment would visit England on its way. We were ordered to entrain for Cape Town on the 15th, but before doing so the Commander-in-chief, Lord Kitchener, inspected the regiment and thanked the officers and men for the work they had done. He told us that we had marched through nearly every section of the Transvaal and Orange River Colony, now under British control, and that he had never heard anything but good of the corps. He stated also that the regiment would be greatly pleased if he told them the number of letters he had received from generals all over the country asking for Strathcona's Horse.

We arrived at Cape Town on the 20th and immediately embarked on the "Lake Erie" for London. Before sailing, I called on the High Commissioner, Sir Alfred Milner, who spoke very highly of the services rendered to the Empire by Lord Strathcona's Horse.

The weather was fine during the whole of the voyage, and, with the exception of six cases of enteric fever which developed on the ship, there was no sickness at all.

Arriving at Gravesend on the 13th February, the men suffering from enteric fever were taken off and placed in hospital, and as this took considerable time, the ship missed the tide and we were obliged to remain there all day. I was met here by several of the members of the Colonial Entertainment Committee, who submitted a magnificent programme for the entertainment of the regiment in England. I also received orders that the regiment would be employed on arrival in the morning in lining the streets through which His Majesty the King would drive in proceeding to Westminster to open his first Parliament. The honour of being allowed to take some small part in this historic event was fully appreciated by all ranks.

On our arrival at the Royal Albert docks on the 14th, the corps immediately disembarked and proceeded by train to Kensington Barracks, from where we marched to Pall Mall, taking up a position there.

On the 15th the regiment was inspected by His Majesty King Edward VII, after which he presented every officer and man on parade with the South African War medal, the first issued to any troops in that war. His Majesty also presented the regiment with the King's Colours, and in doing so spoke as follows :—

"It was the intention of my late mother to present you with this colour. I do so now, and ask you to guard it in her name and in mine."

Before the regiment marched off, His Majesty addressed it in the following terms :

"Colonel Steele, officers, non-commissioned officers, and privates,—I welcome you here on these shores on your return from active service in South Africa.

"I know it would have been the ardent wish of my beloved mother, our revered Queen, to have welcomed you also, but that was not to be ; but, be assured, she deeply appreciated the services you have rendered as I do.

"It has given me great satisfaction to inspect you to-day, and to have presented you with your war medals, and also with the King's colour. I feel sure that in confiding this colour to you, Colonel Steele, and to those under you, that you will always defend it and will do your duty as you have done during the past year in South Africa, and will do on all future occasions.

"I am glad that Lord Strathcona is here to-day, as it is owing to him that this magnificent force has been equipped, and sent out. I can only hope that your short sojourn in England may be agreeable to you, and that you will return safely home to your friends and relatives.

"Be assured that neither I nor the British nation will ever forget the valuable services you have rendered in South Africa."

During our stay in London everything was done by Lord Strathcona, the Colonial Entertainment Committee, and the people generally, to make the visit enjoyable. The many places of interest and the theatres were thrown open. Splendid arrangements were made by the Committee to enable the men to visit all these places, by placing brakes and guides at their disposal. In addition to this, there was a disposition on the part of the people to show us some individual attention, and it soon got so that we felt undeserving of it all.

Lord Strathcona gave two luncheons to the men on the 18th and 21st, which were attended by the Earl of Aberdeen, the Marquis of Hertford, the Earl of Dundonald, the Duke of Abercorn, Lord Stanley, and many other gentlemen of distinction.

The corps left London at 7.30 on the 23rd, and at Liverpool we were the guests of the Lord Mayor, Mr. Arthur Crosswaite. We were met by a very large crowd, who showed the greatest enthusiasm during the march from the station to St. George's Hall. After luncheon the regiment marched to the Town Hall, and were addressed from the balcony by the Lord Mayor, who spoke very eloquently of the service rendered by the corps to the Empire. The regiment was then marched to the ship, about two miles distant, the streets being thronged. The quays were also crowded with people who came to cheer us off. During the luncheon at St. George's Hall, a number of eloquent and patriotic speeches were made by several of the distinguished gentlemen present, also the guests of the Lord Mayor.

The honours paid us while in London, and at Liverpool as well, will always remain in the memory of the members of the corps.

A number of men remained in England on furlough, the remainder sailing from Liverpool on the "Numidian" on the 23rd, arriving at Halifax on the 9th, after a stormy passage.

The regiment left Halifax on the same day, and along the route from there to Ottawa we were met by large numbers of people who wished to welcome us home. At Moncton, I was presented with an address from the loyal people of that town. Arriving at Montreal on the morning of the 11th, the regiment was received by the band of the Garrison Artillery and by a great many citizens.

All ranks are deeply grateful to yourself and the members of the Military Staff for the kindness extended during the organization of the regiment here, and since that time, to Lord Strathcona, who has been kindness itself.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

S. B. STEELE, Lt.-Col.

AUXILIARY CORPS.

THE NURSING SISTERS.

The nursing sisters sent from Canada, although few in number, rendered good service, and did work no less creditable than the troops whom they went out to nurse. The party of four who accompanied the first contingent arrived in South Africa when the nursing staff was very small, some 40 strong only, and as the staff was increased during their period of service to 1,000 from necessity, their presence in the country was most opportune. The services of the second contingent nurses, who arrived four months later, were not any less acceptable.

I think the suggestion of the Director General of Medical Services, in the last annual report, that the cadres of a nursing service should be inaugurated in connection with our military forces, and positions therein offered to these nursing sisters is a good one, and should be acted on.

POSTAL CORPS.

The postal corps sent to South Africa by the Post Office Department, consisting of Capt. W. R. Ecclestone in charge, and Messrs. Rowan Johnston, Kenneth A. Murray, Thomas B. Bedell and Joseph Lallier as assistants, performed most acceptable work. With troops constantly moving over such a large country it is an impossibility to reach them with mail matter regularly and promptly. The presence of this corps, however, to specially watch the postal interest of Canadians was a great boon, and one much appreciated.

The military branch of the Militia Department has not been without post office experience, as some 8,500 letters have been forwarded to it by the Post Office Deparment, or from Shorncliffe and South Africa direct, to be forwarded to soldiers who had left South Africa or England before their receipt. Many more letters were received addressed to persons who had met death in the battlefield or in some other manner. It is satisfactory to note that at the present time none of the letters remain undelivered.

ARTIFICERS.

The War Office intimated in January, 1900, through the High Commissioner for Canada, that the services of qualified shoeing-smiths, saddlers and wheelers would be acceptable in South Africa, for employment at Re-mount Depots and with transport establishments, and space was reserved in the "SS. Milwaukee" for 20. There were, however, three in excess of that number enrolled and sent out.

Conditions of their employment were as follows:—

To serve with Her Majesty's forces in any part of South Africa, at six shillings per diem, and rations, for six months, or such less period as their services were required. If their services were dispensed with within the six months, one month's notice, or one month's pay to be given.

GENERAL AND OTHER REMARKS.

RETURN OF THE TROOPS.

On July 13 the first detachment of returning soldiers reached Canada, comprising 28 invalids, who arrived at Quebec by the S.S. "Parisian". Lt.-Colonel B. H. Vidal, Acting Assistant Adjutant General at Head-Quarters, was detailed to proceed to Quebec to meet the party and to pay them off and discharge them.

The Band of the Garrison Division, R. C. A., played the soldiers to the Citadel, where they were quartered until they could proceed to their homes, and the Militia of the city of Quebec voluntarily paraded to line the streets to assist in making the reception to their comrades in arms by the citizens of Quebec one worthy of the occasion.

Other detachments arrived from time to time, and by November 1, when the Steamers ceased to call at Quebec, over 300 had disembarked there.

Troops have returned as follows:—

(a)	Detachments of invalids via England who disembarked at Quebec up to November 1, 1900	316
(b)	Troops by the Transport "Idaho," disembarked at Halifax, November 1, 1900	434
(c)	Colonel Otter and part of his command, by Steamship "Lake Champlain," who returned via England and arrived at Halifax, December 24, 1900	289
(d)	Transport "Roslin Castle" direct from Capetown to Halifax, arriving January 8, 1901	830
(e)	Lt.-Colonel Steele and part of his command, by S.S. "Numidian," who returned via England and arrived at Halifax, March 8, 1901	280
(f)	Detachments of invalids via England, disembarked at Halifax to date (March 27)	276
		2,425

On all occasions when large numbers returned, Officers with necessary clerical assistance, were sent from Head-Quarters, in order that N.C. Officers and men should be paid the deferred pay due them, discharged and provided with transportation to their homes, with the least possible delay. A Certificate discharging them from further service in South Africa was issued to each N.C. Officer and man.

Commissions in the Army.

In March, 1900, the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for War offered to Canada, 42 direct commissions in the army, 12 of which were to be given to cadets in attendance at the Royal Military College of Canada. Of the remaining 30, 24 were set apart by His Excellency the Governor General for members of Canadian corps on service in South Africa.

Nominations for these 24 commissions were made by His Excellency, and the appointments gazetted, as hereunder:—

TELEGRAMS AT SPECIAL RATES.

It was felt during the early part of last summer that an arrangement should if possible be made for the transmission of telegrams between our troops in South Africa and their relatives, at a reduced rate, such as had been arranged for telegrams between people living in Great Britain and their relatives in the army in the field.

Application was accordingly made to the Colonial Office, and that department arranged with the Post Office Department to extend the system of packed telegrams, which the Post Office Department was handling, to include Canada. The charge for a telegram from Canada to South Africa, or vice versa, under this arrangement was the special charge in force between England and South Africa, plus the Government rate between England and Canada, or a total cost of 61 cents per word. The ordinary rates for inland transmission in Canada to and from this office were of course an additional charge.

All telegrams both from and to South Africa passed through this office as well as the London post office, and in both offices the messages were packed or unpacked as was necessary. The arrangement has been more satisfactory to the troops in South Africa than to the sender of messages from Canada, and consequently far more messages were received from South Africa than were sent from Canada. This was because the sender of a message in South Africa only required to get his message to a telegraph office to practically ensure its delivery in Canada, while, on the other hand, all messages for South Africa were sent to Capetown, from where the person addressed had to be located, which at times was very difficult owing to the corps moving about so rapidly, and possibly the person for whom the message was, would be absent from his corps even if it were located.

On the whole the arrangement has worked most satisfactorily. The secretary of the General Post Office, London, Mr. Ardron, has been most attentive to the interest of the Canadians in this matter, and to him and the authorities in London who aided in bringing about this arrangement, the people of Canada are indebted for the boon of being able to telegraph to their relatives in the field at less than half the ordinary cost.

An arrangement was also made with the War Office for the transmission, through that department, of official messages at the same cost.

A REGRETTABLE INCIDENT,

A most regrettable incident in connection with the conduct of our special service forces while in South Africa was that which arose out of the question of the continuance on service of the first contingent after the termination of their term of enlistment.

Col. Otter deals with the question in his report, and I only allude to it because it is quite apparent, in face of the facts, that there were no good grounds for the misunderstanding between Colonel Otter and his command which unfortunately arose. Colonel Otter on July 13, in his weekly letter, asked for instructions on the subject of the continuance on service of his non commissioned officers and men, should they be required after October 15. His letter was received in this office on August 20, and on August 22 the question was submitted by me for decision. On August 24 the question was referred, in the usual way, to the Department of Justice. On August 29, up to which date no decision had been received from the Justice Department, His Excellency the Governor General received a telegram from the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, asking for the observations of His Excellency's Government as to the best way of meeting the difficulty. On August 30 His Excellency replied to Mr. Chamberlain that the "men may claim discharges after the expiration of their period of service, unless they voluntarily agreed to an extension."

Unfortunately this decision was not communicated to me, and consequently Colonel Otter remained in ignorance of it until it reached him by way of the War Office. On September 14, Mr. Chamberlain telegraphed His Excellency that instructions had been sent to South Africa that all men unwilling to extend their period of service would be returned home. The instructions referred to by Mr. Chamberlain appear to have reached South Africa on or about September 7, and they probably prompted the telegram which the Commander-in-Chief sent to Colonel Otter on that date, a copy of which is included in Colonel Otter's report.

In reply to Lord Roberts' request Colonel Otter, on September 8, speaking for his regiment, very properly, in my opinion, promised to comply, and took steps to do so.

Colonel Barker, commanding lines of communication, conveyed the War Office instructions direct to the officers commanding companies of the Royal Canadian Regiment away from the headquarters of the battalion, and the receipt of the permission to return home thus communicated, while Colonel Otter was at the same time endeavouring to obtain their consent to remain, caused the unfortunate misunderstanding. Colonel Otter thereupon telegraphed to Ottawa on September 10. His telegram, a copy of which follows, was not received until the night of September 13 :—

"Previous to receipt of War Office authority for sending home men wishing to "return Canada Roberts personally requested the regiment remain further period. I "deemed compliance advisable, so agreed; no definite period specified, and await your "orders re further action. Cable urgent."

Upon the receipt of this telegram a decision on the point referred on August 22 was requested, and I only ascertained then, that His Excellency had telegraphed Mr. Chamberlain August 30 as above.

On September 15 I telegraphed Colonel Otter in the sense of His Excellency's telegram to Mr. Chamberlain, adding that there was no objection to the battalion, whole or in part, continuing on service. Colonel Otter did not receive my reply until September 18, and as an imperative order that the men must continue to serve was the only answer that could help him, it did not mend matters.

It can be said that the non-commissioned officers and men were within their rights in demanding their discharge on the expiration of their term of enlistment; that all ranks had had a hard year's work and a surfeit of war, and that many of them might lose their civil employment if they did not return to Canada by the end of the time for which they enlisted.

These were strong reasons for the desire on the part of many to return; but Canada had gone to great expense in sending contingents to South Africa, and had treated her troops much more generously than she had undertaken to do; they had also been splendidly treated by the Commander-in-Chief, who lost no opportunity of keeping them at the front, or favourably considering their interests in many other ways.

The battalion had made a name for itself, of which the people of Canada, whom they represented, were justly proud, and this name would have been greatly enhanced if all officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the battalion still in the field, could have seen their way to continue on service for the further short period desired by Lord Roberts.

PAY AND ALLOWANCES.

The government of Canada undertook to pay members of the first contingent, from the date of enlistment until the date of arrival in South Africa, the rates of pay provided for the Permanent Corps of Canada. Under these conditions officers accepted appointment and the men enlisted.

The conditions under which officers were appointed to and men enlisted in the corps of the 2nd Contingent were that they should receive, up to date of arrival in South Africa, the rates of pay provided for their relative rank in the North-west Mounted Police Force.

The Government subsequently brought down to Parliament a Bill providing for the continuance of these rates during the whole period of service of the respective contingents, the difference between the pay provided by the Royal Warrant, which Her Majesty's Government had undertaken to pay from the dates of the arrival of the troops in South Africa, and the Permanent Corps and North-west Mounted Police rates, being paid by the Government of Canada. This Bill was assented to on April 4, 1900.

The Act, which is intituled "An Act to provide for the expenses of the Canadian volunteers serving Her Majesty in South Africa," is as follows :—

Preamble

WHEREAS, hostilities having broken out between Great Britain and the South African Republic and the Orange Free State during the period when Parliament was not in session, the Government of Canada deemed it expedient to anticipate the action of Parliament by authorizing the appropriation of certain sums of money for the purpose of equipping and forwarding Canadian volunteers to the seat of war; and whereas it is expedient that such appropriations and the expenditures made thereunder be ratified and confirmed, and that further provision be made as hereinafter enacted: Therefore Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and House of Commons of Canada, enacts as follows :—

Expenditure authorized for sending volunteers to South Africa.

1. From and out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada there shall and may be paid and applied a sum, not exceeding in the whole the sum of eight hundred and fifty thousand dollars, being the sum of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars authorized under Order in Council, dated the fourth day of November, one thousand eight hundred and ninety nine, and the sum of six hundred thousand dollars authorized by Order in Council, dated the fifth day of January, one thousand nine hundred, towards payment of the expenditure incurred, or to be incurred, in sending the contingents of Canadian volunteers to South Africa, or in connection therewith; and the members of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada, and the officers and persons who authorized or made the expenditure of any of the said sums under the Orders in Council above referred to, or under any warrant of the Governor General issued in consequence of or on the authority thereof, are hereby indemnified and exonerated from all liability by reason of having used or authorized the use of the above mentioned sums of money, or any portion thereof, without due legal authority, and all expenditure heretofore made of any of the said sums shall be held to have been lawfully made.

Certain persons indemnified from liability

Further expenditure authorized

2. In addition to the said sum of eight hundred and fifty thousand dollars referred to in the preceding section, there shall and may be paid and applied, from and out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada, a further sum, not exceeding in the whole the sum of one million one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, towards defraying any further expenditures that may be incurred in connection with the sending of Canadian volunteers for active service in South Africa, and for providing as hereinafter mentioned for a fund by way of allowance to such volunteers or their dependents.

"Expenditure" defined. Equipment, transportation, etc.

3. The word "expenditure" in this Act includes—

(a.) expenses of every kind in connection with the raising, enrolling, arming, equipping, provisioning, despatching and transporting of the said volunteers up to the time of their arrival at the place of debarkation in South Africa;

Pay of volunteers.

(b.) the pay and allowances of each such volunteer (both before and after the date of his debarkation in South Africa) at the rates named in the Order in Council dated the thirteenth day of March, one thousand nine hundred, set forth in the schedule of this Act,—the provisions of which Order in Council are hereby approved and confirmed;

Separation allowances.

(c.) the separation allowances payable under the provisions of the last mentioned Order in Council.

Disposal of pay while on service in Africa.

4. The amounts payable to any such volunteer under the Order in Council set forth in the schedule to this Act, after the time of the debarkation of such volunteer in South Africa, shall not be paid to such volunteer while he is on service, but shall be placed to his credit and shall be applied, in such manner as the Governor in Council determines, for the benefit of those dependent upon him, or, if not so applied, shall be paid to him, or his representatives, at the close of his period of service.

When the contingents were raised our regulations did not provide any separation allowances, and therefore the allowances provided in the Royal Warrant for pay were applicable. They were :—

Wife	15	cents	per diem.
Each girl under 16 years	5	"	"
" boy " 14 "	5	"	"

Army orders issued some months later made provision for the much more liberal scale contained in the last paragraph of the Act above, and in adopting this scale for our troops it was made retroactive to the dates of enlistment.

Provision was also made to pay the wives of officers an allowance equal to one-half of their husband's pay. No such allowance as this is paid to the wives of officers of the army.

The foregoing would seem to establish that the Government have treated our soldiers generously. Moreover, it can be safely said that no honest claim has been made against the department in connection with the pay or allowances of any officer, N.C.O. or man which has not been, when circumstances admitted of it, promptly settled, and a decision always rendered, when there were any points in doubt, in the claimant's favour.

DEFERRED PAY, 1ST CONTINGENT.

The question has naturally arisen why the rates of pay for the 2nd Contingent should be so much higher than those of the 1st. All will admit that the sacrifice made by officers and men of the 1st Contingent in leaving their civil employment, was as great as that made by members of the 2nd, and the hardships endured by the 2nd contingent were certainly not greater than those of the 1st. The only justification for higher rates being paid the 2nd Contingent, is that in the army mounted troops are paid higher rates than dismounted, but the difference is not nearly so great as that between the 1st and 2nd Contingents.

These rates were based upon the scale of pay the N.W.M.P. were receiving, as the 2nd Battalion of the Canadian Mounted Rifles was to be raised among the members of that force, and it would have been invidious to have offered a lower rate to the N.C. officers and men of the 1st Battalion of the same regiment, who were largely recruited from the Royal Canadian Dragoons and cavalry units of the active militia.

In view of the foregoing, and believing that as soldiers the 1st Contingent have not been underpaid, though not so generously treated as the members of the 2nd Contingent, I have not felt it my duty to urge upon the Government that the 1st Contingent should receive the abnormal rates paid to the 2nd Contingent.

DEFERRED PAY FOR "C" BATTERY, R.C.F.A.

Another instance of exceptional treatment in the matter of pay was that of deferred pay for "C" Battery.

When the officers detailed from head-quarters boarded the "Roslin Castle" at Halifax to pay off the troops who returned home by that transport, it was brought to their attention that "C" Battery had been authorized to receive Rhodesian rates of pay from the date of their departure from Capetown for Beira, April 14, until the date of disembarkation in Canada. As these rates were greatly in excess of the Canadian rates, the deferred pay for this Battery was withheld and the question whether it should be paid or not was referred to head quarters.

It was a matter of doubt whether this extra pay was issued by the Imperial Government or by the Rhodesian Government, but as it subsequently transpired that it was the Imperial pay issued to the Rhodesian Field Force, it was ruled by the Minister of Justice that the Officers, Non-Commissioners Officers and men of "C" Battery had no claim to deferred pay, which was only intended to bring the Imperial pay they had already received in South Africa up to a maximum equal to Canadian rates.

GALLANTRY OF CANADIAN TROOPS.

Many expressions of admiration of the gallantry of Canadian troops during the campaign were received from time to time. Among them was one from our late lamented Queen, which was as follows:—

Mr. Chamberlain to Lord Minto.

LONDON, February 27, 1900.

Her Majesty the Queen desires you to express to people of Dominion her admiration of gallant conduct of her Canadian troops in late engagement, and her sorrow at loss of so many brave men.

(Sgd.) CHAMBERLAIN.

Among other telegrams received were the following:—

Lord Roberts to Lord Minto.

PAARDEBERG, February 22, 1900.

Lord Roberts to Lord Minto.

PRETORIA, July 6, 1900.

I have much pleasure in bringing to Your Excellency's notice the good work done by the 1st and 2nd Battalions Canadian Mounted Rifles, who have been repeatedly conspicuous for their gallant conduct and soldierlike instincts. During the attack by the Boers at Katbosch on June 22, a small party of Pincher's Creek men of the 2nd Battalion displayed the greatest gallantry and devotion to duty, holding in check a force of Boers by whom they were largely outnumbered. Corporal Morden and Private Kerr continued fighting till mortally wounded, Lance-Corporal Miles and Private Miles (sic) wounded, continued to fire and held their ground.

On June 18 a party of 1st Battalion under Lieut. Young when operating with a force under General Hutton to the north-west of Pretoria succeeded in capturing two of the enemy's guns and brought in a herd of cattle and several prisoners without losing a man.

(Sgd). ROBERTS.

Mr. Chamberlain to Lord Minto.

LONDON, July 18, 1900.

Following despatch received from Lord Roberts begins: July 18, the two young Canadian officers mentioned in my telegram of yesterday were killed while gallantly leading their men in a counter attack upon the enemy's flank at a critical juncture of his assault upon our position, Lieut. Borden, only son of the Minister of Militia, Canada, had been twice before brought to my notice in despatches for gallant and intrepid conduct, ends. Express to Doctor Borden my deep sympathy with him at the loss of his gallant son.

(Sgd). CHAMBERLAIN.

Lord Roberts to Hon. F. W. Borden.

ARMY HEAD QUARTERS,
PRETORIA, July 18, 1900.

DEAR MR. BORDEN,—In forwarding to you a copy of the telegram in which General Hutton conveyed to me the sad news of the death of your gallant son, I venture to add one word of sincere and heartfelt sympathy with you in your great loss. You will see by the telegram how well your son had acquitted himself and how he fell bravely leading on his men. I know for the moment nothing can lessen your grief, but I trust that in time it may be some slight consolation to you to know that he fell doing his duty in the service of the mother land, and has left behind him a record, as General Hutton puts it, of intrepid and gallant conduct on several occasions.

Believe me, yours very truly,

ROBERTS.

Sir Alfred Milner to Lord Minto.

CAPE TOWN, Sept. 7, 1900.

September 7, following extract from telegram from Lord Roberts begins. A post held by 125 men of Canadian Mounted Infantry guarding railway between Pan and Wondersfontein was attacked at daylight this morning by body of enemy under Commandant Trekhart with two guns and one pompom. Brigadier General Mahon went to their assistance but found on arrival that they had beaten off the enemy, a very creditable performance, Major Saunders, Lieut. Moodie slightly wounded and D. V. Johnson wounded, missing, Sergts. Hayne, McCulloch, Privates Strong, Clendinnin, Shunn, Duxbury, all Canadian Mounted Infantry ends.

(Sgd). MILNER.

Mr. Chamberlain to Lord Minto.

LONDON, Oct. 26, 1900.

Her Majesty's government learn with satisfaction of arrangements being made for welcome of members of Canadian regiment. Their splendid services in South Africa have won the admiration and gratitude of the whole empire, and the memory of their indomitable courage and resolution will ever live in the annals of the British Army.

(Sgd). CHAMBERLAIN.

CANADA'S AID TO THE EMPIRE.

The accompanying statement shows that Canada sent to South Africa to aid the mother country in this war, 160 officers and 2,932 non-commissioned officers and men. The statement also shows the number of casualties, and contains other interesting information.

Canada also placed at the disposal of the mother country the 3rd (Special Service) Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, to temporarily relieve the 1st Battalion, Prince of Wales' Leinster Regiment, Royal Canadians, at Halifax. Although this battalion did not proceed to South Africa, by relieving the 1st Battalion, Leinster Regiment, for service elsewhere than at Halifax, we thus practically augumented the military forces of the empire by 29 officers and 975 non-commissioned officers and men. The total troops, therefore, raised in Canada in aid of the empire in this war, were as follows:

	Officers.	N. C. Officers and Men.
Sent to South Africa	160	2,932
For Garrison duty at Halifax	29	975
Total	189	3,907

A much larger force could have been sent without difficulty, and no doubt additional troops would have been authorized if there had been any necessity for them, but the chief object in the colonies sending contingents to South Africa was to demonstrate to the world that England could not be attacked without the assailants having the colonies to reckon with at the same time, and that in the colonies there are, without there being even what might be called the nucleus of a standing army, citizen soldierly forces which are to the empire a formidable strength. Sufficient troops were sent to demonstrate this, and no action on the part of the colonies could have done so much towards uniting the mother country and the colonies and thus creating an empire unparalleled for magnitude and grandeur, and with unprecedented possibilities for peace, freedom and the expansion of christianity and civilization.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your obedient servant,

Commanding Canadian Militia
